Local library displays quilt art

EAST JORDAN — There are not many places you can find an assortment of materials sewn together to create art.

During the month of April, the Jordan Valley District Library is one of those places where quilts of all shapes, sizes and colors can be viewed. The quilts hang along the walls of the library as part of the library's monthly arts display, said Jordan Valley District Library assistant, Lucy Bjorem.

"The purpose of the hanging art collection is to display our local artists' talents," Bjorem said. "I am already scheduling art displays for 2016."

Mary Beth Hartrick, of East Jordan, said that she has been quilting for two years. Since then she has enjoyed having her hand in sewing many of the quilts on display in the library. One quilt was part of a summer project with her five grandchildren, she said.

"Each of them made a bandana quilt," Hartrick said. "The quilt on display is made from four bandanas and the backing from fleece remnants. They loved doing this project and it was our favorite summer project together."

Another quilt that is on display honors the library's summer reading program. Hartrick and Louise Delone, who also works at the library with Hartrick, created the T-shirt quilt.

"Louise and I worked on that quilt together," Hartrick said. "We had these T-shirts from our past reading programs. Louise had the idea to make them into a quilt. She pieced the fronts together and I sewed the rest. It's just a fun way to highlight one of library's popular programs."

Work crews from the Charlevoix Department of Public Works dig up a section of State Street between Garfield and Upright streets on Thursday to repair a 15-foot section of a broken water main. The 4-inch cast iron pipe is estimated to be about 90 years old and is buried about 5 feet below the surface of the street.

CHARLEVOIX — The sub-zero cold temperatures have caused more headaches for Charlevoix public works crews as another water main has broken in the city leaving several homes and some businesses without water.

On Tuesday, March 31, Charlevoix City Council met in a special session to discuss upgrading the water main for the 100 block of West Hurlbut Street.

The 4-inch cast iron pipe on Hurlbut Street is around 90 years old and only 3.5 to 4 feet in the ground. It is the city's main line going to that neighborhood, said Charlevoix Public Works Superintendent Pat Elliott.

"We have two options to consider regarding repair and replacement of this main line," Elliott said. "We can do a temporary fix of replacing the broken 200-foot portion of pipe and risk dealing more problems next winter, or we can upgrade the entire water main, which is approximately 410 feet and put it about 7 feet in the ground."

Council members support the entire line repair, but who would do the work became the main issue for city council.

In 2009 city council passed a resolution to support local bidders. Council awards a bid to a qualified local bidder if their bid comes within 3 percent of the other bid for work up to an including $100,000. This was the case with local bidder MDC Contracting who bid the project at $73,700 and Team Elmer's who bid the project at $73,190.

Councilmember Bill Supernaw felt they should award the bid to MDC because it was more local, but because Elmer's also has an address in Charlevoix, the council went with the lower bid.

"It wasn't cut and dry," Supernaw said. "I have nothing against Elmer's they are a good company, but I thought the council had a chance to do something that would keep money more local and put some of our people back to work."

This water line may have been scheduled for repair once the warmer temperatures arrive, but there still are many of the city's water lines that remain vulnerable to the City council picks five for semifinal round in city manager search

CHARLEVOIX — After more than 30 applied, five people have made it to the semifinal round in the search for the new Charlevoix city manager.

Rob Straehel resigned from the city manager position in February to take a job as Petoskey's city manager, after serving the city for seven years.

The Charlevoix City Council met on Monday to narrow down the field of applicants.

Michael Spencer, city planner and zoning administrator for Charlevoix, has been serving as interim city manager since Straehel resigned.

The five semifinalists are in Michigan, except one, who applied from Maryland, said Charlevoix Human Resource Assistant Patty DeRosia.

"Each semi-finalist candidate was thoroughly looked at by city council," DeRosia said.

Artistic bike rack donated to East Park

CHARLEVOIX — East Park will be the location of a $2,200 ornamental bike rack after city council accepted a donation from the LaBlance family Monday.

The bike rack is approximately 10 feet long, made from heavy metal and in the shape of a bicycle. The wheels have an ornamental design with the word Charlevoix inscribed on the image of a drawbridge and there is an image of a lighthouse on the other wheel.

The bike rack will be placed in a grassy area adjacent to the pavilion. Interim City Manager Mike Spencer said the area would not impede pedestrian traffic or intrude on space used by the farmers market.

"Most people in the community feel we need more bike racks downtown," Spencer said. "This is not a typical bike rack and has some artistic features."

CHARLEVOIX — The work on State Street in downtown Charlevoix is expected to begin on Monday, April 13.

The city's planned facelift and street replacement of State Street between Hurlbut and Clinton streets should be complete before the summer season begins, said Jim Malewitz, of Performance Engineers Inc. in Charlevoix.

"The start and finish date will depend on the weather," Malewitz said. "The plan is to start once the work on the water main on Hurlbut Street is complete."

Food chain changes could be smelt decline cause

LOWME ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 - allen@schurz.com

At one time Northern Michigan rivers would run nearly black with smelt, but today, smelt runs have become a pale imitation of the days gone by. The reason, according to the Michigan DNR, is that more smelt are now breeding in lake waters and changes are occurring in the food chain.

"We are seeing a change in the lakes for food resources," said Michigan Department of Natural Resources fisheries biologist David Clapp. "More invasive species in the lakes limits the food resources for smelt."

The rainbow smelt — Osmerus mordax — also is not native to the Great Lakes. Smelt were stocked into Benzie County's Crystal Lake in 1912. Some of the fish escaped from Crystal Lake and smelt were first caught in Lake Michigan in 1926.

Once established, the smelt population increased rapidly in Lake Michigan becoming very abundant in all of the Great Lakes by the mid 1950s and into the 1960s, according to DNR officials.

Smelt were so prevalent in

COURTESY PHOTO

At one time, smelt were so prevalent in Lake Charlevoix that Smeltania — a Boyne City tradition — was born. The ice city came out of the depression era when unemployed fishermen would set up shanties on ice near Boyne City to hook the silvery fish.

Lake Charlevoix that Smeltania — a Boyne City tradition — was born. The city came out of the depression era when unemployed fishermen would take to the ice to hook the silvery fish, said Michele Hewitt, Boyne City deputy treasurer and board member of Boyne City Historical Commission.

"It was a complete city on the ice with a mayor and a jail," Hewitt said. "From mid-January to early March hundreds of shanties would stay on the lake to fish for smelt."

The tradition began in 1929, when smelt were running in Lake Charlevoix. Smelt sold for a penny each in the '30s, and the average nightly catch was around 100 fish. Ten thousand smelt were shipped from Boyne City each day, which meant a daily income of $100 for the residents, who otherwise depended almost entirely on earnings from the short summer tourist season, according to historical records.

Smeltania lasted through the '30s to the late '50s and was resurrected again in the late '70s and early '80s. The last year for Smeltania was 1983, Hewitt said.

"It was a combination of ice conditions becoming less safe and the lack of smelt that caused the tradition to end," Hewitt said.

Smelt dipping is another way people would harvest smelt. In the spring, smelt move from deeper water offshore into shallow near shore waters to spawn. The spawning season lasts for about two weeks in a given area, but the spawning season extends from March into May. The fish begin to move to the mouths of tributaries when the water reaches about 40 degrees Fahrenheit, said Bryce Hewitt, of Hewitt's Guide Service.

"Smelt runs were great at one time," Hewitt said. "Smelt would send many of us to local rivers and streams to dip our nets. I would go dipping about mid-April. It was something I would do every year."

He said buckets full of the small silvery fish would be harvested throughout the Great Lake tributaries as the smelt would move upstream to spawn at the onset of spring — right around this time, each year.

"The larger rivers would be full of hundreds of people," Bryce said. "One scoop of your net could fill a five gallon bucket."

But in time all good things must end. The glory days of smelt populations have dwindled and Hewitt quit dipping. "Smelt haven't been seen in those large numbers for nearly 15 to 20 years," Hewitt said. "Used to be a time any creek or tributary around Lake Charlevoix would be black with smelt."

DNR researchers believe the need to find food in a lake infested with zebra mussels that filter out plankton may be driving adult smelt further out into the lake and away from spawning grounds.

Other theories also suggest smelt population decline to natural influences, Clapp added.

"The change could likely be the result of predation, inter-specific competition and changes in the forage base," Clapp said. "Smelt are an important food source for salmon, trout, walleye, yellow perch and other large game fish."

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix City Council members may consider upgrading the city's water main infrastructure earlier than previously planned.

Interim City Manager Mike Spencer informed council of another water main break on Alice Street between Belvedere and Upright streets, during the city council meeting on April 6.

"I believe they have restored water to all those residents," Spencer said. "We certainly apologize to the public for any inconvenience the water main breaks have caused, but our crews are doing everything they can."

The city is anticipating the costs in run water, repair and replace water mains from this winter to be as much or more than they were last year.

"We expect it will cost the city around $500,000 or more," Spencer said.

Last year, Charlevoix received a $233,000 grant from officials in Lansing to help with cost associated with the extreme cold. City officials have not heard if legislators will repeat the gesture again this year. City officials plan to draft a letter for city council members to sign, encouraging legislators and Gov. Rick Snyder to enact some sort of funding that will offer financial relief to municipalities struggling from this year's extreme cold temperatures, Spencer said.

"The governor has not declared a state of emergency, but there are a lot of communities in Northern Michigan and the U.P. facing the same types of problems we have," Spencer said.

Mayor Gabe Campbell suggested city staff come up with some sort of plan to improve the waterlines throughout the city.

"We can't go through another winter like this," Campbell said. "I know it's expensive fix, but we are paying for it anyway."

He suggested a bond could be a solution to help prevent future problems with the city's water system.

"We can't wait four to five years to replace these water lines," Campbell said. "We are going to pay one way or another and I don't think it's a good idea to wait and implement a long range infrastructure plan. I think we need to get this done now."

In other actions, city council members approved a resolution to accept a Michigan Recreation Passport Grant of $67,500. In mid-December 2014, the recreation department was awarded a grant for new playground equipment at Michigan Beach, said Charlevoix Recreation Director Tom Kirinovic. The total amount the city of Charlevoix will contribute is $22,500 toward this project. The city has two years to complete the project.

"Any work done by our people can count toward our contribution to the grant," Kirinovic said.

Council also approved the purchase of another of 113 LED retrofit kits for a total of $36,386. In January, council members approved the purchase of 110 LED retrofit kits for the downtown decorative streetlights, but in order to try them out the city purchased 75 of the kits to install.

"They fit well, were easy to install and in my opinion look very good, so we are planning to do the rest," said city engineer Don Swem. "If we complete these 113 replacements combined with the previous 75 kits, we will cut power consumption by an estimated 41,500 kWh per year. This energy savings will fully pay back the LED retrofit kit costs within six years."

Rudolph says no to Proposal 1

Editor:
Everyone, except maybe our Michigan legislators, knows that something has to be done about Michigan roads. However, the convoluted proposal that we will vote on, May 5, is a loser from the start. In 1994, Michigan citizens passed Proposal A raising the sales tax from 4 percent to 6 percent as a new way to fund schools. However, almost before the ink dried, legislators were exempting products from the increased sales tax. These exemptions invalidated the financial premises of Proposal A and Michigan schools have been deprived of hundreds of millions of dollars. And now, ironically, part of the justification for Proposal 1, of 2015, is providing more funds for the schools.

I expect even worse from this newly elected legislature, namely that legislators will immediately corrupt the intent and funding mechanisms of Proposal 1, and they will use these additional monies for tax breaks for their benefactors. The poor argument that if Proposal 1 fails, this legislature will try to fix our roads by cutting essential services to pay for roads is not a justifiable reason to vote "Yes" on a bad proposal.

If Proposal 1 passes, the 7 percent state sales tax rate will be one of the highest in the nation, it will be cast in stone in the state constitution and will be difficult and costly to amend or repeal. Last year, the legislature didn't do its job and now Michigan taxpayers are saddled with the added cost of this special election. This election cost really should be paid for out of their salaries since they fumbled doing the job they were elected to do. I don't trust our legislators and will vote NO.

Resident wants all Michigan beaches to be non-smoking

Editor:
In honor of Earth Day 2015, smokers out there need to do themselves and Mother Earth a favor — quit smoking. Cigarettes are not only the world's number one cause of preventable death, they're also a major cause of air, land and water pollution.

Secondhand smoke is harmful air pollution. According to the U.S. Surgeon General, secondhand smoke contains more than 7,000 chemicals, including hundreds that are toxic and at least 69 that cause cancer. It's proven to cause lung cancer and heart disease in non-smoking adults. Among infants and children, it causes sudden infant death syndrome (SIDS), low birth weight, respiratory infections such as bronchitis and pneumonia, ear infections and more severe asthma attacks.

Cigarette butts also pollute land and water. In fact, butts are the number one littered item on our local beaches and waterways here in Michigan. The state of Michigan is doing a great job promoting the Pure Michigan campaign, but I feel that campaign does not hold much truth when our "pristine shorelines" are littered with cigarette butts.

Recently, I read about local parks and beaches that have gone tobacco-free, like the cities of East Jordan, Charlevoix and Harbor Springs. I think this is a step in the right direction and I encourage more municipalities to consider doing the same. I would love to take my young daughter to the beach this summer and not have to worry about her finding cigarette butts in the sand, as I remember doing when I was little. The beautiful lakes and beaches are what put many Northern Michigan communities "on the map" and should be treated as such. The responsibility to keep our waters and beaches clean falls into the hands of each community member and the policy makers within those communities. I hope to see our area parks and beaches go tobacco free as well!

Thank you,
Amy Brown

Hospice of Northwest Michigan offers thanks to volunteers

Editor:
National Volunteer Week is April 12-18. It's the perfect time to recognize and celebrate the thousands of men, women and young people who volunteer in communities across the country. Hospice of Northwest Michigan and I want to honor all those who are dedicated to providing care and support for patients and families in our community who are nearing the end of life's journey.

Here in our community, more than 40 volunteers work with Hospice of Northwest Michigan to care for patients, help with outreach, assist in the office, provide fundraising support and so much more.

It's a mistake to think that hospice is about giving up — hospice is about living as fully as possible, on your terms, even at the end of life. Hospice makes life moments happen.

To learn more about volunteer opportunities, visit hospicenwm.org or call (231) 547-7659. And a big thank you to all of our volunteers for all they do.

Safe Home coordinator recognizes volunteer efforts

Dear Editor,
Volunteers with the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan are an essential part of our organization. They give freely of their time, effort and talents to help make it possible for the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan to continue to provide vital programs and services relied on by adults, children, women and men in our community. As a result of their generosity and caring, we are able to positively impact the health, safety and well-being of those who seek and need our services.

Last year, members of our community donated a total of 5,704 volunteer hours to the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan.

Volunteers provide invaluable support to our organization in many areas, such as serving on our board of directors, providing information and support to those who call our 24-hour crisis line, assisting Gold Mine Resale Shop customers, helping to prepare mailings, lending a hand to maintain our facilities, encouraging and supporting survivors of domestic abuse at the Safe Home, serving on fundraising committees and sharing special skills/expertise.

National Volunteer Appreciation Week, April 12-18, is a time to shine a light on the significant and positive impact volunteers make every day and every week of the year. At the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan, we are inspired by, and grateful for, our volunteers who truly make a difference in northern Michigan!

Sincerely,
Jamie Winters

GUEST COMMENTARY

Walking away from Veterans isn't an option

Editor:
Imagine the Washington agency tasked with helping our veterans telling someone to "go away and never come back." Unbelievable, right? But that is what one Vietnam veteran was told by the VA in 1967. Nearly 50 years later, he came to our Veterans Assistance Fair at the Cheboygan National Guard Armory and finally received the help and support he deserved. At the same fair, we helped a 92-year-old World War II bomber pilot obtain a health card so after seven decades, he could finally have access to the benefits that he had earned.

While I'm glad we were able to help these two, I wish I could say their stories were the exceptions. However, the Veterans Administration in Washington continues to fail our heroes returning home from war. As the only member from Michigan on the House Veterans Committee, I'm working to confront these issues and hold the bureaucrats at the VA accountable for failing our veterans. In fact, as Chairman of the Subcommittee on Veterans Health, we've already uncovered incompetent leadership, billions of wasted spending and inadequate policies that hampered caregivers.

These problems took years — if not decades — to create and I've realized that the solutions we are pushing for won't come about overnight. But we can no longer accept the VA's word that changes are happening. We must follow through and hold them accountable.

Recently I was asked if I

intended to seek another term in Congress. To keep working in Congress for our veterans — and everyone in the 1st District — would mean breaking a pledge I made when I first ran. In that campaign, I stated my support for term limits, saying, "three terms and you're retired seems about right to me." But I also hate to walk away from a challenge — especially when I've worked in the Iron Mountain VA for 20-years as a surgeon, serving one veteran at a time, to now having the ability to serve millions of veterans every day as a leader on veterans' issues in the House. My training as a physician taught me to never walk away from a patient and I can't start now.

It may feel like last year's campaigns just ended, and they have. Yet the questions about whether I am considering running again are valid and I felt it was necessary to explain my reasoning and address this now so that we can move past the political discussions and continue to focus on the important issues facing families in Northern Michigan. I also want you to know that while I do support term limits, I believe for them to be effective they must apply the same to every member of Congress.

A career in Washington is not what I'm looking for because I already have one — serving the UP as doctor for 30 years. What being a member of Congress has allowed me to do, though, is continue serving our veterans and the families of Northern Michigan.

My focus has been on helping to provide an environment that will get government out of the way of job creators and allow our economy to grow. We've worked to bring businesses, educators and the community together to improve and expand vocational education opportunities for individuals so they can gain the skills needed to secure good paying jobs. My position on the House Agriculture Committee has given me the chance to work hand-in-hand with our farming community to strengthen and support their operations. And we have achieved bi-partisan success in helping our outdoor economy by protecting Sleeping Bear Dunes, improving access to our forests, and recognizing the vital role the Great Lakes play in our everyday life.

I'm privileged that you have trusted me to serve as your Congressman these past few years. It's my hope that I will continue to earn your trust and keep working on the important issues facing you, your families, our veterans and the diverse communities that Northern Michigan is blessed with. With more time, I know there is so much more we can do to make sure our Northern Michigan way of life is secured for future generations.

LOOKING BACK...

These two structures, one wood and the other brick and stone, are two of the earliest put up on Bridge Street. They still stand today. On the left is druggist and dentist George Crouter's building, constructed in 1875, two years after he arrived in town. In a brochure he published in 1889, he called it "The Oldest Drug House in the County. Dr. Crouter's Drug and Stationery Store at Charlevoix" that also offered fishing tackle, artists' materials, fine perfumes, a soda fountain and "reading matter." The town's first telephone exchange was installed on the second floor in the early 1880s under his supervision. By 1884, Charlevoix had 20 telephones. Recently this building housed a Kentucky Fried Chicken, and within the past few years a frozen yogurt store. At right is the Archibald Butters building, 1882, for half a century the location of the nationally known Sugar Bowl Café, most recently Round Lake Books. Archibald Butters, born in England, first came to town in the late 1850s, left to seek his fortune within a year, and returned a decade later to stay and help run the "Mammoth Store" because deeply involved in a local bank, then in politics which sent him to Lansing and a stint as Lieutenant Governor in 1885-86 before Butters returned to Charlevoix to live out a prosperous and influential life.

The Whiskey Charmers will finish out the Charlevoix Library's WinterFolk Concert Series.

The Whiskey Charmers finale for Charlevoix Library WinterFolk Series

CHARLEVOIX — The Whiskey Charmers will be featured at 6:30 p.m. on Monday, April 27, for the final performance of the Charlevoix Public Library's WinterFolk Concert Series.

Their performance features vocals, harmonies, guitar and a wide variety of instruments. The Whiskey Charmers is the trio of Carrie Shepard, Lawrence Daversa and sometimes their "elusive" drummer/percussionist Brian Perry.

Their sound is hard to classify but traverses into the realm of Country Noir/Gothic Americana with haunting melodies that tell stories of the open road, whiskey and chasing a cure for incurable heartache.

Brett Callwood of the Detroit Metro Times said, "The Whiskey Charmers truly create the aural equivalent of crying into a tumbler filled with bourbon, bemoaning a lost love. There's no ice added."

WinterFolk celebrates local folk artists with an evening of music. The featured performance kicks off the evening with a 45-minute concert, which is followed by an open mic session as an opportunity for the public to share talents. Open mic sign-up begins at 6 p.m. the night of the concert and is limited to five performers.

For more information about the WinterFolk Concert Series, call the library at (231) 547-2651.

Healthy Food Series at the Charlevoix Library

The series begins at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 14, with Finding Your Way Gluten Free, by Mindy Taylor, events and outreach coordinator at the Grain Train Natural Foods Market. Taylor will explore what gluten is, how to identify gluten in products and look at the many whole-foods that are naturally gluten free. The thought of eliminating gluten from a diet can be overwhelming, but Mindy uses her personal experience as well as her knowledge of the Grain Train's selection of gluten-free products to help others discover the many options available. To register call (231) 237-7340.

Food Is Medicine with Dr. Charles Huebner, of Harbor Arthritis will be held at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 21. Huebner speaks about a healthy diet. What we put in our bodies are critical components to overall human health. Our bodies are integrated and complex. A holistic approach to good health includes good food along with spirituality, social connectedness, exercise and sleep, as well as other elements. Huebner's presentation includes a panel of patients offering testimonials about their experiences incorporating healthy food as part of a healthy lifestyle. Huebner teaches the benefits of integrating the idea of "food is medicine" into your life.

Organic Farming at Pond Hill Farm with Jimmy Spencer is scheduled at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, April 23. Spencer will discuss organic farming and gardening, pesticide and herbicide free produce, as well as the café, winery and store at the farm owned and operated by the Spencer family, located five miles north of downtown Harbor Springs. Included will be tips about organic gardening, garden layout and planting schedules for the individual homeowner/gardener.

Representatives from the Charlevoix Farmers Market will be available throughout the series. The Charlevoix Public Library is located at 220 W. Clinton St. in Charlevoix.

New youth book club becomes Page Turners

CHARLEVOIX — Page Turners is not your average book club. This new group, for kids in grades three to five, will feature the book "Rain Reign" by Ann M. Martin. Children will read some chapters at home and listen to others at the library. Discussion will take place from 3:45-4:30 p.m. on April 15, 22, 29 and May 6, in the Youth Activity Center. All three youth librarians will work with the kids during the discussions. And of course, snacks will be provided.

"Rain Reign" tells the story of Rose Howard who is obsessed with homonyms. She's thrilled that her own name is a homonym, and she purposefully gave her dog Rain a name with two homonyms (Reign, Rein), which, according to Rose's rules of homonyms, is very special. Not everyone understands Rose's obsessions, her rules and the other things that make her different — not her teachers, other kids and her single father. When a storm hits their rural town, rivers overflow, the roads are flooded and Rain goes missing. Rose's father shouldn't have let Rain out. Now Rose has to find her dog, even if it means leaving her routines and safe places to search.

Hearts will break and spirits will soar for this powerful story, brilliantly told from Rose's point of view. Booklist's starred review states, "Action packed and well-paced, the story's depth incorporates artful negotiation, the importance of education, and citizens' equality and rights."

His life was otherwise blessed with multiple successes, including early musical and athletic achievements of considerable magnitude wherein he sang bass in the Charlevoix Methodist Church and other choirs, played the bass horn (tuba) in Charlevoix's concert and Marching bands and was a fighting Rayder on Charlevoix's football team which remained unscathed upon for the entirety of Erik Fraley's varsity years.

Following his graduation from Charlevoix High School class of 1959, he pursued mastery of the culinary arts, this course of study marked by his graduation from Yale University's Culinary Institute of America. He went on to an elevated position with Saga Foods, then worked with Stouffer's, was employed for nearly five years as an executive chef in Saudi Arabia, was retained by Central Michigan University where he supervised food services and was also a chef on a gulf oil rig.

His surviving siblings, Joel William Arvilla, Denis Erin Arvilla and Dana Ellen MacMillan recall myriad endearing childhood memories filled with their brother's levity and sensitivity, but will remember Erik Fraley the best for his precious and tender warmth, while chatting over a cup of coffee in the early morning hours of a lazy summer day. He will surely be missed by those who've known and loved him! In the words of Frank Sinatra, Erik Fraley could truly say, "I did it my way!"

Donations may be made to the American Cancer Society in his name.

The 2015 DNR fishing guide is complete with new fishing license prices and updated rules.

New Michigan fishing license required April 1

LANSING — The Department of Natural Resources reminds anglers that a new fishing license season began on Wednesday, April 1. This coincides with the new regulation cycle.

Anglers have five options to choose from when making their purchases. All fishing licenses are good for all species.

- Resident Annual - $26
- Non-Resident Annual - $68
- Senior Annual (for residents age 65 or older) - $11
- 24-Hour (resident or non-resident) - $10
- 72-Hour (resident or non-resident) - $30

Residents and non-residents also can purchase the Hunt/Fish combo license for $76 and $266, respectively, that consists of a base license, annual fishing license and two deer tags. A base license is not required when just purchasing a fishing license. There is also a Hunt/Fish combo license available to senior residents for $43.

Michigan's fishing licenses bring revenue into the state that is invested into the state's fisheries in several ways, including providing greater access to world-class fishing opportunities, improving fisheries habitat in inland lakes and streams, and increasing the health and quantity of fish stocked in the state.

In Michigan, there are two ways to purchase a fishing license. Interested parties may visit a local license retailer or DNR Customer Service Center and make a purchase or anytime on a computer, smartphone or tablet by using the E-License system to purchase a license at michigan.gov/fishing.

For more information, visit michigan.gov/fishing.

Women's center to observe National Sexual Assault Awareness Month

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan provides quality programs for those who seek and need support for sexual assault, domestic abuse, child abuse and child sexual assault. However, a great deal of our daily work is taking action for social change in an effort to stop this violence before it occurs.

As National Sexual Assault Awareness Month is observed, the organization is encouraged. Never before in the 38-year history of the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan have they witnessed the level of public conversation pertaining to the issue of violence against women. In print, broadcast and social media, at the 'water-cooler' and (hopefully) around the dinner table people are talking about an issue that has been sustained through silence. Many survivors are also beginning to break their silence. Major high-profile organizations are taking a public stand against this violence, from the military and the NFL to colleges across the country.

Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan are still concerned because sexual assault still exists. The statistics are still staggering. Many rapes still go unreported. There is still work to be done.

Without a doubt, most people would agree that rape is unacceptable. That's easy. The difficult part is weaving that belief into our everyday lives. We may be aware of sexual assault as a crime and social epidemic, yet do we have the courage to make the necessary changes to end it?

Experts agree that sexual assault and violence against women and girls is rooted in discrimination, inequality, the reduced social status of women and power imbalances. Consider the following statistics:

Krajewski

— Women make up 51 percent of the U.S. population; however women comprise only 20 percent of Congress.

— 35 women have served as U.S. governors compared to 2,319 men.

— 71 countries in the world have had female presidents or prime ministers; the U.S. is not one of them.

— U.S. women continue to earn about 78 cents to every dollar that men earn.

— Between 1937 and 2005 there were only 13 female protagonists in animated films. All of them except one had the aspiration of finding romance.

— Women hold only 3 percent of clout positions in the mainstream media (telecommunications, entertainment, publishing, and advertising).

Many struggle to understand their own role in eliminating violence against women. It starts as an awareness and understanding of the issue. It's taking small, seemingly insignificant actions such as talking to kids about negative and stereotypical messages that are seen and heard during the day. It's modeling respect and non-violence in everyday relationships and interactions with others. It's speaking up when a comment, joke or remark demeans or belittles someone based on their gender. It's supporting women in business and politics. It's believing survivors.

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan asks that people continue to speak up, ask questions that will bring about a deeper understanding of the issue and challenge the status quo. Actions and words DO have the power to influence. Perhaps a combined effort will soon reach a tipping point that will finally and assuredly make violence against women end.

DNR cautions residents about the threat of wildfires

MICHIGAN — The melting snow may be a welcome change from winter's chill, but the Department of Natural Resources reminds residents that pleasant weather also brings the threat of wildfires.

"Fire season gets going when dead grass and leaves become exposed after warm temperatures melt snow from easily ignited fields and forests," explained Dan Laux, DNR fire prevention specialist. He added that several factors contribute to the increased wildfire risk in the spring.

"Dead grass becomes flammable as it dries out," Laux explained. "People don't realize there can be wildfire danger even when nights are cool and snow piles linger in the shade. The hazard begins when homeowners start spring cleanup chores by burning yard waste."

The unsafe burning of leaves, brush and other debris is a main cause of wildfires in Michigan. A resident is required to get a burn permit prior to burning brush and debris in Michigan.

The unsafe burning of leaves, brush and other debris is a main cause of wildfires in Michigan.

A person is required to get a burn permit prior to burning brush and debris in Michigan. Residents in the northern Lower Peninsula and Upper Peninsula can obtain a free burn permit by visiting michigan.gov/burnpermit or by calling (866) 922-2876. Residents in southern Michigan should contact their local fire department or township office to see if burning is permitted in their area.

The DNR reminds people to do the following prior to burning yard debris: obtain a burn permit; choose a day that is cool and damp with little wind; burn in small mounds placed in areas that are clear of vegetation; keep water close by; supervise fires at all times; always extinguish flames, coals and embers properly. Remember, embers can stay hot for days.

"Nine out of 10 wildfires are caused by people," Laux said. "We all need to do our part to prevent wildfires and protect the natural resources that make Michigan so special."

So far this year the DNR has responded to 10 wildfires totaling 69 acres.

For more information, visit michigan.gov/preventwildfires. To check if burn permits are being issued in your area, visit michigan.gov/burnpermit.

DNR advises hands-off for wildlife babies

LANSING — With the arrival of spring, wild animals are giving birth and hatching the next generation of Michigan's wildlife. Baby red foxes appear in dens during the last days of March and the first days of April. Young great-horned owls have already hatched and are growing up in stick nests high above the ground. Mourning doves have made nests, some have already laid eggs and the first litters of cottontails will soon appear.

The Department of Natural Resources encourages Michigan residents to get outside and enjoy the experience of seeing wildlife raising its young, but reminds them that it is important to remain at a distance.

"These are magical moments to witness but, unfortunately, sometimes the story has a different ending when people take baby wild animals out of the wild," said DNR wildlife technician Katie Keen. "Please resist the urge to try to help seemingly abandoned fawns or other baby animals this spring. Some people truly are trying to be helpful, while others think wild animals would make good pets, but in most cases neither of those situations ends well for the wildlife."

"We appreciate the good intentions of those who want to help, but the animals are better off left alone than removed from the wild," Keen added.

COURTESY PHOTO

It is not uncommon for deer to leave their fawns unattended for up to eight hours at a time. This behavior minimizes the scent of the mother left around the fawn and allows the fawn to go undetected from nearby predators.

The animals most commonly rescued by well-intentioned citizens include white-tailed deer fawns and raccoons.

"Spring is the time for fawns," said DNR wildlife technician Holly Vaughn. "Remember a fawn's best chance for survival is with its mother. Do not remove a fawn that is not injured from the wild."

It is not uncommon for deer to leave their fawns unattended for up to eight hours at a time. This behavior minimizes the scent of the mother left around the fawn and allows the fawn to go undetected from nearby predators. While fawns may seem abandoned, they almost certainly are not. All wild white-tailed deer begin life this way.

"Fawns rely on their camouflage coat to protect them from predators, while their mother stays off in the distance," Vaughn said. "The mother will not return if people or dogs are present. If you find a fawn alone, do not touch it, just quickly leave it alone. After dark the mother deer will return for her fawn."

Most mammals have a keen sense of smell, and parents may abandon their young if humans have touched them. Other wildlife, such as birds, should not be handled either. Adult birds will continue to care for hatchlings that have fallen from their nest. If people move the hatchlings, the adults may not be able to locate and care for them.

DNR advice for people on wild animals:

— It is illegal to possess a live wild animal, including deer, in Michigan. Every day an animal spends with humans makes it less likely to be able to survive in the wild.

— Many baby animals will die if removed from their natural environment, and some have diseases or parasites that can be passed on to humans or pets.

— Some "rescued" animals that do survive become habituated to people and are unable to revert back to life in the wild.

— Eventually, habituated animals pose additional problems as they mature and develop adult animal behaviors. Habituated deer, especially hucks, can become aggressive as they mature, and raccoons are well-known for this too.

For a list of licensed rehabilitators, visit michigan.dnr.com/dlr or call your local DNR office.

With aging pipes it's anyone's guess on how many of the city's main lines are broken, Elliott said.

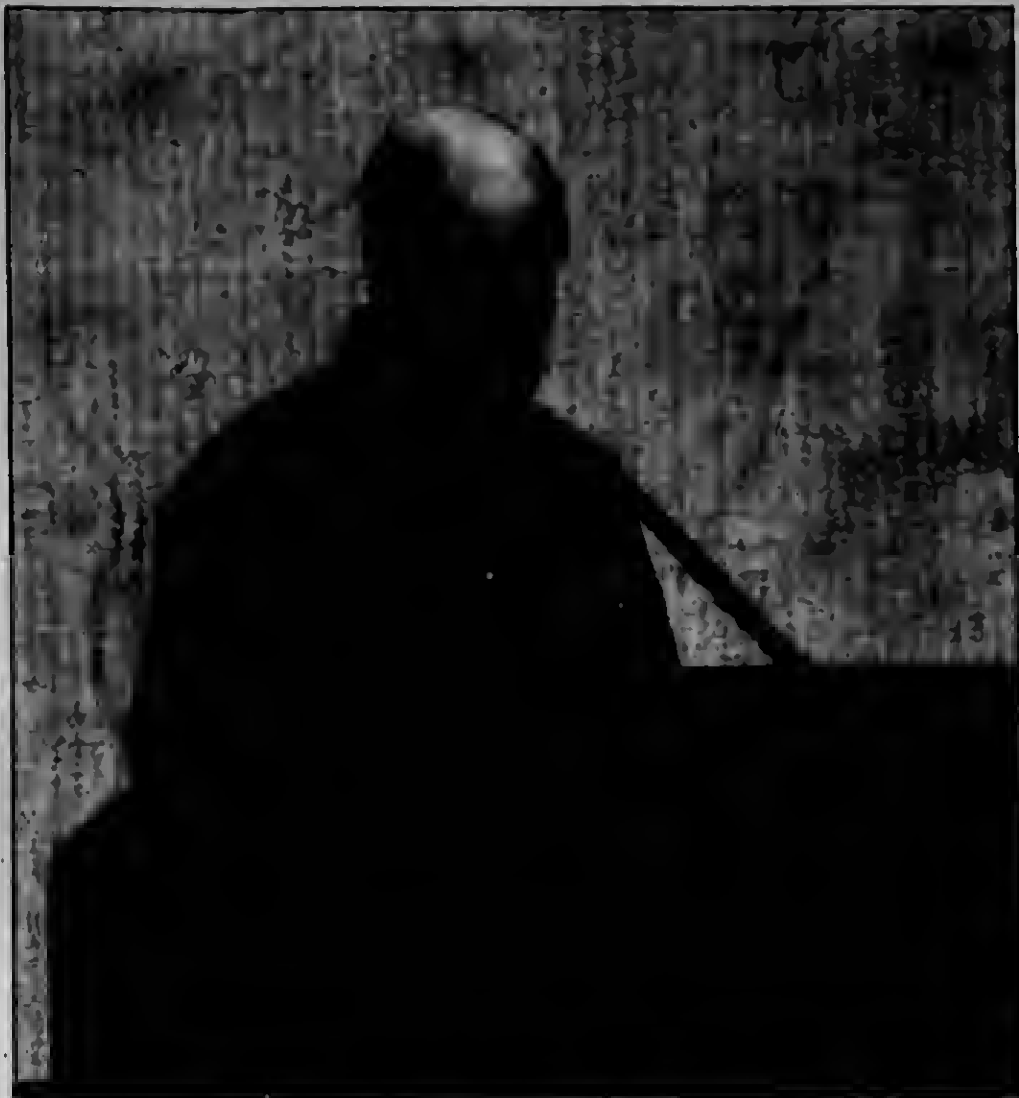

"We know we have three main lines frozen," Elliott said. "As they thaw out we will find out if any of our frozen lines are broken."

City work crews have been dealing with a number of service lines going from the street to homes and businesses. To date the city has had to address more than 200 customers who have no water and the calls keep coming in adding more stress to an already busy workforce.

"As of last week we have spent approximately $40,000 on labor, equipment and materials to deal with all of the issues related to the cold winter," Elliott said.

The exact cost of this winter's pipe damage is still not known, but it appears to be better than last year, Elliott said.

Last year the total spent by the end of it all was approximately $500,000," he said. "We did receive grant money of approximately $230,000, but there is no way of knowing if we will get that same help this year."

Charlevoix Public Works Superintendent Pat Elliott addresses city council members during a special meeting on Tuesday about the broken water main on West Hurbut Street. City council approved spending $73,190 to upgrade the water main for that section of the city.

STATE ST.

State Street will be closed to through traffic, but motorists will have access to local businesses in the construction zone.

The $1.2 million plan calls for a complete resurfacing of State Street, sewer and water line upgrades along with upgrades to the drainage system for storm sewer. There also will be a new retaining wall built along State Street south of Antrim Street.

A Michigan Department of Transportation grant will fund approximately 80 percent of the qualifying costs, according to city budget documents. The remaining $682,000, to cover other costs such as engineering and design, is the city's investment in the project.

In addition to widening and repaving the road, crews will install curb, gutter and pedestrian ramps in various locations, along with re-aligning the intersection of State Street at Antrim Street, said DPW superintendent Pat Elliott.

"It's important we get the intersection to line up," Elliott said. "This will improve our traffic flows in the area."

Elliott said crews also will improve the drainage system along the roadway.

Crews started site preparation last week and began placing road construction signs to alert motorists once the work begins.

Malewitz said most of the signage on U.S. 31 is to help direct motorists traveling to Charlevoix Area Hospital away from Antrim Street.

"Much of the signs are in place to prepare emergency vehicles traveling to the hospital that Antrim is closed during construction," Malewitz said.

as part of the Zabul Reconstruction Team in Afghanistan.

Bronson City Manager Mark Heydlauff has been the city manager since 2010. During his time he has led the city through the process of creating a Downtown Development Authority. He has worked with the city council on a millage campaign. He also is a graduate research assistant for two years and administrative intern for the city of Sturgis.

Bryce Kelley is a private consultant to public

Charlevoix City Planner and Zoning Administrator Michael Spencer has been the city planner since 2007. He is the current interim city manager for Charlevoix and previously worked as the zoning administrator for Park County, Mont., for two years.

DeRosia said the number of semifinalists will probably be trimmed to two to three finalists after interviews with city council near the end of April. After that the finalists will come in for a final interview with city council on May 11. All interviews will be open to the public. Times will be announced at a later date, DeRosia said.

"We will have an additional meeting or two and hopefully have a new city manager after the process is done," said Mayor Gabe Campbell.

Spotlight on Innovation to host closing ceremony

CHARLEVOIX — The Spotlight on Innovation exhibit, which features works by emerging artists from students at schools throughout Charlevoix County will be hosting its closing ceremony from noon to 3 p.m. on Sunday, April 12, at the Circle of the Arts in downtown Charlevoix.

built in, so we feel it is a good showpiece for the entryway to downtown. The LaBlance family may do future fundraisers for additional bike racks that could be donated."

Each council member appeared to be pleased with the LaBlance family donation, but some council members were hesitant to accept the gift because of its artistic features, particularly the images on the wheels.

Charlevoix Community Economic Development Director Annie Doyle said if design is an issue, the Main Street design committee could come up with concepts for council to consider.

"The committee is still in the forming stages, but we could probably have something in three months," Doyle said to council.

Councilmember Jeff Porter thought Doyle had a good suggestion.

"We should let our Main Street people look at this concept," Porter said.

Spencer said the goal was to have this rack in place before the end of May.

"We would like to have a decision about the donation from council tonight," Spencer said.

The construction of the Lake-to-Lake Trail should bring more bike riders to the area and having bike racks for them is a good idea, said Maureen LaBlance.

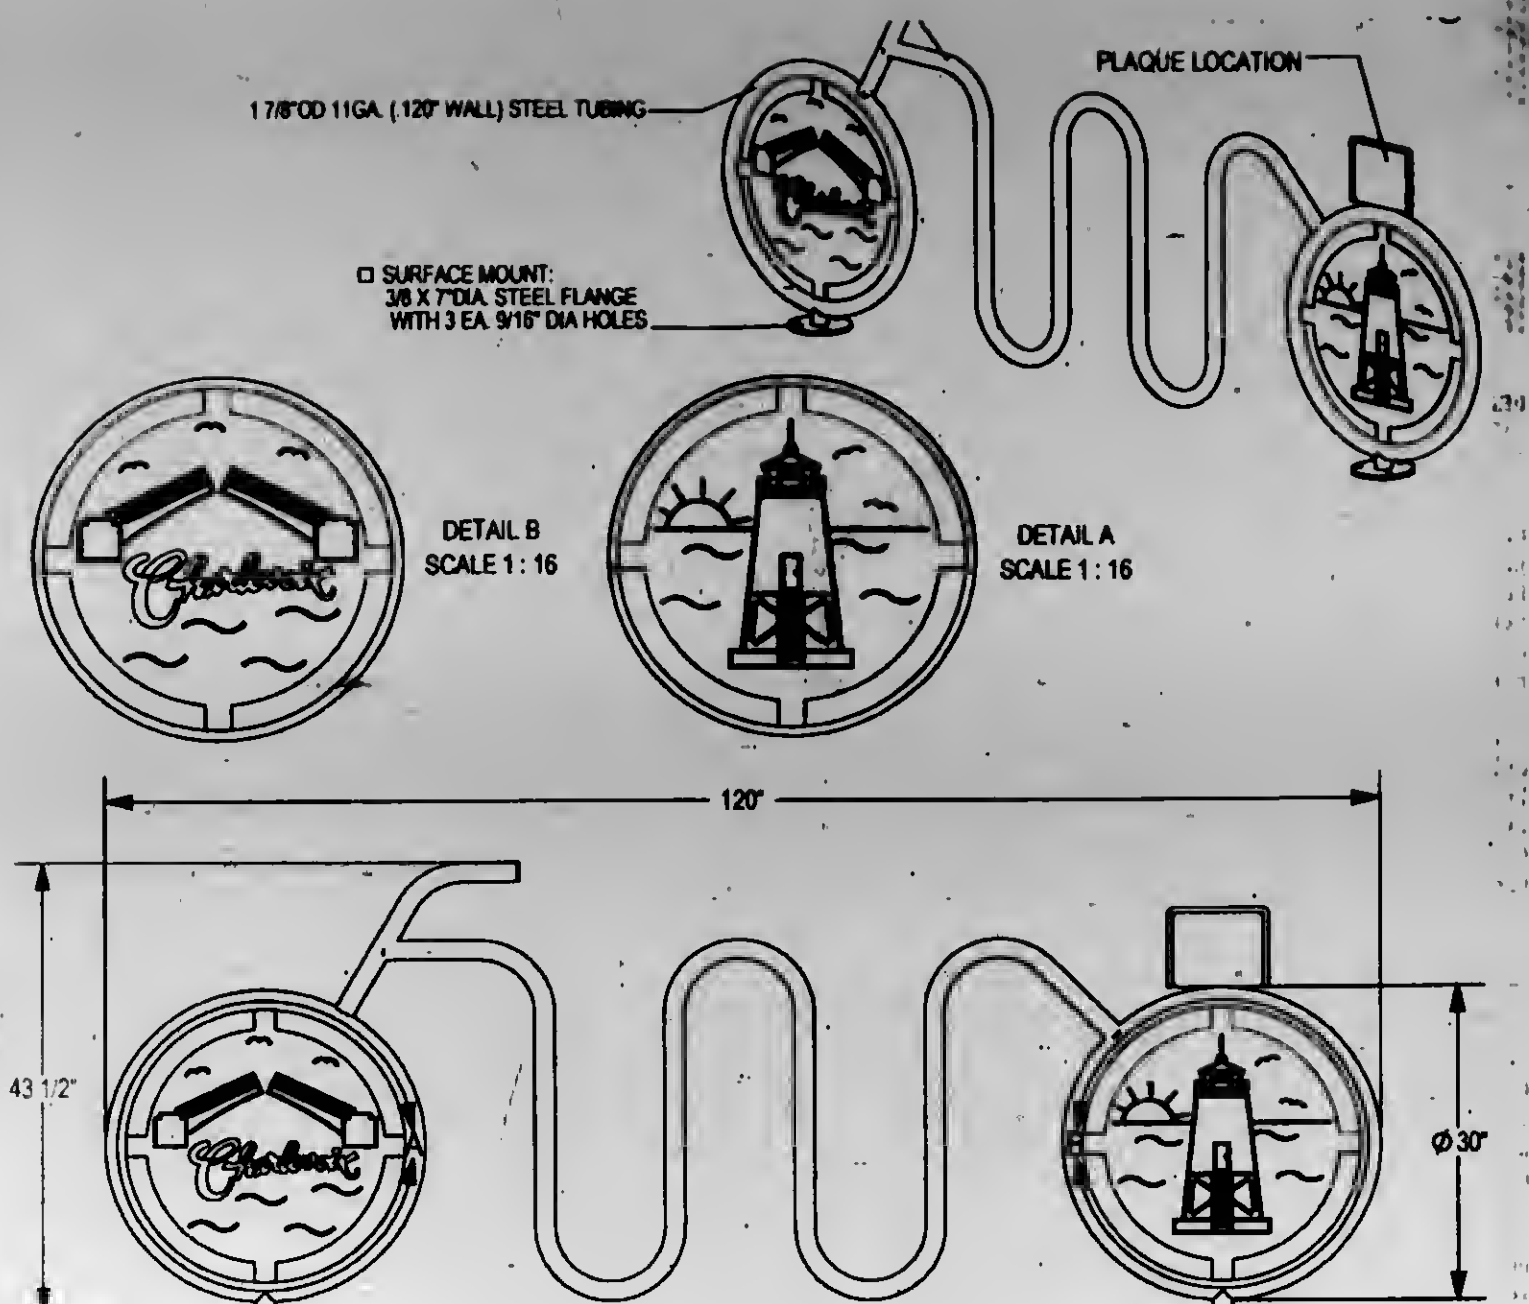

"We need to welcome bikers in our beautiful downtown," LaBlance said.

Councilmember Leon Perron agreed with LaBlance about welcoming more bikers to Charlevoix, but he did not want to rush a decision about adding something to East Park.

"It's our park," Perron said. "I want to do this right before we add anything in the park."

As more people from the public commented how much they supported the donation and wanted to see it installed, council decided to vote to accept the bike rack as presented.

"We take this donation and we can have all the other suggestions that were made implemented on future bike racks if this comes up again," said Bill Sopemaw. "This is a good addition to the park."

A rendering shows the approximate 10-foot long bike rack that is being donated by the LaBlance family. The bike rack is made from heavy metal and in the shape of a bicycle. The wheels have an ornamental design with the word Charlevoix inscribed.

Rayders looking for repeat and then some

DREW KOCHANNY

CHARLEVOIX — After the season the Charlevoix girls' soccer team ended with last year, head coach Pete Scholten was hoping his girls could keep the momentum going heading into this season.

Which is exactly what they did before heading on a spring break, opening with a win over Class A Traverse City Central, living up to those early season expectations.

"We're really, really excited to get the season going," said Scholten. "It couldn't have started off on a better note for us, I've got a lot of respect for Traverse City Central and they're a really good soccer team. I told the girls, things can only get better from here."

As surprising as it might seem, the Rayders just may be more equipped to make yet another deep run into the postseason this year.

After earning their sixth district championship in the last seven years last season, Charlevoix made a run at a regional championship, first by earning a shootout win over Leland, then by taking Muskegon Western Michigan Christian to a shootout in the title game.

The Rayders would eventually fall, but in the process, earn a 20-6-1 season.

With depth in the lineup, thanks to a strong freshman group, Scholten is excited.

"We feel good about having a lot more depth than we've had, we've just got so many more options, kids that are comfortable playing in so many positions," he said. "As good as our team was last year, we weren't super deep. If someone got hurt, I don't know who we were going to put into those spots."

The Rayders have experienced a couple of offseason injuries which will effect their lineup, in Kelsey Engstrom and Grace Sutherland.

Engstrom was a key forward and offensive contributor for the Rayders a season ago.

There's plenty returning for Charlevoix, however, from senior leadership, to rising sophomores.

DREW KOCHANNY/NEWS-REVIEW

The Charlevoix girls' soccer team, already a couple games into their 2015 season, returns a number of key pieces to make another deep run into the postseason, while adding some instant freshman contributors. Team members include, front, from left; Alex Snabea, Julia Doskoch, Devin Bottomly; second row; All Jarema, Raigan Novotny, Rachel Nesburg, Natalie Nesburg, Elizabeth Way, Olivia Storm; back; assistant coach Tom Conlan, Grace Lee, Grace Way, Beth Veenstra, Gloria Greene, Oda Folkedal, Sophie Herboldshelmer, Leah Davis and head coach Pete Scholten. Missing: Kylee Scholten, Isabel Hess, Kelsey Engstrom and Abbey Scholten.

The Rayders return four Division IV all-state selections from last season, including first team members Leah Davis and Gloria Greene.

Davis is back as a senior midfielder, after leading the Rayders with 24 goals and six assists, booming more than a couple goals from scary distance for any goalkeeper.

A keeper herself, and one most likely happy to have Davis on her side, Greene sent back 259 opposing shots last season, while adding 14 shutouts along the way.

"They've been leaders since their freshman year," said Scholten. "It is nice to have that senior leadership, for sure."

Senior Ellie Way and junior Kylee Scholten are also back as all-state honorable mention selections from a year ago. Scholten contributed 21 assists and nine goals for the Rayders, while Way

BOYS BASKETBALL

Rayders and Ramblers well represented on LMC boys team

DREW KOCHANNY
(231) 439-9345
dkochanny@petoskeynews.com

When a team wins back-to-back conference titles, wins district and regional championships and makes an appearance in the state semifinal game, it's more often than not, because of an abundance of talent.

That exact team this season, and really the past couple of years, was the Boyne City boys' basketball team.

So when the recent 2014-15 All-Lake Michigan Conference teams were released recently, it was no surprise to many that the Ramblers led the way with members and nominations.

Nominations were split into all-conference and honorable mention sections, with the Ramblers being the lone team with three all-conference members.

Class C first team Associated Press all-state recipient Corey Redman led the way after averaging 18 points a game this season for the Ramblers, while being known as one of the area's top lockdown defenders.

Joining Redman for the Ramblers included Cole Butler, a versatile inside-out player who recorded a 16 point, 10 rebound double-double against Grand Rapids NorthPointe Christian in the state semifinal game, along with guard Zach Napont, a senior leader on the court throughout the season.

East Jordan, who the Ramblers had to first get past in their Class C district final, would earn two all-conference members in juniors Jordan Weber and Colin Petrie.

Weber averaged nearly 30 points a game for the Red Devils this season, having the confidence to pull-up anywhere on the court this season, while Petrie provided consistent scoring and assists in the lineup.

Charlevoix's Austin Putman, a bruiser inside for the Rayders, and teammate

Walker Drost, who ran the point and gave teams fits with his quickness, also joined Putman on the all-conference team.

Along with the three area schools, Elk Rapids' Cole Walker and Shae Somers, Carson Burmeister of Grayling and Alex Schuster of Kalkaska would earn all-conference.

Harbor Springs sophomore Noah Erxleben would pickup honorable mention honors, as would Dalton Gardner and Tanner Kruzel of Boyne City; Nate Moon of Charlevoix; Collin Bajko and Thomas Brandell, East Jordan; Adam Trautman and Marty Raymond, Elk Rapids; Scout Tobin, Grayling; and Kameron Cavanaugh of Kalkaska.

Members for Traverse City St. Francis were not yet submitted for either all-conference or honorable mention.

GIRLS BASKETBALL

Rams lead LMC girls team, Rayders pickup three honors

DREW KOCHANNY
(231) 439-9345
dkochanny@petoskeynews.com

The turnaround for the Harbor Springs girls basketball team was a long time coming.

After a 4-16 season the year before, the talent and skill the Rams had shown in flashes of over the years, turned into results on the court.

A Class C district championship and 16-8 record, 10-4 in Lake Michigan Conference play, now the ones who got it done this season are collecting on the postseason hardware.

The 2014-15 All-Lake Michigan Conference teams were recently released, with the Rams earning two all-conference nods and another honorable mention selection.

Seniors Perry Bower and Shallon Grawey each earned all-conference for Harbor Springs, while junior guard Alexa Jensen-Philbrick earned honorable mention.

Bower led the Rams in scoring this season at more than 10 points a game, while Grawey was both an offensive and rebounding force for the Rams.

The team the Rams would have to overcome for a district championship this season would be defending district champion Charlevoix, which rebounded from an early season injury to senior leader Madeline Boss, to turn in an eventual 11-11 finish.

Seniors Alexis Tribfelner and Olivia Storm would each earn All-Lake Michigan honors, while senior Kourtney Putman picked up honorable mention from the league.

Tribfelner became a Swiss Army Knife of a player for the Rayders, leading the team in points, assists and steals, while Storm was one of the conference's better defenders, capable of putting up big offensive numbers.

East Jordan would place Lindsay Schroeder on the all-conference team, after the senior helped lead the Red Devils in scoring, while sophomore Miranda Burks earned honorable mention all-conference.

Boyne City struggled through a rough season this year, but could be in for a turnaround much like the Rams with juniors Celena Brzezinski and Keyston Girlinghouse each picking up honors.

Brzezinski earned all-conference, Girlinghouse, honorable mention.

Also earning all-conference in the league would be Elk Rapids' Nicole Hill; Sam Denno and Natalie Amy of Grayling; and Micah Lajewski and McKenzie Wilkinson of Kalkaska.

Other honorable mention honorees included Kaela McManus, Elk Rapids; Rachel Money, Grayling; and Reyann Homan and Natalie Ryckman, Kalkaska.

Information and players regarding Traverse City St. Francis was not yet available.

The right stuff

Competitive fire molds Northern Michigan Review POY Jordan Weber into more than just a shooter

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343
jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

Jordan Weber's education in competition began at an early age.

For years, in one-on-one games on the concrete against his father, East Jordan coach Darrin Weber, Jordan tasted defeat again and again.

"He didn't let me win even once, and we'd spend hours out there playing," Jordan Weber said with a grin. "I remember getting so frustrated sometimes, I'd just take the ball and go home."

"That was tough, but it taught me that there aren't any shortcuts to winning, you have to put in the work to get there. I think those games are where I got my competitiveness from."

The Webers don't play games of one-on-one anymore, as Darrin said he simply can't compete with his son now.

That leaves him in good company, as there weren't many who could keep Jordan in check this season defensively.

The East Jordan junior scored 27.6 points per game, set the single-game school record in points scored with 45 against Mancelona in the season opener, set single-season school records for points and 3-pointers made and extended his own career school record for 3-pointers made to 209.

In the process, Jordan helped the Red Devils overcome the graduation of first-team all-stater Noah Bacchus and the midseason loss of point guard Donny Cutler on the way to a 17-win season and a return trip to the district final.

It was an impressive transformation for a player who, despite setting the career 3-point record at East Jordan as a freshman and a sophomore, came into this season known more as a great shooter than an all-around player.

"The previous two seasons, with the speed we had at the guard position it was a lot easier for Jordan to spread the defense out on the wing or in the corner and wait for the ball to come to him," Coach Weber said. "We knew with Noah graduating that those shots would be harder to come by this season."

Rather than resting on his laurels, Jordan Weber gave his game a makeover, becoming more adept at pull-up and fadeaway jumpers, improving his handle and learning ways to get his shot off with a defender in his face.

"It's all about creating space," Jordan Weber said. "Just finding a way to get the defender off-balance and open up a window to shoot in, either off the dribble, a screen, or with your body."

The junior is also quick to credit the improvement of his teammates, many of whom he's played with for almost a decade.

"Those guys are never going to get the credit they deserve for this," Jordan Weber said.

"They're like offensive linemen, what they do doesn't show up in the stat sheet but all the screens, the passing and the floor spacing are what allows me to get open."

"My numbers are as much about the things they do as anything I do myself."

Weber's makeover paid immediate dividends, as despite being the primary defensive target for opponents his scoring average jumped nearly 14 points and he made 31 more 3-pointers than his school-record total as a sophomore.

That single season 3-point performance tied him for 10th all time in MHSAA history, with Matt Kitchen of Union-

Although he holds every 3-point record in East Jordan history and his 2014-15 mark is in the top 10 all-time in MHSAA history, junior Jordan Weber was more than just a shooter for the Red Devils, grabbing 6.8 rebounds and playing well on both ends of the floor.

ville-Sebewaing.

Weber improved in other ways as well, becoming a key defender and leading the Red Devils in charges taken, and also grabbing 6.8 rebounds a game despite spending most of his time offensively on the perimeter.

Despite Weber's stellar season, East Jordan fell short of its team goal, losing a 48-45 heartbreaker to Boyne City in the district final to fall short of a repeat championship.

That meant it was back to work for Weber, who hit the gym and the weight room early in the morning following that loss to begin preparing for next year.

On the docket for Weber this offseason is improving his leaping ability, speed and stamina and also adding more post moves to his arsenal to finish better up close.

"I don't think you can ever be satisfied with what you have," Jordan Weber said. "There's always something you can do better, always an area where you can improve and the only way you get there is by putting the work in."

"That's what I learned from my dad and it's what I believe in as a player and a person."

had 12 goals and 13 assists, splitting time between forward and midfield.

On defense, senior Olivia Storm returns as a force on the back line, along with Isabel Hess and Beth Veenstra, both sophomores who played a number of minutes as freshmen last season.

"We have some very soccer motivated girls, who love the game and take it seriously," said Scholten. "I know I'm going to get 110 percent out of them."

In the Rayders opener against Traverse City Central, it was clear Scholten has a number of new pieces to work with in the lineup, with freshmen Rachel and Natalie Nesburg racking up all of the Rayders goals and assists in a 3-2 win.

"They put on an offensive show for us," Scholten said of the Nesburg sisters. "We've gained some freshmen that are varsity level players. Natalie is one of our starting defenders and she came up and filled in for Kylee and did a great job."

Having opened the season with a non-conference win, Scholten again is expecting the best from his team as they begin league play.

"It's a great start and just keep the hard work up and it's just going to keep getting better," he said. "Hopefully we can get back in the position we were in last year. We know it's not going to come easy."

Despite playing in only a couple games to open the 2014-15 season because of a knee injury, Charlevoix senior Madeline Boss picked up all-state honorable mention honors from the Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan this week.

LANSING — When the same names resurface between all-conference, all-area or all-state, the honor for the player becomes even more so justified.

When the 2014-15 Basketball Coaches Association of Michigan released their version of each respective classes all-state teams earlier in the week, the same names talked about in games throughout Northern Michigan during the year and same names placed on all-conference teams at year's end made the cut for one of the state's highest basketball honors.

Area players from Class A to Class D in both boys and girls were grouped into all-state and honorable mention selections, with votes coming from BCAM coach members.

On the boys' side, Boyne City senior Corey Redman and East Jordan junior Jordan Weber received all-state in Class C, while Boyne Falls junior guard Marcus Matelski earned first team in the Class D division.

All three also picked up first team all-state honors from the Michigan Associated Press earlier in March.

Charlevoix junior Austin Putman would earn honorable mention all-state from the BCAM, as well.

On the girls' side, Mackinaw City junior Chelsey Closs has been busy picking up hardware since the season concluded, and can now add first team all-state from the BCAM to her list of achievements.

While she would play in just a couple games this season, Charlevoix senior Madeline Boss would earn honorable mention honors from the BCAM.

If not for a knee injury in the first game of the season, Boss may very well have been named to the first team in her final high school season.

A number of other area standouts also received first team all-state recognition from the BCAM, including Alex Scott of Traverse City West, Brandon Dingman of Mancelona and Cole Walker of Elk Rapids.

Those earning honorable mention include Jackson Schrameyer of Traverse City Central; Shae Somers, Elk Rapids; Logan Huff, Johannesburg-Lewiston; and Gabe Merivether, Bellaire.

Madison Showerman of Jo-Burg and Leighton Koepke of Bellaire would also earn first team for the girls.

Honorable mention area girls included Katie Placek of Traverse City West; Margot Woughter, Traverse City Central; Kelsey Cherwinski, JoBurg; Bekah Myler, Gaylord St. Mary; and Brandy O'Neal, Bellaire.

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Farmers Market will open for the season at 9 a.m. on Thursday, May 7, according to market manager M. Chris Leese. The market will again be located on Bridge Street at East Park for the summer season, which should attract people to downtown Charlevoix each week. It will operate from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. each Thursday through Oct. 1.

The market is set to feature 35 to 45 vendors in the 2015 season. Vendors offer fresh produce, meats, dairy, baked goods and other foodstuffs, as well as prepared foods, artisan wares, flowers and plants.

"The Charlevoix Farmers Market is growing to be a vibrant display of community, and our second year promises to be fun for children and families," Leese said. "Our organization's first year's success is thanks to our passionate vendors, their dedicated patrons and our many local

Charlevoix Township board OKs upgrade to local ball field

Lonnie Allen

CHARLEVOIX — H. Dale Glass baseball field in Charlevoix Township will soon be getting a facelift.

On April 13, township officials approved approximately $12,500 for ball field improvements.

"The material on the ball field is in need of improvements," said Charlevoix Township Supervisor Chuck Center. "Basically we tried to save some money a few years ago on our warning track materials and now we are seeing weeds and degradation to that area."

The warning track is the part of the baseball field that is closest to the wall or fence and is typically made of dirt. Instead of grass or artificial turf like most of the field.

"It's everything, but the grass and the infield," Center said.

Improvements also will be done to the batter boxes, pitcher's mound and infield turf. The materials being used for the warning track upgrades and the other field improvements are similar to material used at Comerica Park, Center said.

In other business, township officials discussed plans to construct a dog park near the township fire department south of Charlevoix.

Jim Malewitz, of Performance Engineers Inc. in Charlevoix, shared the conceptual drawing with officials during their Monday meeting. The approximate size for the park is approximately 28,000 square feet — or little more than a

FERRY DELAYED

The U.S. Coast Guard broke up the ice on Beaver Island's Paradise Bay on Sunday, April 12. The ferry Emerald Isle departed the island for Charlevoix early Monday morning on April 13, beginning the navigation season slated to continue until Dec. 18.

The ferry's return trip to the island was delayed a few hours at the Charlevoix dock because of a small coolant leak on the ship.

A gasket was changed out at the dock in less than 15 minutes; however, the ferry's departure was delayed waiting for a U.S. Coast Guard inspector to drive down from Sault Ste. Marie to approve the gasket repair. She departed at 2:15 p.m. for her return trip to Beaver Island.

County may encourage beachgoers not to smoke

Craig Currier

CHARLEVOIX — After much discussion, Charlevoix County officials said Wednesday they will support measures to discourage smoking on beaches at Whiting and Thumb Lake parks, but won't back a formal ban on lighting up in those areas.

According to one county commissioner, the county's parks committee is expected in the near future to recommend that "no smoking" signs be posted on the two beaches. A designated smoking area away from the beaches could also be established, but without an ordinance or any otherwise stated policy, officials said there would be no enforcement to go scheduled for Monday, April 20, and then hopefully bring it to a vote at a county board meeting two days later.

"I have time to get the recommendation from the county parks committee and then bring it before the commissioners (April 22)," Roloff said. "I think maybe we can move that quick, they know what it's all about. Now it's just getting the recommendation from the parks committee and then we can move right on."

along with the signs.

County commissioner Shirley Roloff said she will propose the move at the next parks committee meeting.

A RECURRING ENVIRONMENTAL ISSUE

A resolution to implement a tobacco ban on county-maintained beaches was proposed in December, but five of the six commissioners declined to support it. The board's decision came after the county parks committee recommended adopting the ban. At the time, board members said the policy infringes on personal freedom.

At the same time, several of the commissioners said they'd back any measures that encourage people not to smoke on the beach, saying it is a public health concern and also a litter problem.

Board chairman Joel Evans, who said from the start he didn't want to institute a ban, reiterated his position at a meeting Wednesday. Evans, though, emphasized that he understands smoking is unhealthy and encouraged Roloff to move forward with the plan to put up signs at the beach.

"I am for putting up signs, as Shirley is," Evans said.

Roloff said she recently met with representatives from the Health Department of Northwest Michigan and believes the agency will supply the signs if county officials approve the proposal. Though Roloff initially supported an ordinance to prohibit smoking on the beaches, she now prefers the new plan.

"I think people will respect those," she said.

"Every time you turn around we're enforcing another policy toward the people and they're getting tired of it. It's like all their freedom has been taken away from them. I don't want to do that, I just want them to be aware. We don't want the butts all over the beaches."

Roloff said the parks committee should also consider whether to designate a smoking area in the parking lot or some other location and place large ashtrays there for cigarette butt disposal.

"We'll talk about it and that's something the parks committee could come up with," she said. "I'd like to see a place for people to go if they want to smoke."

Charlevoix Area Hospital offers new educational series for cancer patients, families

CHARLEVOIX — When a person faces cancer, the main focus, of necessity, is on a cure. What is often overlooked in the maze of medical treatments is the emotional and psychological toll on patients and their families.

Now, evidence shows that problems coping can interfere with medical care for patients and families' adherence to treatment. And emotional issues can cause longer-term complications for both patients and their family.

To help with this Charlevoix Area Hospital is offering a six-week educational series for cancer patients and their families — providing guidance from diagnosis through survivorship.

The series will run from 1-2 p.m. each Monday from May 4 to June 15, in the obstetrics waiting room at the hospital.

The series schedule is as follows:

— May 4 Emotions: Emotional health and coping.

— May 11 Exercise: Optimizing your body for the best outcomes.

— May 18 Stress: Managing in challenging times.

— June 1 Nutrition: Fuel for the journey.

— June 8 Self-image: Look good/Feel better.

— June 15 Survivorship: The journey continues.

Out of 509 school districts in Michigan, Ellsworth ranked number 27. Of the 643 elementary schools, Ellsworth was number five. It is the second straight year that Ellsworth Community School has been recognized as an Academic State Champion.

"Not only were we named Academic State Champs again, but we moved up in the rankings and finished as one of the top five elementary

Celebrate Earth Day by using community designated drug drop-off boxes

Dear Editor,
April 22 is Earth Day 2015. One simple way to help our earth is to properly dispose of any expired or unwanted prescription drugs. In Charlevoix County there are prescription and over-the-counter drug drop-off boxes located at Boyne City, City Hall; Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office in Charlevoix and on Beaver Island; Charlevoix Police Department and East Jordan Police Department. These boxes are very easy to use, safe, free, and environmentally sound way for properly disposing of medications. Protect your child by getting the unused/unwanted prescriptions out of your home and protect Mother Earth by using the drop off box program, by properly disposing of these medications, you will help us keep our rivers and drinking water clean and our communities and families safe. Happy spring.

Councilmember does not say pledge to U.S. Flag

Editor:
There is something about the Charlevoix City Council that I find appalling. Since being elected to represent Charlevoix's 1st Ward, councilmember Jeff Porter does not take part in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America. I served almost eight years on council and know that you must swear an oath of office to uphold the Constitution of the U.S. After watching Mr. Porter stand, but not participate in the pledge at council meetings I questioned him about this at the Monday, March 16, council meeting. His comment to me and those in attendance was "I have taken lots of oaths — that doesn't matter." He went on to say that he was a veteran of the U.S. Army and served in Vietnam. He continued to say that the pledge to the flag was for people who have never served in the armed forces or served in public office for the good of the people not him.

I have never met a veteran, man or woman who served this country that doesn't stand and salute the flag while reciting the pledge. In fact most of these brave men and women would confront someone who doesn't respect flag and country. I don't know what Mr. Porter has trouble with reciting the pledge. Is it the "One Nation under God" he has trouble with? I do know that I am not alone in feeling this is an embarrassment to the city council. Since I questioned Mr. Porter several people have thanked me for addressing this issue. Perhaps Mr. Porter doesn't know that people die daily trying to come in to this free country of ours. I am proud of my country and very thankful to those who fought and died keeping this a free nation. A nation where we have a voice in making our laws, have freedom of the press, can gather as a church and worship freely, and can keep and bear arms.

And I will proudly stand to Pledge Allegiance to the Flag and this great country for which it stands.

I hope the residents of the city of Charlevoix and the 1st Ward in particular, who love this country as much as I do, will let Mr. Porter know this is an embarrassment to the city council.

If he is not proud of this country he shouldn't have a seat on city council, think about that residents of Charlevoix, should Mr. Porter choose to run again.

Greg Stevens
Charlevoix

Editors note: The March 16, Charlevoix City Council minutes reflect councilmember Porter's response to Stevens. Councilmember Porter believes that it is an individual decision whether or not to participate. Porter said he spent six years in the army serving in this country during Vietnam and that "pledging allegiance to your country is one thing and doing something for your country is another thing."

LETTERS POLICY

Readers are encouraged to write letters to the editor, addressing pertinent topics of community interest. The Courier editor reserves the right to edit or reject letters for length, correct grammar, libel and content. Letters to the editor must be signed by the author, and the name of the author will appear with published letters. Letters should only have one author, but we will accept up to three separate signatures on a letter. We do not publish unsigned letters. Letters should be typed, double-spaced, and not exceed 450 words. The deadline for letters is 5 p.m. the Friday before publication. An address and daytime phone number should accompany the letter for verification purposes. Send letters to: Charlevoix Courier, 112 Mason St., Charlevoix, MI, 49720, fax to (231) 547-4992 or e-mail at news@charlevoixcourier.com.

To publish or not to publish?

Every now and then, as a journalist, I get myself in a difficult position, or have a problem to which there is no easy way to address it. In March, I decided to not publish a letter in the Charlevoix Courier, after telling the person who submitted the letter that I would.

For the record, I do have the right to decline publishing a letter to the editor. We also reserve the right to edit for accuracy, clarity and civility. Personal complaints or attacks, poetry, plagiarized material, religious essays or submissions from organized letter-writing campaigns will not be published.

These standards for publishing a letter should not discourage public engagement with the newspaper. I believe a letter to the editor provides ordinary citizens a place to offer suggestions, make recommendations and to make known their respective constructive criticisms when they believe an action or an event needs changing.

Normally, I would not go into a long explanation about submitting a letter to the editor, but since I am publishing this letter, I feel I need to make some things clear about my hesitation.

In the letter, the writer explains his feelings about a Charlevoix City council member, who does not participate in the pledge of allegiance to the flag of the United States.

In my research on this topic, I have realized how much saying the pledge means to people on each side of the issue, especially in our schools. I couldn't believe how many articles I came across, some with good arguments for and some with good arguments against saying the pledge.

Reciting the pledge may not be legally required in the U.S., but more and more it's become culturally and socially expected. I understand a person's feelings about the pledge and how they feel it is important to their own patriotism. As political and cultural issues separate us, the United States flag and the Pledge of Allegiance also binds people together, but as a people, should we condemn someone for not saying it? No.

A person has not committed an unpatriotic act, violated city council rules, the state constitution and the U.S. Constitution, by not reciting the pledge. While the pledge of allegiance is a part of the Charlevoix City Council agenda and it marks the opening of council meetings, whether or not anybody participates, whether that be a council member or a member of the audience is a personal choice.

A choice that should not face public scrutiny. America is filled with multiple ethnic groups, religions and diverse beliefs. Do we condemn everyone who believes differently than us? America's founding ideal was the principle of individual rights. Nothing more—and nothing less. A person not reciting the pledge has a constitutional right to not participate.

As a veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps, I believe as Americans, we should not single people out because we disagree how they express their patriotism. I may not agree with you, but I respect your belief and to me that is what I served for. To protect the rights not based on unlimited majority rule, but on individual rights, which were not to be alienated by majority vote or minority plotting.

The only answer anyone should give when asked about not saying the pledge of allegiance is "I don't have to."

My feeling is, if patriotism is important to us then we must first remember that our freedom requires freedom of choice. Freedom of religion and freedom of expression die when we fail to guarantee freedom from coercion and the freedom to remain silent.

Ear to the Ground: Saying Goodbye

One of the sadder things about having lived somewhat beyond the biblical three score and ten is having to say goodbye to friends. Last week, I said goodbye to a friend, Parris Halverson died. I think Parris would have approved of that sentence. He was not much for euphemisms.

Parris was born in Milwaukee and spent his childhood in Charlevoix. Early adulthood was in Washington State, where he fished, hunted, joined the marines, married and was an apprentice pipe-fitter. I did not meet Parris until about 25 years ago. When Sharon and I began spending time in Charlevoix, I joked that we could not go anywhere in Northern Michigan without meeting one or more of her cousins. Parris was one of those numerous cousins, although he lived in Washington State at that time. Parris had lost touch with the Michigan relatives until Sharon and I tracked him down while we were at the University of Washington in Seattle. Parris returned to

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Charlevoix for good shortly after that.

I got to know Parris mostly by sitting in a boat with him fishing for salmon and lake trout.

■ Almost everything I know about fishing on lake Michigan, I learned from Parris. I still proudly own two boxes of fishing tackle that he gave me, much of it very useful, and some of it incredibly unusual.

It would be fair to say that Parris was an interesting man. He was not what you might call formally educated, but he was certainly well-read. You would not want to get into a trivia contest with Parris. He knew more odd and unusual bits of information than almost anyone I have ever known. He would have been a wonderful college student, but never had time for the usual educational tracks.

Parris had worked on fishing boats and in Texas oil fields. In Charlevoix, he did both decorative and useful metalwork. And if there was something that needed doing that he did not already know how to do, he would give it a serious and mostly successful try.

I am surprised that Parris lasted as long as he did. Oceans of beer and mountains of unfiltered camel cigarettes only seemed to keep him mostly healthy until lately. I could not recommend that to just anyone, but for Parris it worked in a joyful way.

Finally there are the only memories and artifacts. Parris filled a lot of Charlevoix with memories, and a few artifacts, which he, of course never signed. He is immortalized in John Gierich's 1999 fishing book, "Standing in the Water," and his metal works in our parks, on our bridge and in driveway gates he designed and built.

You done good, Parris. We will miss you.

Stage of school gym on Mason Street, now library stacks, where Sgt. York spoke.

Sgt. Alvin York was the most famous American name to come out of World War I. Born in a two-room cabin in Tennessee in 1887, the third of 11 children, York lived a hard-scrabble life up until the time he served in the war. He made his name in France after his shooting abilities and incredible bravery resulted in the capture of 132 German troops. York's exploits brought him the Medal of Honor, the French Croix de Guerre and Legion of Honor, eventually totaling 50 decorations. Gradually his fame began to spread and reached its apogee in the 1941 film "Sergeant York," which won star Gary Cooper an Academy Award. Always a deeply devout man, York promoted religious good works, especially for underprivileged children, and did some preaching himself. In late 1932, Alvin York came to Charlevoix where, from the stage in the school gymnasium on Mason Street, he lectured to a large crowd on "Why I Am For Prohibition." Apparently his advocacy wasn't influential enough because the hugely unpopular and ineffective 18th Amendment was repealed in December the following year.

Ten years later he retired from Gradall, met and then married his sister's collegiate roommate Anna Kiel. In 1987, Ray brought Anna to his beloved cottage in Northern Michigan where he spent the next 11 years enjoying life on the lake with Anna, his children and grandchildren. Anna passed away in 2000. What to know before the morels grow

Matt Mikus
(231) 439-9394
mmikus@petoskeynews.com

It could be about a month before morels start to grow, but there's plenty of time to brush up on morel facts before heading out to a favorite spot.

Most other mushrooms grow in the fall, making morels a unique species to hunt in the spring. The season typically starts within the last week of April or the first week of May, but it varies every season.

"It all depends on soil temperature and moisture, and the conditions can vary county wide," said Marilyn Smith, a mycologist, or mushroom scientist, from Petoskey. She's taught lessons at North Central Michigan College and the University of Michigan Biological Station.

Luke Nave is a soil scientist at the University of Michigan Biological Station, and an avid morel hunter. He's heard plenty of different rules on when the morel season starts. Some say the morel season starts when dandelions bloom, others wait until the oak trees are the size of a mouse ear. As a scientist, Nave doesn't put a lot of stock into these rules.

"Some people have a specific way they use to consider starting to look for morels," Nave said. "We know they tend to happen together, but how do we know the same factors that cause dandelions to bloom are also causing morels to fruit? When you don't know the why of something, you have to be a little cautious of the inference."

Smith agrees, saying that those measures aren't exactly sound science.

"It comes down to having a good spot and keeping an eye on it," she said.

Morels have a unique ability to be both mycorrhizal, where the mushroom grows in connection to a tree root, or saprobic, where they grow in association to decaying materials. Some morel species prefer to grow near the base of specific trees, like an ash, elm or poplar trees.

Morel hunters are known for keeping their favorite spots a guarded secret, but Nave said there's a good chance to find morels in any location.

"I'm a big believer that morels grow where they want and when they want," he said.

He's had some success finding morels in more mature forests, and where there's evidence of a dead or dying group of trees. A few species tend to grow around recent burn-site locations, though they sometimes carry a lot of soot and sand in their grooves.

"Things that might cause a lot of tree roots to die, like clear cuts or fires, that can cause a lot of morels to fruit. It's hard to forecast that kind of thing, but where you have tree roots dying, morel picking is usually better."

But Smith stresses the importance of knowing true morels. Confusing one with a beefsteak mushroom, which looks similar but tend to be reddish-brown and larger, could be a dangerous mistake.

"Look for one continuous unit that's hollow inside. If you cut a beefsteak in half, it'll look lobed inside, without a hollow interior. We don't have many poisonous mushrooms in Northern Michigan, but that's one of them," Smith said. "Never eat a beefsteak. Some people claim it's all right to eat, but don't risk it."

DNA sequencing reveals more morel species

With newer technologies, it's becoming easier for scientists to learn more about different species of morels. Smith said DNA sequencing shows that there are many more species than previously thought, even though two different species could look the same.

"People used to consider different colored morels as different species, but they can all be in the same species. With new technology, we can tell if a species prefers to grow in certain conditions," Smith said.

Nave said that most morel hunters, unless they're interested in knowing the Latin name of the species, will probably not worry about the new discoveries made through DNA sequencing. They probably continue to identify the morels by their color, such as black or yellow morels, when the color has little bearing on which species they found.

"Naming a species used to be a relationship that you could see with your eyes. It's now possible to use these tools to rename and reclassify different morels. For amateurs, it's going to remain that we only identify species by what we see. I mean, I'm a scientist, and I don't have a molecular tool to determine the species."

He adds that looking at the species' DNA will help scientists understand more about where and how morels grow.

Charlevoix native creates new coffee business

BY SEAN MILLER
Special to the Courier

What started as a personal journey to find the best possible cup of coffee for Charlevoix native Kara Eggebrecht and her husband, Wesley, ended with a bike and a delicious brew.

Now living in Detroit, the couple are creating Tomo Coffee Co., an ingenious idea to get cold brewed coffee to the people of Detroit. Together, they have come up with the idea of a bike that they can ride around and serve coffee out of at different markets and festivals.

"We got started last fall when my husband was messing around with different ways of making coffee and coffee concentrate," said Kara Eggebrecht.

"We found that cold brewing worked the best. We started at home and it eventually grew to us giving what we made to our family and friends and now we have started our own company," she said.

To help with their idea, they have created a crowdfunding campaign through Kickstarter. Their goal is to get enough money to fund their bike so they can sell ready to drink cold brew at different areas in Detroit.

If completely funded, their bike will be one of a kind, she said. Sticking to Detroit businesses, they have reached out to Detroit Bikes, Motorless City Bikes, and Woodward Throwbacks to help create the final product. The bike will be able to hold two full kegs that will be filled with their ready to serve coffee from tap.

"The bike will serve 16 oz drinks and we will also be selling 32 oz bottles of our coffee concentrate that people can take home to make their own brews," Eggebrecht said.

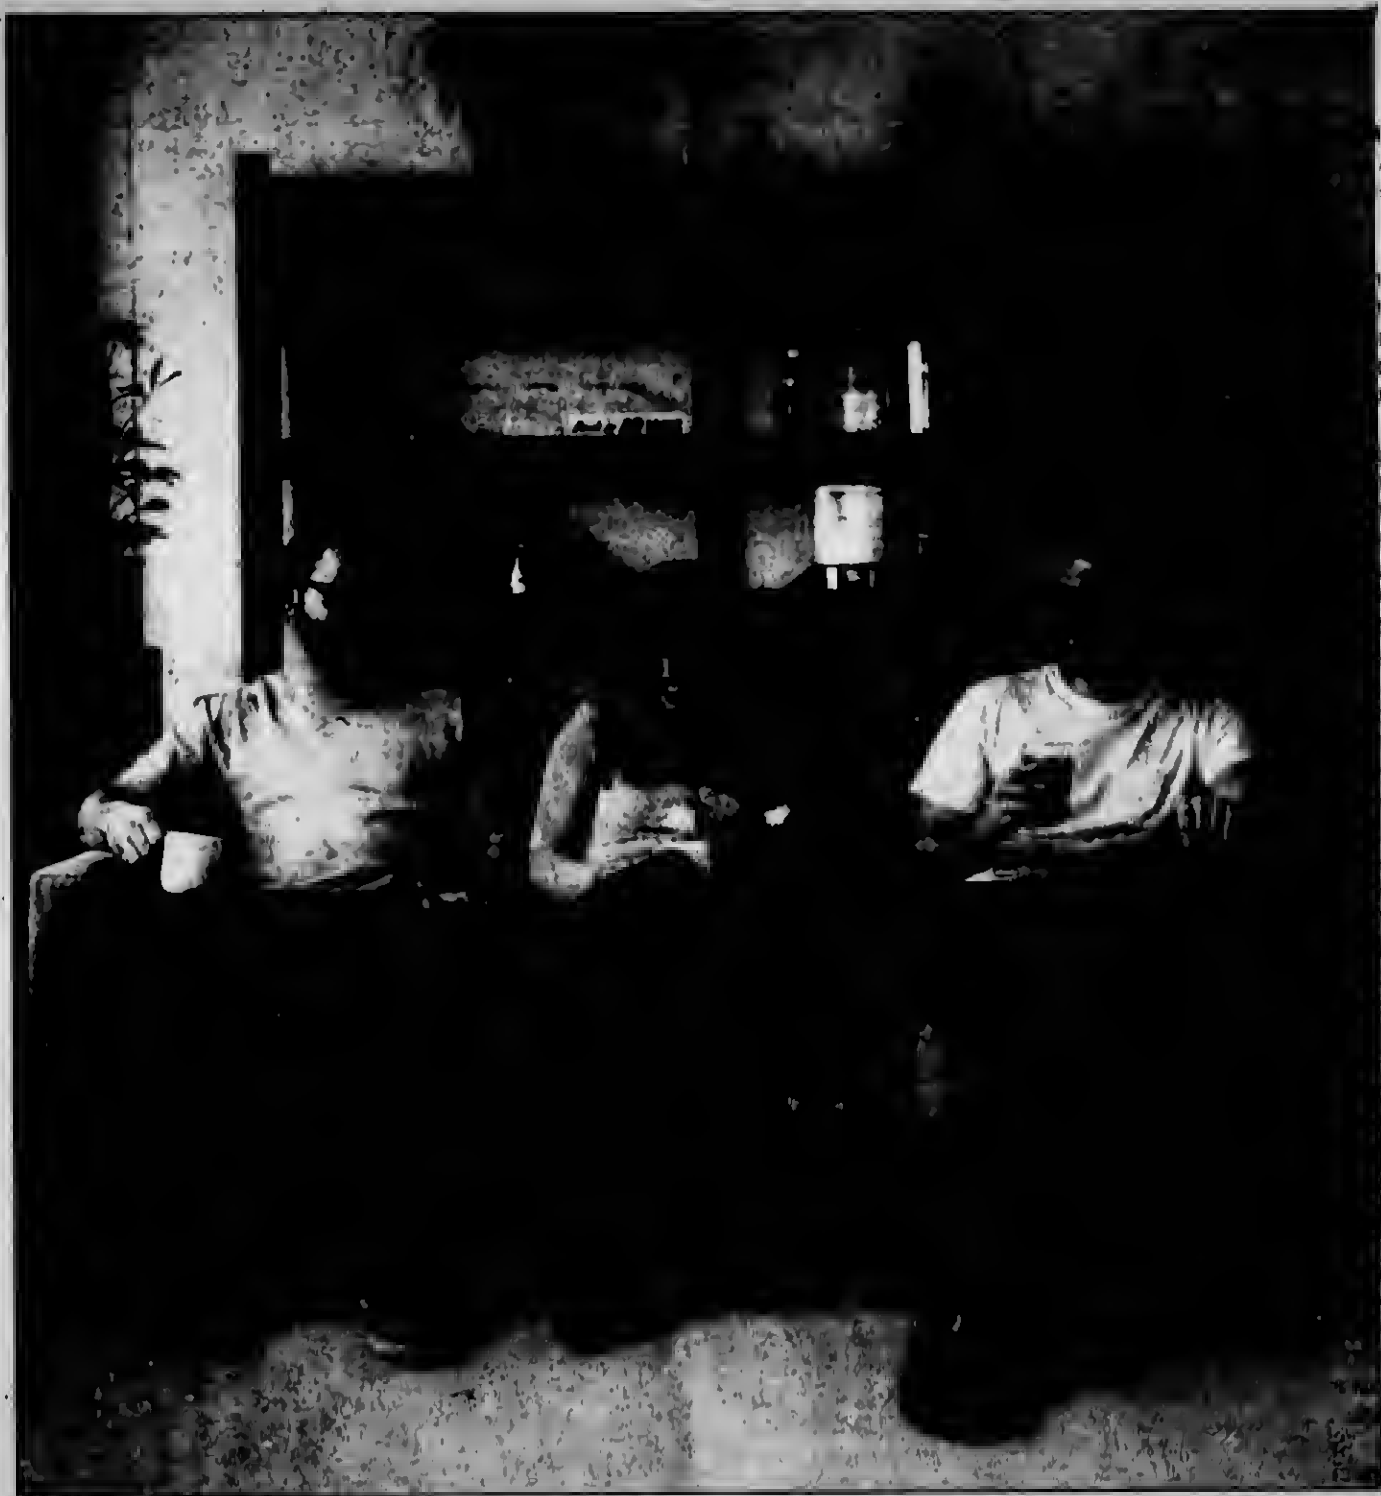

Cold brew coffee is produced differently than traditional drip coffee is, she said. The process requires coffee beans to soak in cold water. After the beans have soaked for approximately 18 hours, then the beans are filtered out of the liquid making the coffee concentrate. The concentrate is then used to create the beverage which can be served hot or cold.

Something that makes Tomo Coffee even more unique is that the Eggebrechts will be rotating what kind of coffee beans they use.

Occasionally we will use a different beans when we brew," Eggebrecht said. "Our brew will have the origin and the type of bean listed on our bottles giving coffee drinkers different varieties of flavors when consuming Tomo."

The Eggebrechts are close to reaching their goal on Kickstarter to make their dream a success, she said. To help them, go to kickstarter.com/projects/1954133344/tomo-cold-brew-bike.

The Eggebrechts will be selling coffee on their bike during the summer on Saturdays at the Eastern Market in Detroit and the market in Birmingham on Sundays.

Winter is over, but snow may still linger

MARK JOHNSON
(909) 732-1111
mjohnson@gaylordheraldtimes.com

Local meteorologists believe that winter in Michigan may finally be over as warmer temperatures become more prevalent this week.

Scott Rozanski, meteorologist at the National Weather Service station in Gaylord, did not rule out occasional snowfall for the rest of the month, but said it is safe to say another brutal winter has come to an end.

"We're not out of the woods, but winter is gone," he said. "Highs will go into the 60s routinely through the end of the month, but there is still potential for snowfall."

He said snowfall accumulations of up to 5 or 6 inches would not be out of the question over the next four to six weeks and it would not be a surprise if temperatures dipped down again with cold air not too far away.

For the past several years, since around 2013, Rozanski said a trough of cold air has sat above the Great Lakes, with a bridge running from Alaska to California opposite, leading to above average temperatures in those areas. This trend constantly keeps cold air nearby, making periods of cold weather over the rest of the month a possibility.

With the exception of the threat for the cold air, Rozanski expects typical seasonal conditions to make their way into Gaylord and Northern Michigan, with 60-degree temperatures becoming more and more common.

With the snowfall experienced last week, Rozanski said total snowfall for Gaylord was pushed to 137 inches for the winter, just below the longterm average of 144 inches. That snowfall may be increased though as snow has fallen in April in years past and May as well, with almost 3 inches in May 2013.

"Snow in April is common," Rozanski said. "No snow is extremely uncommon."

As a whole, the snowfall experienced this past winter and the winter as a whole was not as severe as past years.

Rozanski said, with the exception of January and February, this past winter really wasn't too bad at all.

"December of this year was extremely mild compared to December 2013, which was brutally cold," he said. "This winter, most places had a green Christmas. Even for us, we only had about an inch, but that's about it."

February was a completely different story.

February 2015 was the coldest February on record for Gaylord and the coldest month since the National Weather Service office in Gaylord began collecting data in 1951, with an average of 3.2 degrees.

Despite the harsh conditions throughout January and especially February, Rozanski said this winter was pretty average and believes that will carry over to a pretty normal spring.

This week, he predicted temperatures to be about 10 degrees above normal, with highs getting into the 50s and 60s. Next week, however, temperatures are expected to dip back down, to 10 degrees below normal.

This fluctuation of temperatures is something he expects to remain constant for the near future.

"There is a lot of cold air waiting to come south," he said. "It won't be until the middle of May that this threat of cold air coming down disappears."

For now, it appears it is safe to put the snowblowers away, but it might be smart to keep the winter coat out of storage for the next few weeks.

Michigan DNR says extreme winter conditions cause fish kills

LANSING — The Department of Natural Resources reminds everyone that after the heavy ice and snow cover melt on Michigan's lakes this spring, it may be common to discover dead fish or other aquatic creatures. This year's winter with heavy snow, extreme cold temperatures and thick ice cover will create conditions that cause fish and other creatures such as turtles, frogs, toads and crayfish to die.

"Winterkill is the most common type of fish kill," said DNR fisheries habitat specialist Chris Freiburger. "Given the conditions this winter with thick ice and deep snow cover, it will be particularly common in shallow lakes and streams and ponds. These kills are localized and typically do not affect the overall health of the fish populations or fishing quality."

Winterkill occurs during especially long, harsh winters. Shallow lakes with excess aquatic vegetation and soft bottoms are particularly prone to this problem. Fish and other aquatic life typically die in late winter, but may not be noticed until a month after the ice leaves the lake because the dead fish and other aquatic life are temporarily preserved by the cold water.

"Winterkill begins with distressed fish gasping for air at holes in the ice and often ends with large numbers of dead fish that float as the water warms in early spring," said Gary Whelan, DNR fisheries research manager. "Dead fish and other aquatic life may appear fuzzy because of secondary infection by fungus, but the fungus was not the cause of death. The fish actually suffocated from a lack of dissolved oxygen from decaying plants and other dead aquatic animals under the ice."

Winter fish kills are the most common.

Dissolved oxygen is required by fish and all other forms of aquatic life. Once the daylight is greatly reduced by thick ice and deep snow cover, aquatic plants stop producing oxygen and many die. The bacteria that decompose organic materials on the bottom of the lake use the remaining oxygen in the water. Once the oxygen is reduced and other aquatic animals die and start decomposing, the rate that oxygen is used for decomposition is additionally increased and dissolved oxygen levels in the water decrease even more, leading to increasing winterkill.

For more information on fish kills in Michigan, visit the Michigan DNR website and access the Fisheries Division's fish kills.

If you suspect a fish kill is caused by non-natural causes, call the nearest DNR office or Michigan's Pollution Emergency Alert System at (800) 292-4706.

"We will make some changes to the drawings after getting feedback from the township on what they would like to see," Malewitz said.

Because the proposed dog park is in an area near the township water tower and well field, Malewitz had a preliminary discussion with the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality before going forward. DEQ officials suggested having protections around the wells and the tower.

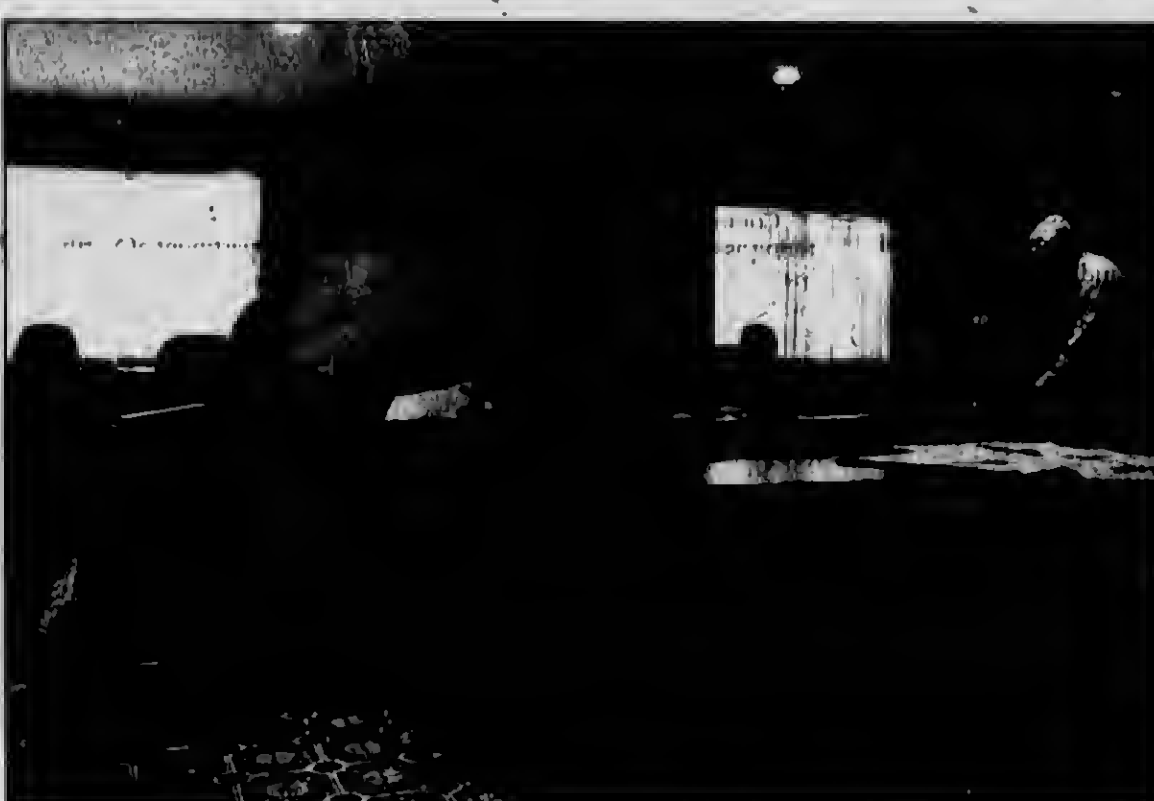

"Having a park at this location will bring more people to the area," said Brian Thurston, district engineer in Cadillac office for the DEQ. "That likely could increase the chance of vandalism in the area. My discussions with them have been brief, but safety is a concern."

After discussions with Thurston about the park, Malewitz made some changes to the parks concept drawing and will discuss the park concept with DEQ officials before the next township meeting in May.

"We did add some additional fencing around the pump house and the water tower to address those safety concerns," Malewitz said.

Township officials are expected to review updated drawings and have further discussion on the proposed dog park at their next regular meeting at 7 p.m. on Monday, May 12, at the township offices, 12491 Waller Road.

Jim Malewitz, of Performance Engineers Inc. in Charlevoix, discusses project drawings with the Charlevoix Township for a proposed dog park in the township. The dog park would be located near the township fire hall south of Charlevoix.

to learn about their food, enjoy music and meet with local food producers," she said.

Some of the special events people will be able to attend at the market this year is the Green Market Day on June 11, the Healthy and Fit Market Day on June 18, and Sauce it Up on July 16 for the barbecue lover.

"By offering these events we hope more people will visit our downtown market," said Annie Doyle, Charlevoix Community Economic Development director. "Our goal is to expand on last year's success with more locally grown food vendors along with the option to shop our wonderful downtown businesses."

The Charlevoix Farmers Market accepts various payment methods including cash, debit/credit, Senior Project Fresh/Market FRESH, SNAP Bridge Card and Double-up Food Bucks, Leese said.

"If you don't have cash on you it will be no problem," Leese said. "Come to the market manager booth with your payment method and I will exchange that for market tokens that can be used at the vendors in the market."

The Double Up program matches the value of SNAP purchases made at participating sites with additional dollars to spend on fresh, regionally grown produce.

For instance, a family that spends $10 in SNAP benefits at a participating farmers market or grocery store receives an additional $10 in Double Up Food Bucks to purchase Michigan-grown fruits and vegetables.

"The Double Up program helps families stretch their food budget to buy fruits and vegetables while supporting Michigan's farmers," Leese said. "The program received a $5 million grant this year because of its success. We're excited to have it at our market giving families more access to fresh produce."

FLOWERS

The flower basket sales provide financial assistance for training and other educational programs for the nursing chapter, Hadley said.

The money raised stays locally and helps oncology nurses in Northern Michigan," Hadley said.

Having the basket sale at the spring makes sense since May is Oncology Nurse Month, Hadley said.

"People can purchase the hanging flower baskets early and give them as Mother's Day gifts," Hadley said. "The flower baskets are a great way to support nurses during the month of May."

Chris Helstrom, owner of Bridge Street Blooms said when he heard about the fundraiser and how successful it has been for the nurses in Traverse City, he thought it was a great way to help the local oncology nurses.

"My wife Mary and I love Charlevoix and want to give back to this community in anyway possible for us," Helstrom said. "We are excited to participate in this fundraiser with the oncology nurses from our area."

The nurses will sell basket certificates for $30 each. People then return the certificate to Bridge Street Blooms and pick up a basket.

For each basket sold Helstrom will donate $8 to the nursing chapter. Helstrom also will donate 10 percent of any sales from people buying additional items when they redeem their flower basket certificate.

"We feel when people come to redeem the certificate if they buy more we can give back more," Helstrom said. "This is a good cause to support."

To purchase a hanging flower basket certificate, people can contact Hadley at (231) 675-7131, Mindy Shock at (231) 838-5872 or Nancy Russell at (231) 330-4968.

Spring cleaning made easy

A time of rebirth — and spring cleaning!

Spring is finally here. The days are getting longer, and people are throwing open their windows to enjoy the fresh air and hanging out laundry to dry in the sunshine. Speaking of washing, the arrival of spring also means it's time to clean house. It's time to sort, dust, sweep, air out, wash and scrub the house from top to bottom. Are you ready?

The list may seem daunting, but just take it one at a time: light fixtures and ceiling fans; screens and windows; drapes and blinds; cabinets and closets; appliances and upholstered furniture; carpets and floors; shed and barbecue; pool and garden. But if it really does seem like too much, you can call in the pros for some of the chores. It may be best to leave the carpets and rugs to the experts to ensure they're thoroughly cleaned and dried. Similarly, some upholstery and curtain fabrics require dry cleaning. In other words, you may want to have your drapes, duvets or upholstered furniture cleaned professionally.

You can also ask your family for help. If your kids are big enough to clean windows or the medicine cabinet, they could still sort and tidy their drawers and closets. Think of all those clothes and toys they've outgrown and that other children can make use of.

Do you hate anything to do with washing and cleaning? Or perhaps you just don't have the time to do everything yourself? You could always entrust your spring cleaning, in whole or in part, to a housecleaning service. Your home will be as clean as a whistle in the blink of an eye.

Rayders split with rival Boyne City in key LMC game

jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

BOYNE CITY — The stakes were pretty high for an early-season doubleheader when the Boyne City and Charlevoix baseball teams met on Tuesday in Boyne City.

Both the Ramblers and Rayders entered the year expecting to be in the hunt for the Lake Michigan Conference title, and both teams lived up to that billing against each other on Tuesday, splitting the doubleheader in two tight, well-played games.

Charlevoix picked up the win in the first game on the arm of ace pitcher Nate Moon, who threw a complete game shutout, striking out four, walking one and giving up one hit.

Moon threw 63 percent of his 64 pitches for strikes in the win, bouncing back from a rough outing in the Rayders' season-opener on Saturday.

"Nate was just on today," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "I was curious how he was going to come back today after Saturday, and he came out throwing strikes and getting himself ahead in every at-bat."

"It was his game from start to finish."

Charlevoix broke a scoreless tie in the top of the third when Noah Certa scored on an RBI single by Will Telgenhof, and Telgenhof added an insurance run in the top of the fifth, reaching home from third base on a Boyne City error.

Certa finished 2 for 3 at the plate, and Hunter Cox and Brad Klinger each added a hit as well for the Rayders.

Junior Derek Willis had Boyne City's lone hit and also took the loss on the mound, giving up one earned run, striking out four and walking two in five innings of work.

"If you hold a good hitting team like Charlevoix to two runs, you expect to win, but we just couldn't get anything going with our bats," Boyne City coach Mark Pontoni said. "Let's face it, Nate Moon is one of the best pitchers in Northern Michigan; he keeps kids off-balance at the plate, throws hard and is a great competitor, and you saw that today."

Boyne City's offense came to life in the nightcap, taking advantage of eight free bases with timely hitting to drive in runs, then holding on late for the 7-3 win.

Junior Tanner Kruzel got the Rambler offense going in the first inning, hitting a line-drive single that drove in two runs and helped Boyne City jump out to a 3-0 lead.

The Ramblers would add two more runs on Charlevoix errors in the third, and RBI singles by sophomore Dom Archie and pinch hitter Zach Napont in the top of the fifth stretched the Rambler lead even further.

Sophomore Christian Matye hit an RBI single in the fourth and the sixth innings to help the Rayders stay in it, and Charlevoix had the bases loaded and the tying run at the plate with one out in the final inning.

But the Rayders flew out to right field, and Napont made the throw to home plate in time to get the tag on Moon and seal the win.

Senior Max Cuper also batted in a run for the Ramblers, who turned three hits into seven runs.

"We didn't play well defensively and didn't throw enough strikes in Game 2," Telgenhof said. "Boyne City is a tough team; they're not going to make mistakes, and they're going to take advantage of any mistakes you make."

CHARLEVOIX — The skies would eventually clear, clouds part and courts dry up for the Charlevoix girls' tennis team.

That day turned out to be Tuesday for the Rayders, becoming the opening day for Charlevoix to take the courts.

That contest would come against rival Boyne City, who was opening the season as well.

At the end of their Lake Michigan Conference meeting, the final swing would go to the Rayders in a 5-3 victory.

"This is our first outing and with only four returning players, I am so proud of the team, each and every girl," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "It was a great learning experience by all the girls."

Randall would pickup wins throughout her lineup, but opened the day with a pair of victories from her No. 1 and No. 2 singles members, key points in the win.

At No. 1 singles, Rae Claramunt defeated Boyne City's Carly Kruzel, 6-2, 6-2, then at No. 2 singles, Jessica Parno defeated Bri Brunell, 6-4, 6-4.

Boyne City would get a win from Sam Qrbani at No. 3 singles, as she defeated Becca Moon, 6-1, 6-1.

The Ramblers would also even things out at singles when No. 4 player, Kyrá Brazell defeated Charlevoix's Margaret Puris, 6-0, 6-0.

Rayders stay perfect with shutout win against Boyne City

CHARLEVOIX — Finding the back of the net has been as far away from a problem for the Charlevoix girls' soccer team as worrying about the playing conditions being too dry this season.

On Monday, both the goal scoring and wet conditions continued for the Rayders, as they picked up their fourth victory of the season in their Lake Michigan Conference matchup.

The Rayders defeated Boyne City 9-0, improving to 4-0 overall, 3-0 in league play.

No matter the conditions for the Rayders this season, freshman Rachel Nesburg has had no issues scoring and would start the game off with a goal off a throw from midfielder Kylee Scholten.

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix freshmen Rachel and Natalie Nesburg haven't waited long to make an impact on the Rayders' varsity girls' soccer team. The sisters have a combined seven goals and two assists to help Charlevoix to a quick 4-0 record.

Both sisters are three sport athletes, (cross-country, basketball and soccer) with soccer being their favorite. Their love for the game started at an early age, and grew from there.

"I started playing while I was in kindergarten," Rachel said. "I played because my friends played, and I thought that it might be fun."

Natalie, one of the triplets born into the Nesburg family (they have a brother, Danny), started playing the game at the same time.

"I also started playing in kindergarten, and I started playing because my sister played," Natalie said.

The duo have their own respectable reasons on what they like most about soccer.

"I like being on a team because it makes me closer with all my friends," Rachel said. "I also enjoy making new friends, which is what being on a sports team is all about."

"My favorite thing about soccer is defense and I like playing it because it keeps me in good shape," Natalie said. "It's a good feeling to help my goalie out and defend the goal."

Both girls have separate, but similar pre-game routines.

"Before each game I get lots of sleep, drink lots of water and think of a solid strategy that will lead to success," Rachel said.

Natalie's routine is a little bit different.

"Before a soccer game to get ready I just do the pre-game rituals. They tend to work well, so I stick with them."

The Nesburg sisters have been on the same team for a long time now, so they naturally understand one another.

The Rayder girls soccer team has for years been known for its good chemistry, and both Rachel and Natalie have witnessed that in their short time on the team.

"What I like about this team is how encouraging they all are," Rachel said. "They know what needs to be done to win."

Teamwork is something every sport needs. In soccer, teamwork is everything. "I like how we all work together," Natalie said. "It's one thing we need to have to achieve success. It is without a doubt important."

Whether people like it or not, everyone has someone who has inspired them throughout their life. Both Rachel and Natalie look up to their mom, Annette, as their inspiration.

"My mom inspires me because she's so strong and I try and be just like her in everything that I do," Rachel said.

Annette, who is currently battling breast cancer, has been an inspiration to not only her kids, but the whole community of Charlevoix.

"My mom is just so amazing," Natalie said. "The way she fights this disease is incredible. She's very supportive of everything we do."

Dalton Gardner picked up the win in Game 2 for the Ramblers after striking out the side in one inning of relief in Game 1, and he maintained that form in the second contest, striking out four and walking one to help the Ramblers hold on.

Moon finished with two hits, Kenen Borths added a double, and Austin Putman went one for two as well for Charlevoix in Game 2.

Borths took the loss on the mound, striking out three and walking five, and Cox and Putman pitched three innings of relief, combining to strike out three and walk two.

Both the Ramblers (3-2, 1-1 LMC) and the Rayders (2-2, 1-1) have quick turnarounds, as Boyne City travels to East Jordan for an LMC doubleheader on Thursday, April 16, while Charlevoix makes a down-state trip to the Muskegon area for two games on Friday and Saturday.

Rayders split with Shepherd

SHEPHERD — An 8-0 loss to downstate power and host Shepherd in the first half of a season-opening doubleheader on Saturday showed just how far the Charlevoix baseball team has to go to reach its goals this year.

But an 11-7 bounce-back win in the second game showed what the Rayders might be capable of if they can harness their skill properly.

In the opening loss, Charlevoix had five hits to Shepherd's seven, but couldn't overcome a rough second inning where the Bluejays racked up all eight of their runs to pull away.

Shepherd, which won Division 3 state titles in 2009 and 2010, got two home runs in that inning, including a grand slam.

Noah Certa went 1 for 2 at the plate to lead Charlevoix in the loss, and Will Tegenhof, Nate Moon, Christian Matye and Hunter Cox all singled as well.

Moon struck out three, walked four and gave up five hits in two and a third innings to take the loss, and Kenen Borths pitched three and two-thirds innings of relief, striking out two, walking one and giving up two hits.

The Rayders came back strong in the second game, with Moon jump-starting the offense with a two-run single as part of a four run first inning for Charlevoix.

Certa added to the lead with a two-run home run in the top of the second inning as the Rayders tacked on three more runs to take an early 7-0 lead, and Charlevoix would add a run to that advantage in the third and fourth innings and bat in two more in the sixth.

Facing an 11-2 deficit in the bottom of the seventh, Shepherd scored five runs to give itself a chance, but Moon came on in relief and shut the door, recording the final three outs to seal a Rayder win.

Will Tegenhof added a two-run single as well for Charlevoix, Devin Largent chipped in an RBI single, and Matye hit a single as well.

Brad Klinger finished 2 for 3 at the plate hitting in the eighth-spot for the Rayders.

Hunter Cox earned the win on the mound for Charlevoix, striking out three, walking six and giving up just one hit in four and a third innings of work.

Austin Putman also pitched an inning and two thirds of relief for Charlevoix, striking out two, walking three and giving up two hits.

Charlevoix (1-1) opens conference play with a big road doubleheader against fellow LMC contender Boyne City on Tuesday, April 14, for its next outing.

TENNIS

All squared heading into the doubles matches, Charlevoix would take three out of four of the pairings to win the overall match.

At No. 1 doubles, Cassie McCraney and Erin Wachler of Charlevoix earned a tie break win over Sydney Fisber and Veronika Johnson of Boyne, as matches came down to 6-3, 5-7, 6-6 and an 11-8 tiebreak.

The match lasted three hours and was definitely an endurance test for each side in an opening match.

At No. 2 doubles, Emily Zabawa and Nicole Swadling of Charlevoix earned a three set, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3 win over Sarah Longcore and Mary Hausler of Boyne City.

The final win for the Rayders would come from Lydia Balyo and Elizabeth Barritt at No. 3 doubles, where they earned a 6-3, 6-2 win over Sabrina Nemcek and Grace Ellwanger of Boyne.

The Ramblers' final point would come in an impressive performance from No. 4 doubles team Leah Calo and Hailey Richards, who earned a 6-1, 6-1 win over Grace Freds and Abby Noirot of Charlevoix.

Senior Elizabeth Way then sent a pass to fellow senior Leah Davis, who connected on a back-keeper just over the seven minute mark.

Nesburg would score for a second time, off the assist of Beth Veenstra.

Scholten added her second assist of the game just under the 20 minute mark, setting up Oda Folkedal for a goal.

Now 4-0 in the first half, Folkedal would get in the giving spirit with a pass to forward Devon Bottomly, who would connect on a goal less than 30 seconds later.

Davis would complete her hat trick on the day with her second goal coming assisted by Scholten, then her third by Bottomly.

Bottomly added another from Scholten at the 38 minute mark of the first half, giving the game a 9-0 final because of the eight goal mercy rule.

Senior Gloria Greene would notch her second shutout of the season in goal.

Rayders blank

Traverse City Liberty

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix girls' soccer team hasn't had it easy in the early going this season.

The Rayders would open with a road trip to Class A Traverse City Central, then on April 9, in their third game of the season, welcome the Traverse City Liberty to Shanahan Field in Charlevoix.

Each posed as a legitimate threat to the Rayders' early record.

Three games in, the Rayders remain blemish free, though, after a 3-0 victory over Liberty, their second Lake Michigan Conference win.

The test the Rayders, 3-0 overall, 2-0 in league, expected from the Liberty would come early, as chances inside the Liberty's end came batted away in the first half, including a near goal from junior midfielder Kylee Scholten, which just grazed over top the net from the right corner.

Still, it was Charlevoix working with the opportunities for most of the half.

"I felt we did a pretty good job keeping the ball in their end for much of the first half limiting Liberty's opportunities," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said.

With enough chances, the ball would finally bounce the Rayders' way, as a near save from Traverse City's keeper turned into a goal opportunity for freshman Rachel Nesburg, in which she'd capitalize

The teams would later head to half with the Rayders in front, 1-0.

With the rain settling in early in the second half, the Liberty would be on the offensive attack.

"They came out hard against us the second half," said Scholten. "We had several nice defensive stops by Isabel Hess, Alex Snabes, Natalie Nesburg and Olivia Storm."

Already with five goals through the first two and a half games, Rachel Nesburg would make it six, taking a pass from sophomore Beth Veenstra and making it a 2-0 lead for the Rayders.

Just over the 27 minute mark of the second half, senior Leah Davis would score her second goal of the season, leaving nothing off her unassisted shot.

The Rayder defense would hold and senior keeper Gloria Greene would come out with the win in net with 21 saves.

"Gloria Greene came up big for us tonight with several nice saves in keeper," added Scholten.

Charlevoix will take the weekend to regroup, before hosting Bohne City in a Lake Michigan matchup on Monday, April 13, at Charlevoix High School.

EAST JORDAN — Monday was the first time the East Jordan, Charlevoix, Harbor Springs and Bohne City track and field teams competed outdoors in the 2015 season, but it didn't look like it.

All four squads put together strong finishes and fast times in the season-opening Lake Michigan Conference meet hosted by East Jordan on Monday. Although the meet wasn't scored, and the News-Review received only partial results, there were several performances worth mentioning.

On the men's side, Charlevoix led the way with six first-place finishes through the 300 meter hurdles, led by Parker Skeel, who won the 300 hurdle race and took first in the 110 hurdles (17.34) as well.

Senior Sam Hovic won the pole vault for the Rayders, clearing 11 feet 6 inches, senior Nick Plude won the 1,600 run and junior Ben Boss won the 400 dash in 55.81.

The Rayders also won the 3,200 meter relay, took second in the 400 relay (46.69) and third in the 800 relay (1:38.03).

Bryan Noirot tied for first place in the long jump (19-0.5) for the Rayders, and Micah Peebles finished third in the 400 dash (56.57) as well.

On the girls side, Harbor Springs was the big winner, taking home six titles through the 300 hurdles.

Charlevoix's 800 meter relay team took third (2:00.30) to lead the Rayders.

Rayders look to surprise with young roster

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

BOYNE CITY — The last two seasons have been kind for the Bohne City softball team, with back-to-back district titles and the first share of an LMC title in program history last season.

But with almost its entire team returning from last year's regional final run, there's a chance that the Ramblers' 2015 campaign will be even more special.

Bohne City graduates one player off a team that shared the LMC title with TC St. Francis and pushed eventual D3 state champion Gladstone in the regional final, but everyone else returns, including a five-player senior class with four four-year and one three-year varsity players.

Third baseman Paige Hombeck, an all-state honoree last season, leads that group, and outfielders Katelyn Banner and Jordan Weiss and second baseman Brooke Fouchia also return for their fourth season with the Ramblers.

Senior Lauren Richards is a three-year player as well for Bohne City, which boasts experience and talent at virtually every position.

"We've got experience, and we've got girls who really love the game and who play a lot of it, whether in season or on travel teams," Bohne City coach Sandy Clausen said. "In most years, you've got three or four players who are really dedicated to the sport, but this season we've got 10, 11 or more who really have that love and show that dedication every day, and that makes a big difference."

While the Ramblers have weapons throughout their lineup, they're just as potent on the mound with returning honorable mention all-state pitcher Emma Shumaker leading the charge.

Shumaker started 24 of 26 games last season and finished with a 1.92 ERA to help the Ramblers claim another district crown.

All of it adds up to a squad with a shot of winning another LMC crown and making a deep tournament run.

It won't be easy, as 2014 co-champ TC St. Francis won't relinquish its share of the crown without a fight, the Ramblers will have to negotiate its schedule with a target firmly on its back and, in the tournament, nemesis Gladstone will likely be waiting for the third straight season.

"We've seen the run that other teams in our school have made in football and basketball, and we're hoping it's our turn," Clausen said. "It's been a special year so far, and we want to do what we can to be a part of that."

HARBOR SPRINGS

Harbor Springs has been on an upward surge for the last couple of seasons, and another push could carry them into the top half of the LMC standings — if it can successfully replace pitcher Brooke Paige.

The graduated senior is now playing at Lakeland College in Wisconsin, and filling her shoes is the single biggest task for Harbor Springs coach Mike Matthews as the Rams try to build on a 15-15 season last year.

"We're going to be a strong hitting team and a strong defensive team, so it really comes down to our pitching," Matthews said. "The talent is there, but we've only got five innings of varsity experience coming back on the mound."

Sophomore Libby Garver returns to lead the Harbor Springs lineup after earning all-region honors as a freshman, and juniors Libby Sylvain and Avery Calnon and senior Kelsey Sydnor will also play a big role at the plate.

On the mound, junior Ashley Burdick and senior Star Hernandez are battling for the job, and the Rams will likely wait to see both in action in a game to make a final decision.

"We're still a pretty young team, with 11 juniors and only half of those girls with a lot of varsity experience," Matthews said. "We won a district game last year, and we'd like to go further this year and finish above .500 in the conference."

EAST JORDAN

Another team hoping for a big improvement is East Jordan, which finished below .500 in a disjointed year plagued with weather cancellations in 2014.

The Red Devils hopes begin with ace pitcher Lindsey Schroeder, who is back for her senior season after a strong year at the mound and at the plate.

Beyond Schroeder, East Jordan is looking for seniors Sydney Drew and Stephanie Buckholz to step into full-time starting roles, and also hoping for big contributions from a talented sophomore class that includes infielder Kaitie Dunson and catcher/outfielder Marissa Kolp.

Freshman Abby Peterson will be East Jordan's No. 2 pitcher, and Chelsea Gibson and Karah Dunson will play key roles as well in their first year on the varsity.

"We're a very young team, and our sophomores and freshmen are going to see significant playing time," East Jordan coach Meg Kitson said. "We're looking to a lot of part-time starters last year to step into bigger roles and lead us, and so far it's gone well."

East Jordan also benefits from two senior additions, Charlevoix transfer Kaitlin Loviska and Savannah Walker, who is back from a foreign exchange year.

Loviska and Walker are both versatile players and along with junior JV call-up Jill Atwood and sophomore Caitlyn Baugh can play multiple positions, allowing the Red Devils to fill holes in their lineup.

CHARLEVOIX

With just six players returning from last year's team, Charlevoix coach Tom Mielke said it might be a rebuilding year for the Rayders.

Even with an inexperienced roster, however, Mielke said he thinks his team has the talent to better last season's total of 12 wins.

Despite graduation losses, Charlevoix is still senior-heavy this year, and brings back junior Skylar Herriman, a first-team all-stater as a freshman who will take over pitching duties for the Rayders.

Herriman's transition to the mound will be eased by Nicole Peterson, who brings experience at catcher, and fellow senior and third baseman Lyndsay Towsley is another experienced returner and solid bat in the lineup.

New faces, however, will make or break Charlevoix's season as inexperienced but talented players are set to fill several spots in the lineup.

That includes sophomore Nichole Hart, who played a small role as a reserve on last year's team but won't have stepped into a starting position for the Rayders this year and looks to be a key part of the lineup.

Charlevoix also will turn to a strong freshman class, led by everyday players Shelby Wurst and Emily Shift, to play major roles.

"Our first outside practice was today, so it's hard to say, but I've been pleasantly surprised so far by our infielders and our pitching," Mielke said. "I thought we didn't win as many games as we should have with our talent level last year, so even though our youth means we're rebuilding, I think we've still got a good chance to win more games this year."

Unfinished business driving Charlevoix

CHARLEVOIX — It's hard to be disappointed in a 24-9 season, but last year's Charlevoix baseball team couldn't help but feel a little unsatisfied with the outcome.

Despite the impressive record, the Rayders fell short in the Lake Michigan title race thanks to two losses to Traverse City St. Francis in a season-ending doubleheader, and fell short of its district title goal as well after falling to Bohne City in a 5-1 upset in the pre-district round.

Those near-misses have Charlevoix's eight returning seniors looking at 2015 as a chance to deal with some unfinished business in their final go-around on the diamond.

"When I first got here, a 24-9 season would have had us doing cartwheels in the infield," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "The fact that it left us a little disappointed is a good thing, because it shows how much expectations have grown for this team."

"We've got a group of guys who've been on the varsity for a long time, and who are focused on accomplishing big things."

Three of Charlevoix's eight seniors, returning all-stars Noah Certa and Will Telgenhof and staff ace Nate Moon, are four-year varsity players, and together with junior all-stater and three year starter Austin Putman form a strong core for the Rayders to build around.

"Our strengths are definitely the heart of our lineup and our rotation," coach Telgenhof said. "That's where we've got experienced guys who we can count on in tough situations."

Although the Rayders return many sophomores Brad Klinger and Christian Matye will also factor into the lineup at catcher and in the infield as new faces at their positions as well.

All that returning firepower has Charlevoix on the fringes of the top 10 in most Division 3 polls.

For a team that struggled at times with having a target on its back last season, that might be a daunting proposition, but coach Telgenhof said the Rayders are better prepared this season.

"Last year, we saw every team's top pitcher and their best effort, and it took us a while to get used to that," Telgenhof said. "It was a learning experience, and ultimately I think seeing that effort from our opponents every day made us better."

"With that experience, I think we'll be able to handle the expectations better this season."

In order to win the LMC title for the second time in three years, Charlevoix will have to dethrone defending champion TC St. Francis, as well as deal with hard charges from Bohne City and East Jordan, who hope to factor into the title race as well.

BOYNE CITY

The Ramblers in particular aren't interested in finishing behind the Rayders this season after a district title last year and a run to the regional finals.

The two arms who helped to power that run, juniors Tanner Krusel and Derek Willis, return to lead Bohne City's staff, with seniors Dalton Gardner and Ethan Habasco rounding out a strong rotation.

At the plate, senior catcher Max Cuper is the big bat in a lineup that excels at getting on base and using its speed to get runners in scoring position.

That speed includes Gardner, Zach Napont, Maceo Vroman and junior Colton Sierradski, who will add another weapon on the basepaths for the Ramblers after coming up from JV.

Bohne City figures to be in the mix for the LMC title, but its biggest obstacle might be self-inflicted — a late start because of the basketball team's Breslin Center run.

The Ramblers had its first full-squad practice on Tuesday and will have to get up to speed quickly.

"It worries me, especially our pitchers, because they haven't had the six weeks of practice that other guys have had to build strength," Bohne City coach Mark Pontoni said. "We've got JV arms up to help us out early in the season, and our record early is probably going to take a hit as we ease those guys into it."

Pontoni said that despite the late start, runs in football and basketball, coupled with last year's district title have the Ramblers in a good place.

"We've got guys who are very eager to play, and based on what they've done in other sports have very high expectations for themselves," Pontoni said. "That's a good sign and hopefully it's something that spreads throughout our team."

EAST JORDAN

While East Jordan had a rough season last year, finishing 7-21-1, there's good reason to think the Red Devils will have a bounceback season and contend for the title as well.

That's because East Jordan returns its top three pitchers and several key position players from last year's squad.

Junior Colin Petrie, senior Tucker Alward and senior Noah Raymond are the core of an experienced staff, and junior Jordan Weber is another option on the mound for the Red Devils.

Those four also form the heart of potent lineup that includes three-year starters and outfielders Jordan Peterson and Wyatt Crick, and power-hitting first baseman Herschell Sutton.

Senior Bailey Sargent is a strong utility player, and East Jordan coach Tom Reid is high on sophomore shortstop Collin Shepard and outfielder Jake Skrocki's potential to make big contributions this season.

"We've got good pitching, our fielding has been crisp so far, and we've hit well in the cage," Reid said. "We look pretty solid everywhere."

"As long as our guys stay healthy and keep their grades up, I think we can be competitive and win a lot more games this season."

HARBOR SPRINGS

Harbor Springs hopes to join the Rayders, Ramblers in Red Devils in the LMC title hunt, but the Rams will have to replace a large senior class, including all-state pitcher Ean Walda.

Despite the attrition, the cupboard isn't bare for the Rams, who bring back seniors Chase Lepird and Andy Morse from last year's squad.

Lepird did a little bit of everything last year, and will open the season as Harbor Springs' ace, while Morse is a key offensive contributor who will bat in the heart of the Rams' lineup.

Dillon Schwark is another returner with versatility who will help Harbor Springs with his bat and his arm, and the Rams also have a large crop of juniors who will look to make their marks in their first consistent varsity action.

"The success of our season will be determined by this group's development both offensively and defensively," Harbor Springs coach Josh Brey said of his junior class. "This year's club will need to score more runs and play much tighter defense, and it is this group who needs to make big strides for that to happen."

Heavy machinery kicks up some dust at the intersection of Hurlbut and State streets on Tuesday, April 14. Work crews from Team Elmer's are finishing up the water main replacement on Hurlbut Street and beginning the State Street reconstruction project.

Heavy machinery, a pile of removed asphalt and other materials fill the open lot behind Oleson's Market in downtown Charlevoix. Work crews from Team Elmer's are using the lot as a staging ground for the State Street reconstruction project that began on Monday, April 13.

Air compressors, valves and hoses stick out of the ground on Hurlbut Street. Work crews recently installed a new 410-foot section of water main on the 100 block of West Hurlbut Street after the harsh winter froze the water line causing it to break.

Work crews have begun the $1.2 million State Street reconstruction project. On Tuesday, April 14, crews from Team Elmer's started work south of Antrim Street.

A heavy loader moves excess dirt from the work site on State Street south of Antrim Street. Work crews from Team Elmer's are currently working in the area where a new retaining wall will be built.

Charlevoix school board settles on 5 candidates for interviews

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — There will be five candidates the Charlevoix school board will interview for the position of superintendent next week.

Rod Green, consultant with the Michigan Association of School Boards, is assisting the Charlevoix board with its superintendent search. On March 5, he met with several groups to discuss the qualities and skills desired of the next superintendent. These groups included school employees, administration, staff, community leaders and parents. Bob Gendron resigned from the position in November because of health issues and another job opportunity and board members are on the hunt for his successor. After a lengthy executive session Tuesday night, board members narrowed down 43 applicants to five people who will have first round interviews in Charlevoix.

"It is a really strong group of candidates, and the five chosen are the boards choice as the ones they want to talk to during the first round of interviews," Green said. "The board spent a lot of time narrowing down the applicants and I thought it was

Council, residents, debate wording on proposed mural

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Some residents and council members are again questioning a mural proposed for the side of the Rexall building approved by the Downtown Development Authority, but only reviewed by the City Council in 2014.

The artist has already been given $5,000 to start the mural. The issue with the mural is the wording "Welcome to Charlevoix the Beautiful." Council member Jeff Porter believes it violates the city's sign ordinance.

"If we are going to make private business owners follow a sign ordinance then we also should adhere to those standards," Porter said. "I have no problem with artwork. It's the lettering that makes this a sign."

Charlevoix resident, Ginny Saul also had a problem with the text on the proposed mural.

"How many signs do you have to have that say 'Welcome to Charlevoix' on them," Saul asked. "I think that they should remove the lettering. I don't approve of it."

Annie Doyle, Charlevoix Community Economic Development director contacted the artist, Katherine Larson, on Tuesday, April 21, to see how much of the project is complete.

"One section of the mural is complete with text," Doyle said.

"Changes will cost an additional $500 to remove the text on that completed section."

Proposed changes to the mural were presented to the DDA during a meeting on Tuesday, April 21. Five DDA members did like the mural without text, but the owner of the Rexall Building and a major donor wanted the mural with text, said Interim City Manager Mike Spencer.

"We spoke with those who have significant interest in the mural," Spencer said. "They expressed they wanted the mural the way it was approved by the DDA. Because of the information we got from the donor and because the artist has

St. James Township implements new steps to fix financial crisis

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

BEAVER ISLAND — It has been more than 30 days since officials at St. James Township began the steps to rectify financial records that are unable to be audited, according to certified public accountant Steven Peacock of Rehmann Robson in Traverse City.

On April 1, during a township meeting, trustee Kitty McNamara gave a subcommittee report about the timeline of progress being made on the record keeping and the sewer ledger for township billing — the subcommittee was set up to oversee the process of correcting the township financials after it was revealed during a March 4, special meeting that St. James Township officials have mismanaged financial records and township funds for more than a decade, which contributed to nearly $125,000 of missing money from the township treasury.

McNamara said the committee began meeting with individuals and legal representatives to have a timeline to implement the recommendations that were suggested by township attorney Bryan Graham and Stephen Peacock from accounting firm Rehmann Robson after the special meeting in March.

Recommendations are as follows:

— The township must hire someone with substantial governmental accounting experience. The records will need to go back to at least 2002 to determine the status of the finances.

— Create a subcommittee that ensures progress is being made on the township's financial records.

— Create specific repayment plans for the repayment of funds advanced to the sewer fund to satisfy bond obligations.

— Make sure an audit firm that has substantial experience with governmental units and has been peer reviewed by other reputable financial accounting institutions serves the township.

— Determine sewer usage for customers and whether appropriate fees are being billed and collected.

Charlevoix schools to develop open carry policy

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education has taken the first steps to create a protocol regarding open carry for the school district.

Interim superintendent Tom Stobie said they decided to address the lack of a protocol because people have challenged the law in other parts of the state of Michigan. They wanted to be proactive and start a discussion, he said.

Open carry refers to the practice of openly carrying a firearm in public.

At the regular school board meeting Monday, Stobie suggested they have the policy committee create a protocol in which to bring to the board. The rest of the board was in agreement with decision.

Charlevoix Prosecuting Attorney Allen Telgenhof wrote a letter to the board with guidelines and protocols in order to write a policy. In the letter he also notes federal law states a person may open carry on school property if they are licensed to do so, this includes a concealed pistol permit. The firearm must also be a holstered handgun. If they are not holstered they are in violation of state and federal law, he stated.

Telgenhof added school employees may require an individual to have a legitimate purpose to be on school grounds. School employees would be within their rights to prohibit someone onto school grounds without a legitimate purpose. He added the school can impose other guidelines as well such as the creation of appropriate signs to place at the doors of buildings. He also added to ensure every guest sign in at the main office. If someone doesn't have a valid permit they may be asked to leave.

If a person were to open carry on Charlevoix school properties, Stobie and other board members said they would most likely put the schools into "lock down."

"That's not denying their right to open carry," said board secretary Douglas Bergmann. "That's exercising our right to put the school on lock down. It's still being respectful of the person's rights. But it's protecting the school."

School's mission prompts program, name change

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — To better align the school name to its mission, Northwest Academy will become the Charlevoix Montessori Academy for the Arts in June.

The change was prompted after school officials determined the Montessori method would be the best way to meet the needs of each student at the school, said school director Phoebe Gohs.

"With the name change, we hope to be sure that everyone in our community is aware that we offer a Montessori education with an emphasis on the arts — both through a full arts program as well as through integration in daily classes," Gohs said.

The change is a culmination of a number of years of work — by the board, administration and staff — learning about the Montessori method and exploring how the school might best offer a Montessori program. Officials choose to commit to the Montessori method because they have found it to be the best way to promote high academic achievement while allowing students to explore and learn about topics of specific interest to them.

"Our school's mission has always been to provide a personal education that allows students to realize their full potential — we can best accomplish that mission by using the Montessori method," Gohs said.

Montessori education is an educational approach developed by Italian physician and educator Maria Montessori and characterized by an emphasis on independence, freedom within limits and respect for a child's natural psychological, physical and social development.

"A charter school is different from a traditional public school because they exist to provide education in a different way — for us, that means the Montessori method with the incorporation of the arts throughout the curriculum," Gohs said. "Other charter schools offer a different program in a different way than we do, but all charters exist to innovate education."

For the last three years school officials have been implementing the Montessori program to its children enrolled in the third grade. In order to implement a Montessori program, first the school needed trained Montessori teachers — which in a charter school means that in addition to being a 'highly qualified teacher' as defined by the state, teachers are also trained in the Montessori method and curriculum, Gohs said.

The school's current enrollment is 72 students and its data shows growth in the elementary grades. Gohs said the school hopes to build enrollment in the upper grades as their current elementary students enrollment grows. The school will be adding more Montessori programming to grades nine through 12 in the fall. This will include the purchase of Montessori materials that are needed in order to fully implement the Montessori method.

"Right now, it is really a hybrid-classroom for grades nine through 12,"

Gohs said. "The classroom will need to be re-configured — adding shelves and changing the classroom set-up — and adding more of the Montessori materials."

As a Montessori school, area children will still have free access to education, Gohs said.

"As a charter school, we have always been a tuition free public school, but now that we are offering Montessori environments for ages 3 to 15 — through eighth grade — this is the core difference," Gohs said. "In the past, Montessori schools have typically been private, tuition-based programs, but this will not be the case for us."

Northwest Academy administrative officials and board of education members also embrace the Montessori method of education because it will provide the same content that is taught in any public school while providing students the opportunity to explore and expand their understanding of those concepts, Gohs said.

Students also are grouped in age ranges — 3 to 6, 7 to 9, 10 to 12, and 13 to 15 years old. This encourages students to learn to work both as novice and as mentor throughout their school experience, she added.

"When they begin a new classroom," Gohs said, "Students can see how what they are learning will be extended as they grow — and they learn about what is coming next."

"Then, as they are the oldest in the classroom they have the opportunity to become a mentor to the younger students in the classroom."

LETTERS to the editor

A day for our mother earth

By Tom Hastings

How many holidays do we have? MLK Day in January, Valentine's Day in February, Easter in March or April, Earth Day in April, Memorial Day in May, and so forth. Of those few examples, two were declared in my adulthood. New holidays take time to catch on and embed themselves in the culture. They can stray from their roots. Christmas is for consumerism and Thanksgiving is for football.

The first Earth Day, in 1970, was the launch of a new holiday with deep social meaning for many of us. I was 19. I was excited that this new holiday reflected my values, the ones I was raised to hold, the ones that had worked forward from many indigent leaders to John Muir to Aldo Leopold to Rachel Carson. My dad taught me the number one value and tactic in life: always leave the campsite a bit nicer than when you found it. We camped across the country and that was our ritual; we broke camp and made sure the site was free of garbage but also had a bit more firewood left for the next ones than what we found.

Earth Day was meant to bring that ethic forward in innumerable ways. It was meant to celebrate the first major environmental protection law, the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969, and to promote more protection from the Industrial, chemical, bulldozer, polluting, clearcutting, strip mining, ocean dumping, fuel spilling, poison spraying, habitat wrecking culture that was turning America the Beautiful into America the Dumpsite.

It is a holiday that had an agenda and still has it. Few purchase glitzy gifts for the occasion and no one gains 10 pounds from rich food on Earth Day. Find the Earth Day section in the card aisle in Walgreens. Ha. Good luck with that. Simply put, Earth Day is anathema to corporate predatory culture and so far has not been amenable to hijacking. As a result, it is largely a roll-your-own day, no one takes off work to celebrate it, and the vast majority of attention it gets is from elementary school teachers who have a value affinity with its meaning and want to pass that along to children.

So thank you, teachers. Thank you, environmentalists. Thank you, naturalists and nature lovers. This is your day. Long may its meaning and message hold forth and may it mark great victories for our environment and clean future. April 22, Earth Day 2015, a day of hope and challenge toward a society that cares for the future of the generations and the rights of the generations to hug huge redwoods, breathe clean air, eat healthy food, drink pure water and see all the species in their wild places.

Message from Mother Earth

Dear Children,

At over 4 billion years old I've been feeling my age. My lungs hurt. Probably because of destruction of my forests, which act as my lungs, along with pollution in the air. I need clean air to breathe. Why are you doing this? The forests everywhere are vital, not only for clean air, but for keeping soil in place, keeping erosion at bay. Please precious children, replant and love my forests.

Not only are my lungs suffering, so too is the draining of my blood. Every decade you suck up ever more of my blood — oil/gas — every year you go deeper into my body.

At the same time you find new ways to gather up this blood ... the latest pains are coming from cracking my body — fracking. Do you not feel my quaking in pain — earth quakes?

For your energy needs you have the sun, wind, power of my ocean waves. Use them.

My water, my beautiful life-giving water ... what are you doing? My oceans are polluted with chemicals and garbage from pole to pole. This kills the creatures of the seas. The rarest and most important waters — fresh water — I collected over billions of years, are also being polluted and squandered. Children, dear children what are you thinking? Without water you will perish.

My heart breaks as innocent creatures die before my eyes. So many gone forever. Why?

I've given you all you need: water, food, air. Don't squander it.

I know you celebrate Earth Day on April 22. Please, all my precious children, love me all year long. Please be good stewards of this world. Protect me, make me well again. I cannot protect you from self-destruction, only you can do that.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK

Lake Charlevoix has long been an ideal venue for the testing of racing vessels, many of which were built here, and for holding racing events. Roy Brady, a resident of Charlevoix who once lived on Park Avenue across from the Congregational Church, was considered to be one of the best racing power boat builders in the country. Here he is shown with his second wife (and mechanic) Maude in one of his finest, Miss Charlevoix. On Aug. 27, 1927, Roy entered the boat in a five-mile competition on Lake Charlevoix where she covered the first 2.5 miles in just under two minutes, 20 seconds for an average of 64.5 miles per hour, a gold medal-winning world record for her class. On Sept. 2, Brady went from a standing start to the mile mark in 68 seconds, a new state record. The Charlevoix Courier said "... very few boats in the entire world ...

can show her a clean pair of heels." Many of Brady's creations, such as the Sea-Bird, were a common sight zipping around Round Lake. From Charlevoix Brady went to Manistee and the Century Boat Company where he became one of its top naval architects.

Dr. Loren Wise joins Boyne Area Medical Center

BOYNE CITY — Loren M. Wise, M.D., originally from Grosse Ile, has joined the growing medical staff at Boyne Area Medical Center, one of the Charlevoix Area Hospital clinics.

"My grandfather was a pediatrician in Detroit, and I knew from a young age and watching him that I wanted to be a physician," Wise said.

She graduated with honors from Michigan State University with a degree in biology and a specialization in health and humanities, and went on to attend Michigan State University College of Human Medicine. She was accepted into the Family Medicine Early Residency Program at Michigan State University's Kalamazoo Center for Medical Studies, beginning her residency program while still a fourth-year medical student.

During her residency,

University mascot, during his senior year.

"You could say I'm a true Spartan," jokes Dr. Wise.

After residency, Wise became an attending physician at Bronson Methodist Hospital in Kalamazoo where she practiced outpatient medicine, inpatient medicine and obstetrics. She also accepted a position as clinical faculty at Michigan State University's Kalamazoo Center for Medical Studies, teaching obstetrics and inpatient medicine to the family medicine resi-she married her husband, Kevin, a third-grade teacher. He also was "Spartan," the Michigan State dents.

Wise served as the deputy medical examiner for Kalamazoo County for four years, and as their family grew, she began to limit the scope of her medical practice. With four daughters from ages 4 to 11, she began to practice in the outpatient setting only, and after living in Kalamazoo for 13 years, her family decided to move to Northern Michigan.

"My husband and I have always been drawn to the Little Traverse Bay area and would regularly travel north during the winters to ski," Wise said. "We are thrilled to now call Northern Michigan home."

When she's not at the office, Wise enjoys spending time with her family and watching their four girls participate in various activities. She enjoys skiing, reading, gardening, knitting and ballet, having danced in the Nutcracker with Crooked Tree Arts Center for the past two years, as well as in Kalamazoo, with the Ballet Arts Ensemble and Kalamazoo and Battle Creek symphonies.

An avid runner, Wise enjoys running and has completed two marathons. In 2014, she completed her first triathlon and took third place in her age group. She hopes to participate in more events this coming summer.

Wise is excited about joining the already thriving Boyne Area Medical Center as one of their health providers. She is looking forward to meeting patients and the community at the center's open house on Tuesday, May 5, when the center will celebrate the completion of its recent expansion.

Local foods grown for local students

CHARLEVOIX — A school system, a Michigan association promoting farmers markets, and a local farm are joining together to bring organic vegetables to the school lunch table.

Eating fruits and vegetables has long been associated with decreased risk of chronic disease and increased energy levels. While all schools need to meet federal nutrition guidelines for school lunches, East Jordan Public Schools are reaching out to include local vegetables as well.

"At East Jordan Public Schools we believe that good nutrition is a crucial part of student health. We are always looking for ways to increase students' access to fresh, nutritious food. We also recognize that supporting local farmers strengthens our local economy. Putting local vegetables in school lunches creates a big win for everyone," Matt Stevenson, superintendent of East Jordan Public Schools, said.

While many schools support the value of including plenty of vegetables in school lunches, it can be a real challenge to bring local vegetables to the table since school lunch budgets are extremely tight. But in 2011, a new opportunity arose. Michigan State University's (MSU) Center for Regional Food Systems, MSU Department of Horticulture, and the Michigan Farmers Market Association (MIFMA) launched a new program called Hoophouses for Health.

Hoophouses for Health awarded a zero-interest loan in 2013 to a local organic farm, Bluestem Farm of East Jordan. The loan was used to build a hoophouse, or unheated greenhouse, on the farm. Bluestem Farm is now paying that loan back by paying it forward, and giving food away to students at participating schools.

"Hoophouses for Health was designed to support farmers as they increase their season extension capacity while at the same time increasing access to good food for some of Michigan's most vulnerable families. Beginning in 2014, we combined efforts with Michigan Farm to School to allow participating farmers to diversify their marketing outlets to include early child care and local schools," Dru Montri, MIFMA director and program partner, said.

Parents of children in participating Head Start programs are also eligible to use Hoophouses for Health vouchers to shop for fresh foods at the Boyne City Farmers Market.

This year, the program will expand to include not only Bluestem Farm, but several other new farms in local counties as well, including Bear Creek Organic Farm of Petoskey, Daybreak Dreamfarm of East Jordan, Spirit of Walloon Market Garden in Walloon Lake, and Bare Knuckle Farm in the Leelanau peninsula.

OBITUARIES

The world lost a good man in the afternoon of Thursday, April 2, 2015. Ray L. Clever went to the Lord one week before his 90th birthday.

One of six siblings born to Harry and Mae Clever, Ray was raised in Lexington, Ohio. Upon high school graduation he joined the United States Navy, serving in the Pacific until 1944.

After the war, Ray attended Wooster College where he met and then married Marilyn Overholt. Upon graduation, Ray began a short teaching career before discovering his real love, business. He joined Warner & Swasey Corporation in the marketing department. While there, he rose to the rank of Senior Vice-President of International Marketing for the Gradall subsidiary and eventually became one of the owners of that division when it separated from its parent company.

The couple had four daughters, Nancy (Joel) Van Roekel, Merideth (Russ) Ritchel, Mary Ellen Cameron and Lisa (Jeff) Behan. Ray lost Marilyn to an automobile accident in 1978.

Two years later he retired from Gradall, met and then married his sister's collegiate roommate Anna Kiel. In 1987, Ray brought Anna to his beloved cottage in Northern Michigan where he spent the next 11 years enjoying life on the lake with Anna, his children and grandchildren. Anna passed away in 2000. He lived the remainder of his life in Winston-Salem, N.C.

Ray was preceded in death by four of his siblings.

He is survived by his youngest sister, Ruth Gretsinger; four daughters; 11 grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren. He will be missed by all.

Interment will be in Sunset Hill Cemetery, East Jordan.

In lieu of flowers, memorials may be given to Kale B. Reynolds Hospice Home, 101 Hospice Lane, Winston-Salem, NC 27103.

Jeremy John Moses, 37

Jeremy John Moses, 37, of Charlevoix, passed away Saturday, April 18, 2015, at his home after a long battle with cancer.

He was born Dec. 21, 1977, in Port Huron to Terrance and Vicki L. (Wynkoop) Moses. Jeremy grew up in Charlevoix and was a graduate of Charlevoix Public Schools. A self-taught mechanic, he earned his Master Mechanic certification and owned J&S Auto Repair in Charlevoix. He loved to tinker and considered mechanical challenges more of a hobby than work.

Make an informed choice about Proposal 1 May 5

CRAIG CURRIER

(231) 439-9358 • ccurrier@peloskynews.com

Ballots will be tallied Tuesday, May 5, on Proposal 1, as voters decide whether to increase the state's sales tax by one cent to fix Michigan's chronically under-funded road maintenance budget.

If approved, a series of other changes already approved by the Legislature will take effect as they are tied to Proposal 1's passage.

In short, the ballot measure proposes to increase funding for road and bridge maintenance throughout the state by $1.2 billion. Additional revenues are also generated by changes included in Proposal 1. In all, the new revenue sources will top $2 billion in the next fiscal year, which starts Oct. 1.

Criticism has grown in recent weeks as the vote nears with opponents saying Proposal 1 became a money grab for special interest groups seeking to increase their budgets.

Supporters, though, point out the flawed and complicated process through which money is funneled into the Michigan Transportation Fund right now, saying the only way to correct things is to untangle the existing setup.

Before studying Proposal 1 and its intent, it's good to understand in simple terms where the money comes from to build and repair roads up and down the state.

State and local officials rely on a per-gallon fuel tax of almost 19 cents per gallon to generate money for road construction projects. Drivers also pay a federal tax on gasoline of about 18 cents per gallon and Michigan sales tax of 6 percent, though that money is directed either to the federal government or to schools and local governments in the state.

Michigan drivers pay some of the largest tax rates in the country, but state lawmakers often point out how small a portion of those revenues go to build roads.

Most legislators agree the system of taxation at the pump must be restructured so that taxes paid on gasoline go to fund road repairs. Some argue gasoline purchases should be exempt from sales tax and replaced by a greater per-gallon fuel tax that pays for transportation projects. Others say that will hurt schools and local governments and are seeking new revenue sources to make up for the money lost.

As lawmakers debated the issue last year, they settled on Proposal 1 and voters will weigh in next month. The effect on individuals and families will vary depending on what purchases you make, what type of vehicle you drive and how gas prices fluctuate moving forward.

Various studies have been published citing average costs to the typical family.

The conservative Mackinac Center for Public Policy's analysis of the proposal estimates an increased tax burden for the typical Michigan household ranging from $477 to $525 in 2016.

For every $1,000 you spend on goods — except those like food that are exempt from sales tax — you will pay $10 more for them if Proposal 1 is approved. If you buy a $20,000 car, for example, you will pay $1,400 in sales tax instead of $1,200.

The increased taxes applied to gasoline will depend on the price per gallon as the 6 percent sales tax is removed and a flat per-gallon fuel tax of nearly 42 cents is applied. According to a study by the Citizens Research Council of Michigan, if the pre-tax retail price is $1.90, the current system would add almost 50 cents to the cost in federal, state and sales taxes. Under Proposal 1's taxing method, slightly more than 60 cents will be added to each gallon of that price.

The per-gallon fuel tax would continue to increase in future years under Proposal 1 to keep up with inflation. One of the main problems with today's transportation funding setup is the fuel tax hasn't been increased since 1997 to keep pace with increased costs of road construction, supplies and equipment.

Impact on local transportation funding

If Proposal 1 passes, the increases to annual distributions from the state for local transportation departments and projects will be significant. In most cases, the funding will nearly double by 2018. It is important to note, though, in the first two years a large portion of the new revenues collected will be used to pay down debt incurred by the Michigan Department of Transportation. In the first year, about $865 million is designated for debt payments and in 2017, another $468 million will be spent that way.

Here is a glance at how funding will increase for many of the region's road building agencies:

New local revenue sharing funds tied to Proposal 1 will result in additional payments to Charlevoix County ($250,148), Emmet County ($315,170) and Otsego County ($232,941). The School Aid Fund will also derive about $200 million in additional funding each year — almost $300 million will be generated in the first year before settling at the lesser amount in future years, according to officials — though it's unclear exactly how that money will be spent.

Supporters of the ballot measure are using the "No Plan B" slogan as one of the strongest reasons why voters should approve Proposal 1.

State Sen. Wayne Schmidt, R- Traverse City, is among those supporting the sales tax increase. While Schmidt and other area legislators say they are likely to use one of these plans as a beginning point should Proposal 1 fail next month, there, doesn't appear to be a favored solution that will be backed by the House and Senate and then signed by the governor.

"In my mind, all the legislators and the governor have ideas of what they want, but there is no formal 'Plan B,'" Schmidt said. "When it comes down to it, you need to get 56 votes in the House, 20 in the Senate and the signature of the governor."

Fair gives students chance to meet possible employers

By LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — Students from Charlevoix's Middle/High School, Boyne City High School, Ellsworth Community School, and the Morgan-Shaw School got the chance to talk to possible future employers on Friday, April 17.

Career Jump Start, Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District, North Central Michigan College and Northwest Michigan Works sponsored the event. More than 45 different careers and colleges were represented at the fair.

Kori Wickham a senior from Charlevoix High School has plans to study education or biology after she graduates this spring. She learned a lot about careers during a talk at the expo.

"I haven't made a decision on which college I will attend, but I am learning a lot about my options at the career fair," Wickham said.

Wickham expressed an interest in cooking and said she enjoyed getting to meet some area chefs.

"I am also interested in cooking," Wickham said. "I applied at the Weather-vane and met the chef today. He took my number, so hopefully, I hear back from him."

Many students gathered information, met with military recruiters and watched the different demonstrations from area businesses.

"It's very interesting to see all these career paths under one roof," said Ellsworth High School senior, Kendyl Russell.

Russell and her peers, soaked in some first-hand knowledge from a variety of people in the workforce.

"It's totally different talking to teachers about what your plans are after school compared to the people who are actually doing it," Russell said. "I want to study cosmetology and this career fair has helped me meet with the people who are already doing what I want to do."

Kelly Johnson K-12 Career and College Readiness Specialist for Charlevoix-Emmet ISD said the career expo idea is a way to get students thinking about post high school plans.

"Our goal is to offer an opportunity for students from local high schools to explore a variety of businesses and companies that correlate with the Michigan Career Pathways," Johnson said.

Michigan Career Pathways include: arts, communication, business, management, marketing, technology, engineering and manufacturing, industrial technology, health sciences, human services, natural sciences and agriculture, she said.

"We highly encouraged the students to ask the vendors a career or college related question to promote discussion," Johnson said. "We wanted students to be engaged and gather valuable information for their future."

The event was made possible with donations from local businesses such as Charlevoix Ace Hardware and Andy's Market and Deli, Johnson said.

"Community partners like our local businesses help us reach our students and provide them with the information they need after graduation," Johnson said.

Consumers Energy meets promise, increasing spending with Michigan businesses by $1 billion

GRAND RAPIDS — Consumers Energy has achieved its promise to increase its spending with other Michigan businesses by $1 billion over the past four years.

The energy provider's announcement came last week during a supplier summit in downtown Grand Rapids at Grand Valley State University's L.V. Eberhard Center.

Muskegon-based Newkirk Electric received the contract that took Consumers Energy over the $1 billion mark.

"We've kept our promise to Michigan by increasing our home state spending with other businesses by $1 billion in the past 4 years, one year ahead of plan. This 'Michigan first' program has helped other businesses add more than 5,000 jobs," said Dan Malone, Consumers Energy's senior vice president of energy resources. Nearly 400 companies throughout Michigan have benefited from contracts. "They're providing high-quality goods and services to help us improve customer satisfaction and upgrade our electric and natural gas delivery."

Launched in 2011, Pure Michigan Business Connect is a public-private alliance of the Michigan Economic Development Corporation (MEDC), state agencies and major Michigan companies and organizations that connects in-state companies to business resources.

"When Michigan was recovering from the recession, Consumers Energy stood up and made a difference. We applaud this remarkable achievement. More people are working in our state today because of Pure Michigan Business Connect and supporters like Consumers Energy and major suppliers," said Steve Arwood, president and CEO of the MEDC.

Consumers Energy is contracting with a wide variety of companies through Pure Michigan Business Connect. As part of its "Pay It Forward" program the company encourages its Michigan-based suppliers to utilize subcontractors and suppliers based in the state to help stimulate further job gains and economic growth in the State of Michigan.

The following seven companies were recognized for doing work for Consumers Energy while "paying it forward" by hiring Michigan subcontractors:

— Newkirk Electric (Muskegon) is doing $16 million worth of projects ranging from electric installation to maintenance work of systems at facilities including the J.H. Campbell generating complex and Zeeland generating station.

— Northern Boiler (Muskegon) is performing $17.8 million worth of projects including pipe replacement and sump pump replacement at the Zeeland generating station.

— Pumford Construction (Saginaw) is doing $29.4 million worth of projects including building the new West Branch Service Center and Groveland Service Center.

— Monarch Welding (Bay City) is performing $7.1 million worth of projects including upgrades to the Bay City service center and mechanical support at the Karn/Weadock generating complex.

— Barton Malow Company (Southfield) is doing $162 million worth of projects including building Cross Winds® Energy Park, now in operation.

— Ideal Contracting LLC (Detroit) is performing $9.6 million worth of projects including an Air Quality Control System project at the Karn/Weadock generating complex.

— CSM Group Inc.

(Kalamazoo) is doing $8 million worth of projects including building the Jackson Innovation Center

Consumers Energy's $1 billion Pure Michigan commitment is, in addition to the more than $2 billion annually it spends in the state, to improve customer service, upgrade electric and natural gas delivery, protect and improve Michigan's natural environment, deliver energy efficiency programs and expand renewable energy sources.

Consumers Energy, Michigan's largest utility, is the principal subsidiary of CMS Energy, providing natural gas and electricity to 6.8 million of the state's 10 million residents in all 68 Lower Peninsula counties.

completed a panel we decided the mural will have text as requested by the donor and building owner."

Community garden to help low-income families

Since the 1960s, the city of Charlevoix has made available to its residents a small garden area located just north of Harbor Industries to plant annual vegetables and flowers. Now, one resident has received approval from Charlevoix City Council members to use 10 plots to plant corn. Janine McKay said she will use the plots to help low-income families in Charlevoix have access to fresh grown food.

"It is my hope I can create this community garden for people to have access to fresh vegetables and help them be healthy," McKay said.

Each plot is 24 feet by 24 feet, which would cost $250 if not for the city council agreeing to donate use of the plots to McKay. Third Day Fellowship and the Charlevoix Community Food Pantry have indicated that they will accept the produce from McKay as way to support Charlevoix families, Spencer said.

More money allocated to pay for water main freeze ups

City council members approved an interdepartmental loan for the Charlevoix Department of Public Works to replace more broken water mains in the city that froze because of the extreme cold temperatures this winter.

DPW Superintendent Pat Elliott said the city is facing a similar situation on the 200 block of Nettleton Street that the city had on the 100 block of West Huribut Street.

On Nettleton Street there is approximately 160 feet of water main on the highway end that is broken, also there is a 40 foot section on the East Dixon Street end that needs to be replaced because it is leaking. The pipe is 4-inch cast iron, with a depth of 4 feet in the ground and approximately 90 years old, he said.

"Overall we figure about 200 feet of the main water line will need to be replaced," Elliott said.

Council members approved a $79,200 bid to MDC Contracting, in Charlevoix, to replace the water main on Nettleton Street.

Council member Shirley Gibson said complete repair of the city water lines is the only approach she supports.

"We cannot keep making these patches and small fixes," Gibson said. "We have too many residents affected by this issue. We need to make the investment now to save money in the long-term because this problem will only get worse with more cold winters like the last two."

The upgrade of the entire block to 8-foot ductile iron pipe will include new services hook-ups, a new fire hydrant in the mid-block area and place the pipe at a depth of between 6 and 7 feet below the surface of the street.

"The contractors should begin the work on the new line in June," Elliott said. "It should take about 10 days to complete."

Also city council signed a letter addressed to Gov. Rick Snyder, Rep. Tristan Cole and Sen. Wayne Schmidt to ask for financial help from the state to help cover costs of the broken infrastructure throughout the city. This year's winter has costs the city more than $600,000, Spencer said.

"It's a very severe problem we've faced this winter," Spencer said. "We hope this letter will prompt government officials to offer some assistance to our community and others struggling with the same issues we are dealing with."

In other actions, council members waived parking fees at Ferry Beach Boat Launch for two upcoming fishing tournaments to take place in June. Council also will hold a public hearing at 7 p.m. on Monday, May 4, to discuss amendments to the city's fireworks ordinance.

Police Chief Gerard Doan said the ordinance would eliminate the use of sky lanterns in the city.

"These lanterns are dangerous and pose a fire threat to homes and boats in the city," Doan said.

ST. JAMES

— Recommend the township switch from audits every two years to annually until the books are in order.

McNamara's report to board members documents what she and deputy township supervisor, Marie Boyle, have done since the March 4 special meeting to help fix the financial fiasco dating back to 2001.

"We've worked with our attorney to create new spreadsheets for the clerk to do the billing for the assessments, new hook ups and billing for the sewer fund," McNamara said. "We also need the board to set up a bank account for the Sewer Capital Improvement Fund. The sewer ordinance requires us to have three separate bank accounts, which we do not have. We need this account set up to meet our financial obligations with the ordinance."

Another step that was taken to help pay back money taken from the road fund past township officials borrowed to pay sewer debt was the acceptance of a grant for more than $64,000. Boyle who played a key role in securing the grant said this is a step in the right direction to make their sewer and road fund whole again.

"Each little bit helps us get our funds back to the point to where they should be," Boyle said.

While subcommittee members work on a timeline for the township to implement the recommendations from Graham and Peacock, Jean Wierenga, township clerk, deputy treasurer Karen Wojan and auditor, Velda Kammermann, of Mason and Kammermann, are updating the records in question, said Jim Wojan, township treasurer.

"The clerk and deputy treasurer have been working to reconstruct records of all township funds dating back to 2001 as mandated by the state," Wojan said. "It's a very time consuming process. Our auditor has been guiding us through this process, and all funds, except the general fund are almost complete. We expect this process to be complete in about three weeks."

This action seems to go against the recommendation of having an outside person with substantial governmental accounting experience review the documents. Graham said in an email correspondence that the township should hire an outside firm because the township's auditor failed to notice the problems with the sewer fund for a number of years.

Boyle said it would of been more appropriate if Wierenga and Wojan would have informed the subcommittee and township board members about what they were doing because of the attorney recommendation to use another firm.

"Our attorney is in full support of what we are doing," Wojan said. "We are getting this buttoned up and worked out."

Township Supervisor Bill Haggard said once the records are complete from Wojan and Wierenga an accountant with governmental accounting experience should still review the work.

"We need to make sure we find out where this sewer money that was collected is at," Haggard said. "It is important we can show residents that our board can be trusted to properly handle the finances."

Haggard also hopes a correct audit of the township financial records will clear up questions surrounding the sewer fund and the township billing practices.

"Somehow money got moved or taken out and not recorded properly," Haggard said. "The same thing happened with collecting money it was either not recorded or not collected. Our board has got to fix this mess. We will continue to work with our attorney and officials at Rehmann Robson to make sure the clerk and treasurer get their figures in the right columns."

St. James Township officials also received a letter for the Michigan Department of Treasury on March 18, stating that 25 percent of the local unit's State Incentive Payments or payments issued under Public Act 140 of 1971, the Glenn Steil State Revenue Sharing Act, will be withheld until deficit elimination plan for the Yacht Dock fund and Sewer fund is submitted within 30 days from the date of the letter.

The Yacht Dock fund deficit is $21,382 and the Sewer fund deficit is $53,678.

Township officials have submitted the necessary documents to the treasury, Boyle said.

"The documents were submitted before the deadline, but we have not heard back from the Department of Treasury on the status of our share of state revenue sharing," Boyle said. "We hope to know something before June."

great process getting to the five they selected for interviews.

The interviews will be held at 6 p.m. on Monday, April 27, and Tuesday, April 28, at the Charlevoix High School Library. The public is encouraged to attend the interviews.

A second round of interviews is planned for May 5. Candidates and the times they will be interviewed are as follows:

Monday, April 27, — 6 p.m. Andrew Shaw, former superintendent of Pittsford Area Schools from 2007 to 2014. He previously served as elementary principal in Pittsford and was an elementary teacher in Hudson.

— 7 p.m. Michael Ritter, Principal at Ludington Middle School since 2003. He also has served as an elementary principal, elementary teacher and high school track coach.

— 8 p.m. Marshall Perkins, Principal at Holt Junior High since 2007. He has previously served as an assistant principal and high school social studies teacher.

Tuesday, April 28 — 6 p.m. Lenore Weaver, middle school principal in Big Rapids since 2010. She previously served as an assistant principal at the middle school, principal at the early childhood center and special education teacher.

— 7 p.m. Scott Koziol, superintendent of Michigan Center Schools since 2011. He previously served as school improvement consultant, curriculum director and elementary school teacher.

The superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools is responsible for the management and oversight of a $9 million budget, 100 employees and the education of about 1000 students.

School board President Dick Joseph said the board was very pleased with the field of candidates.

"We were able to choose from a highly qualified group with strong backgrounds in education," he said. "It is a very diverse mix of professionals."

Joseph said the board is working well together and he believes they have a cohesive board moving forward with the hiring process of a new superintendent.

Joseph said the board has agreed on certain criteria for the next superintendent like previous administrative experience and a successful track record of levy and bond issue work. But the board is also looking for a leader who understands what the school board and community values.

"We are looking for a good fit for Charlevoix schools," Joseph said. A tentative timetable of Monday, May 11, is set for when an offer will be made to the finalist. Candidates will need to complete a leadership assessment and have a background check completed.

GIRLS SOCCER

Undefeated Rayders dominate competition

GRAND RAPIDS — There hasn't been a whole lot that has been able to stop the Charlevoix girls' soccer team this season.

Slow down, maybe for a bit, but their undefeated run would continue on Saturday, when the Rayders earned an 8-0 win over Grand Rapids North-Pointe Christian.

Despite the lopsided score, Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten knows his team earned a win over a formidable opponent.

"NorthPointe Christian is a quality downstate program," said Scholten. "They played us hard creating a scoring opportunity at kick off. The first 25 minutes of the first half was hard fought."

Leah Davis would score the Rayders' first three goals of the contest, with assists coming from Elizabeth Way, Kylee Scholten and the third, unassisted.

With a 3-0 lead, Davis assisted Sophie Herboldshetmer, who would make it a 4-0 lead, then Raigan Novotny scored her first career high school goal, assisted from Rachel Neshburg.

"Our offensive attack was able to develop several scoring combinations the latter part of the first half and the girls hit their targets well," said Scholten.

Way would later setup Nesburg for a goal, as they took a 6-0 lead into the half.

"I was also pleased with how well our bench was able to come in and find and create scoring opportunities against a quality opponent," added Scholten.

INDIAN RIVER — It's still early in the boys golf season, but several area golfers and teams are showing they might be capable of making some noise.

That's especially true for Charlevoix, which turned in a second-place finish with a strong outing at the 10-team Chuck Palmer Invite hosted by Inland Lakes at Indian River Golf Club on Saturday.

Led by senior Noah Jeakle, who carded an 83 to finish tied for third in the 53 golfer field, Charlevoix shot 358 as a team to finish 22 strokes behind invite champion Cheboygan's 336.

Matt Good took seventh overall with a round of 86 on the Par 72 course to give Charlevoix a second top 10 finisher, and Tanner Drost and JJ Wachler each carded a 95 to finish tied for 14th for the Rayders.

Collin Turkleson shot a 100 as well for Charlevoix and Ryan Joy carded a 101.

Charlevoix splits with East Jordan in Lake Michigan conference twin bill CHARLEVOIX — It was a chilly, windy Northern Michigan day on Tuesday in Charlevoix for a baseball doubleheader between Charlevoix and East Jordan.

But while the temperatures were cold, the bats were red hot, as both teams found success at the plate in a competitive split between the two squads.

The offensive fireworks started right away in Game 1, as East Jordan pounded out 17 hits in an 11-6 victory.

Herschell Sutton led the Red Devils with two singles, a double and two RBIs, and Wyatt Crick and Trey Peterson each added three singles as well.

Jordan Weber doubled twice to drive in three runs for the Red Devils. Colin Shepard hit a double and a single and drove in a run, and Noah Raymond added a two run double for East Jordan, which rallied from an early 1-0 deficit to take a 7-6 lead in the top of the fourth, then added four insurance runs over the next two innings.

Pitcher Tucker Alward went the distance to get the win for East Jordan, striking out eight, walking seven and allowing six hits while helping his own cause with an RBI single at the plate.

Will Telgenhof led Charlevoix with a two-run double, Christian Matye chipped in a two-run single and Noah Certa hit a triple.

Nate Moon took the loss on the mound for the Rayders, pitching all six innings, striking out four and walking three.

In Game 2, the Rayders turned the tables on East Jordan with 11 hits, jumping out to a 6-1 lead after two innings and cruising to a 12-7 win.

Five players finished with multiple hits for Charlevoix, led by Moon, who went 2 for 3 with a triple and three RBIs, and Certa, who went 2 for 4 with three RBIs as well.

Matye went 2 for 3 with a triple and two RBIs for the Rayders, Austin Putman went 2 for 4 with two RBIs, Devin Largent finished 2 for 3 and Brad Klingler chipped in an RBI double.

Hunter Cox earned the win for Charlevoix, striking out four and walking five in six innings.

Charlevoix continues clean slate after topping Vikings

CHARLEVOIX — So far so good for the Charlevoix girls' tennis team.

Three matches in, the Rayders have been able to keep their clean slate in the losing column going, after a Lake Michigan Conference matchup with Grayling on Friday.

The Rayders won the match with the Vikings, 5-3, picking up three wins from their singles lineup.

At No. 1 singles, Rae Claramunt earned a 6-1, 6-4 win over Grayling's Riley Morley, while at No. 2 singles Jessica Paramo defeated Katie Proffitt, 6-0, 6-0.

The third singles win for the Rayders would come from Becca Moon, who defeated Sarah Pavey, 6-1, 6-1.

At No. 4 singles, Margaret Purvis took a 6-0, 6-1 loss to Allison Dorn.

Kylee Scholten would send a combination to sophomore Julia Doskoch, who finished the job to make it a 7-0 game, then Novotny ended the day with her second goal, making it an 8-0 mercy final.

Gloria Greene would pick up the win in goal, posting her fourth shutout of the season, while Scholten credited Isabel Hess, Olivia Storm Alex Seabes and Beth Veenstra, on the defensive end.

Storm comes over Kalkaska in 8-0 win

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix senior Olivia Storm hasn't had a whole lot of chances to score in her high school career.

Known as one of the better defenders in the Lake Michigan Conference, Storm's job has been to keep opposing goals off the board.

That would change on Tuesday, however, as the senior midfielder would get a chance to knock in a penalty kick and get onto the score sheet with her first career goal late in the first half of an 8-0 win over Kalkaska.

Storm would later get her second career goal, coming on a corner kick off the leg of junior Kylee Scholten.

Certainly no stranger to scoring, senior Leah Davis, would score her ninth goal of the season to start the day off for the Rayders, with Scholten stinging a pass over that would become her already eighth assist.

Freshman Rachel Nesburg would then add her 10th and 11th goals of the season, just a minute apart, with assists coming from Sophie Herboldsheimer and Devon Bottomley.

After 10 minutes went by, senior Elizabeth Way scored off a pass from Scholten for a 4-0 lead, then Scholten herself would get a goal, assisted by Davis.

Storm would later follow with her pair of goals to make it a 7-0 game heading into halftime against the Blazers.

The 8-0 mercy final would come down early in the second half as another career first would come from the Rayders, as Isabel Hess scored four minutes into the second.

Gloria Greene would earn

Alward led the Red Devils with two hits, including a double, and three RBIs. Bailey Sargent hit two RBI singles, and Shepard doubled twice.

Raymond singled twice as well for East Jordan. Weber hit an RBI double, and Crick hit an RBI single.

Colin Petrie took the loss for East Jordan, striking out three and walking two in five innings of work.

"It was a little sloppy on both sides, probably somewhat due to the weather," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "We have a ways to go to be the kind of team we want to be but we'll keep working at it."

Charlevoix is now 4-6 overall and 2-2 in the Lake Michigan Conference.

Rayders go 1-3 against tough downstate foes

MONTAGUE — Outside of one loss, the Charlevoix baseball team's pitching staff performed well in doubleheaders against Muskegon-area powers Whitehall and Montague this past weekend.

But a lack of run support proved to be trouble for the Rayders as they lost twice to the Vikings, 6-3 and 11-1, and split with the Wildcats.

Noah Certa finished with three hits and Christian Matye added two for Charlevoix in a 6-3 loss to Whitehall to open the weekend, but the Rayders struggled to get runs across the plate, with Hunter Cox managing the lone RBI on a double.

Nate Moon took the loss for the Rayders, walking five, striking out one and giving up seven hits in five innings, and Matye struck out two in an inning of relief.

Offense was even harder for Charlevoix to come by in an 11-1 loss in the nightcap, as the Rayders failed to muster a hit against Whitehall.

Austin Putman struck out two and walked four in three and two thirds innings of work to take the loss for Charlevoix.

"The second game was a crazy one; we didn't get a base hit despite the fact we actually hit the ball very well and only had two strikeouts," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Everything we hit was right at them and their outfielders made some great plays.

"We walked 11 batters in 11 innings pitched and that's too many to beat a good team like Whitehall."

Charlevoix pulled out a 1-0 win in the first game on Saturday against Montague thanks to Cox, who pitched a complete game shutout, striking out three and walking three.

Certa and Putman each finished with a hit for the Rayders, and Certa scored the lone run on an error.

In the nightcap, Charlevoix's bats came to life, rallying from a 6-0 deficit with three runs in the fifth and three more in the seventh to force extra innings, but the Wildcats got a walk-off walk in the bottom of the ninth to win, 7-6.

Will Telgenhof led

Charlevoix with two hits and three RBIs, while Putman added an RBI triple and Certa an RBI single as well.

"Rough weekend at the plate; we still cannot get hits to drop, but that's baseball," coach Telgenhof said. "I liked the way we were patient and took what they gave us in the seventh of the nightcap."

"It was a good weekend to get everyone some action and figure some things out about ourselves."

Charlevoix (3-5) takes on East Jordan on Tuesday in a crucial conference double-header.

East Jordan Red Devils take two from Charlevoix Rayders

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — The runs didn't come for the East Jordan softball team in every inning of a doubleheader sweep of host Charlevoix on Tuesday. But when they did come, they tended to come in bunches. The Red Devils rode a seven-run second inning in Game 1 to a 12-5 victory over the Rayders, then used a 10-run third inning to pull away in a 13-0 Game 2 victory as well. Lindsay Schroeder picked up the win for East Jordan in both games, striking out 11, walking two and giving up four total hits in nine innings, and Abby Peterson struck out five and walked one in three innings of relief. Schroeder also led East Jordan with four hits, including two doubles, on the day, and Kaitlin Loviska added four hits as well. Skylar Herriman took the losses for Charlevoix, striking out nine and walking 13 across both games, and Hailey Berry struck out one and walked four in relief. Nichole Hart led Charlevoix with a single and a double, and Berry chipped in two singles.

HARBOR SPRINGS — Rain, high winds and cold conspired to keep area runners from turning in their best performances at a Lake Michigan Conference quad meet on Monday in Harbor Springs. The Harbor Springs girls easily took top honors with 107 points, followed by East Jordan with 58 points. Charlevoix's girls team scored 29 points, led by runner-up finishes from Kourtney Putman in the 400 dash (1:07.47) and Sydney Whitley in the 300 hurdles (58.43). Harbor Springs' boys team put up 82 points to edge out Charlevoix by nine for the top spot in the quad. Much like the girls, Harbor Springs' strength in the throws proved to be a major part of its victory, as the Rams swept the top four spots in both the shot put and discus. Charlevoix won eight events, including all four relays, to score 73 points and take second. Parker Skeel won both hurdles races for Charlevoix, edging East Jordan's Andrew Halbert in both the 110 hurdles (17.15) and the 300 hurdles (44.93). Nick Plude won the 800 run (2:01.90) and Jared McLean took first in the 400 dash (55.27). The Rayders also won the 3,200 relay (8:49.16), the 1,600 relay (3:41.24), the 800 relay (1:38.62) and the 400 relay (47.89).

Ronald William Haggard

August 18, 1977 - April 27, 2000

Once a day, and sometimes more,
You knock upon my dream door,
And I say warmly, "Come right in,
I'm glad you're here with my again!"
Then we sit down and have a chat,
Recalling this, discussing that,
Until some talk that I must do
Fences me away from you -
Reluctantly I say good-bye,
Smiling with a little sigh,
For though my dreams bring you home -
I wish that you were really here -
But what reality can't change
My dreams and wishes can remove
And through my wish wishing you'll be
To me each day, a guest in thought
In memory - his loving

Charlevoix schools bond issue on May 5 ballot

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 • allen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Registered voters in the Charlevoix Public Schools District will see more than the statewide bond proposal on the Tuesday, May 5, ballot. They also will decide to either support or decline a $5 million bond proposal.

Board of education president Dick Joseph hopes that the school bond proposal will resonate better with voters than what he has heard about Proposal 1.

"I'm worried that many people going to the polls will have a negative attitude toward Prop 1, and that attitude will carry over to our bond request," Joseph said. "It would be real easy to mark no on each ballot request, but that choice would hurt our schools."

The bond would allow the district to make a number of big improvements at each school, such as roofing, electrical and technology upgrades as well as improving the bus garage roof and replace the aging bus fleet.

"We have six buses that are in danger of being listed by the state as not being road worthy," Joseph said. "These are our greatest needs."

Four of those buses have odometers reading more than 200,000 miles while the other two have more than 190,000 miles, said interim Superintendent Tom Stobie.

"We are at the point where eight of our buses may be red flagged by the state and ordered off the roads," Stobie said. "Our CHARLEVOIX — Staff and volunteers were on site at Beacon Dental Center on Saturday, April 25, to lend a helping hand to area residents who woke up early to get a good place in line for the free dental care event.

A tent had been set up as a waiting area on the front lawn of its Charlevoix offices to offer patients protection from the unseasonably cool weather. Members of the staff reported that line formed as early as 4 a.m. with about 20 people to take advantage of the completely free trip to the dentist.

Dr. Michael Sullivan along with his staff and volunteers provided the dental care. More than 40 members of the community passed through the facility and received a combined $20,000 worth of dental care including cleaning, fillings and extractions, according to Carol Sullivan.

CHARLEVOIX — The search for a new school superintendent for the Charlevoix Public School District is progressing as planned, according to school board President Dick Joseph.

The semifinalist interviews have been completed, and two finalists have been scheduled for final interviews with the board beginning at 6 p.m. Tuesday, May 5. Each candidate will get a tour of the school district that same day.

The two finalists are Scott Koziol and Michael Ritter. Koziol has been superintendent of Michigan Center Schools since 2011. Koziol previously served as school improvement consultant, curriculum

Charlevoix City Council narrows applicant list to 3 for city's top job

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — After some five hours of interviews on April 20, the Charlevoix City Council whittled five semifinalists for the vacant city manager position to three finalists: Michael Spencer, Aaron Desentz and Mark Heydlauff.

Desentz is the Shelby village administrator, Heydlauff is the Bronson city manager and Spencer is serving as Charlevoix's interim city manager.

Once interviews were completed, the council took less than a half hour to decide who would move on to the next round of interviews, which will begin at 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 12, said Charlevoix

3 city council seats up for election in November

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 • allen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — There will be no August primary for city of Charlevoix elective offices — but the positions of three city council seats nevertheless will be filled in the November general election.

It would take more than two candidates in the race from a ward in order to force an August primary, but voters in Ward 1, will have to decide if they want to reelect local dentist Dr. Jeff Porter or elect Bridge Street Tap room partner and manager Aaron Hagen.

Hagen is running for city council because he believes residents want a new approach to governing on the city council.

"I want the chance to work with the city council as an elected official and help shape city policies that will bring prosperity to the town I love, and grew up in," Hagen said.

If Hagen is elected, he would like to see policies that would promote a vibrant downtown and bring Charlevoix back to a time where a business could survive being open year-round.

"As a downtown business owner I want to see businesses that don't shut down after the three best months of the year," Hagen said. "We need policies that foster year-round growth in our community, attract young professionals and help build a better Charlevoix."

Hagen believes that those ideas can come to fruition with the city's commitment to the Main Street Program and working with residents throughout the city to find common ground on when there are differences.

"The people who live here are proud of their community," Hagen said. "I want to see the city I am passionate about continue to grow, where I can raise a family and have children that will grow up in the community I grew up in. A place with good schools and a vibrant economy."

Porter said he also wants to see Charlevoix prosper and will continue to work with council on the projects the city has started.

"I plan on continuing to see that money is put toward infrastructure improvements," Porter said. "We have let our infrastructure go too long without proper improvements. We saw that last winter and this

Circumnavigating the Great Loop

LEONIE ALLAN
(231) 547-6558 • alan@charv.com

Editors Note: "The Members Log" is a monthly series where the Charlevoix Courier will feature a member of the Tip of the Mitt Sail and Power Squadron. The series is designed to tell the personal boating stories of each member, share their experiences with the organization and tell the reader of the many places members have traveled to with their boats. This month the Courier turns its light to Bill Fleck, of Charlevoix. Fleck is an executive officer in the Tip of the Mitt Sail and Power Squadron.

CHARLEVOIX — Tip of the Mitt Sail and Power Squadron education officer Bill Fleck has a sense of adventure when it comes to being on the water. Fleck and his wife have lived aboard their boat — a 36-foot power catamaran — and have traversed America's Great Loop — a water route through river systems and open ocean that runs from Lake Michigan down the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, around the tip of Florida, up the East Coast, and winds back into the Great Lakes area.

"Boating is in my blood," Fleck said. "Living aboard and boating the Intercoastal Waterway is an experience my wife and I enjoy doing together."

Fleck has been water orientated his whole life. He grew up within a mile of Lake St. Clair and his father liked being on the water.

"We kept a small fishing boat on Lake St. Clair and also most of our family vacations were somewhere that was either on the water or close to it," Fleck said. "Growing up, I fell asleep to the soothing, deep bass sounds of the Lake freighters signaling on which side they were going to pass each other — one blast or two — in the narrow channel that crossed Lake St. Clair."

Fleck got certified for bareboat charting through the American Sailing Association and he took his first United States Sail and Power Squadron class in Lansing.

"By the time my wife and I retired to Charlevoix, we had chartered both power and sail boats," Fleck said. "We took cruises with friends on their sailboats and knew we loved sailing."

After buying a 36-foot power catamaran in Georgia, Fleck and his wife set off exploring. The first few years they spent four to five months living aboard their boat until the short days and cooler weather encouraged them home.

"This was the beginning of our 'Great Loop' journey," he said. "To increase our knowledge we also started taking more advance United States Sail and Power Squadron classes through Tip of the Mitt Sail and Power Squadron, which we also had joined."

Working through the recommended series of courses, Fleck and his wife became advance pilots in the squadron. After that he began teaching some of the classes that he had taken.

"There is no surer way to know and really understand a subject than to turn around and teach it," Fleck said. "We were immediately able to put our new knowledge to work on our new boat as we traveled the Intercoastal Waterway with its various rivers and canals."

As an education officer in the squadron, Fleck has taught most of the classes offered by it.

"During this time, our squadron has grown quite a bit," Fleck said. "My current position of executive officer affords me the opportunity to sit on the executive board with other officers and help direct and guide our events and classes."

"I have benefited tremendously from the contacts and friends I have made through our squadron," Fleck added. "I look forward to our general membership monthly meeting where I can listen to and learn from the knowledgeable speakers and interact with other boaters, who, like me, love the water and boating."

Cycling the Tour Divide with Jason Snell

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Library, 220 W. Clinton St., is hosting the program, "Cycling the Tour Divide" with Jason Snell at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, May 5. Endurance bicyclist Jason Snell shares his adventures from last summer's Tour Divide Race riding a fixed-gear bicycle taking 30 days to complete the 2,745-mile route from Banff, Alberta, Canada to Antelope Wells, New Mexico along the U.S.-Mexican border.

The Tour Divide challenge is simple: Race the rooftop of North America by mountain bike; travel self-supported along all 2,745 miles of the Adventure Cycling Association's Great Divide Mountain Bike Route; keep moving and be moved; exist well outside one's comfort zone in tackling a cross-continent bikepacking odyssey; finish as fast as possible without cracking. Jason will bring his bike, gear, maps and pictures and offer background information about the tour divide race.

Jason Snell of Conway is the service manager of Latitude 45. He has ridden across the United States, done the Ausable River Canoe Marathon and has participated in many adventure races. Snell commutes to work every day year round.

Northern Health Plan fills in gaps in insurance coverage

CHARLEVOIX — The Northern Health Plan continues to have money to help pay insurance premiums for people who cannot afford their employer-sponsored coverage.

Bruce Miller, executive director of the Northern Health Plan, says the plan is helping several families who meet the criteria for the program, and funds are available to help more people.

"All too often financial support for employer-sponsored coverage is limited only to the employee," Miller said. "When the employee goes to add dependents the cost becomes unaffordable."

Miller said this is why the Northern Health Plan started what he calls the "Family Glitch" program. He is urging residents of Emmet, Charlevoix, Antigonish, Otsego, Cheboygan, Presque Isle, Montmorency and Alpena counties to contact Enroll Northern Michigan if they have unaffordable employer premiums to see if they qualify for help.

"The contact person for this program is Nichole Cyr at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. She can be reached at (800) 432-4121," Miller said.

The Northern Health Plan is a nonprofit corporation funded by area hospitals and county government. It is dedicated to helping uninsured people get coverage. It ended its old programs of assistance when the Affordable Care Act and the Healthy Michigan Program went into effect, but it still has funds to use to fill gaps in coverage.

"If you qualify, you might be able to get your employer-sponsored insurance for family for about the same amount you would pay for insurance through the Healthcare Marketplace," Miller said.

Charlevoix School Board president urges support for school bond

To the residents of the Charlevoix Public School District, I'm asking for your support on the "Bond Issue" request, which is on the Tuesday, May 5, ballot. Historically, the people in the Charlevoix School District have supported their schools with their time, energy and their vote. I am hoping that this time will be no different.

I realize that there is a very controversial issue on the ballot, Proposal 1, to raise taxes supposedly for road repairs — among many other things. Along with many of you, I am angry that this has been placed on our laps, even though some of the money, which would be raised by that proposal is earmarked for schools. That said, please do not let your anger over that proposal carry over and cause you to vote "No" on this very important, local bond issue.

This bond replaces a bond, which you generously passed in 2008, and has now been paid off. We are essentially asking for the same amount of money, but the actual millage rate is lower this time, so the cost to you will be lower.

We accomplished a lot with the money you so generously approved last time. A flyer went out detailing many of the projects which were completed with those funds. I openly admit that we did not complete everything we wanted with that money and we most likely will not be able to complete everything we are proposing in that flyer. Just like at your home, things come up that are unexpected or unanticipated and need to be addressed. That happened before and I am sure it will again.

However, we did some really great and important projects with your money. We built a bus garage, purchased four buses and a beautiful handicap bus. We put a lot of money into our technology, purchasing "whiteboards" for the classrooms and iPads for every student. We became a leader in technology-based education because of your support. We also made some major repairs to our buildings, some of which were a bit of a surprise. I can assure you that every cent was spent only after careful consideration and obtaining the best price.

We now have a new board of education with four new members. In the last four months, your school board has come together and become a cohesive, hardworking and dedicated group. I have heard the rumor that we are asking for this bond without a plan in place for how to use the funds. That is simply not true. We know that we will need more buses in the next three years because the state will "red flag" them if they are not replaced. We have retained professionals to advise us on how to move forward with the use of our elementary and/or middle school building. A decision on that issue will take some time and then there will be a great deal of work needed to make our K-6 building functional. In the meantime, we need to make some repairs to our elementary building so that our students have the facility they deserve. Another project that needs immediate attention is security in our buildings. Through the creative effort of our interim superintendent, we received a substantial grant to help pay for a portion or what is needed to make our schools safe. But more is needed and this bond will pay for that project.

In the next few weeks, we will have a new superintendent. With the leadership of this board and a superintendent with vision for the future of our district, I am confident that the money raised with these bonds will be very well spent and that you, the residents of our district, will be proud of what is accomplished with your generous support. We know it is your hard earned money that makes our district the best school system in Northern Michigan.

We have a dedicated, hardworking and motivated group of teachers, administrators and support staff. Most important, we have 1,000 incredible students. Please show your support for them and your community with your "YES" vote on this bond proposal on May 5.

If you have any questions, comments or concerns, we would really love to discuss them with you. Please feel free to call me, our Interim Superintendent, Tom Stobie, or any board member. Thank you for all you do to make our school such a great place for our students and our community. Vote "YES" on May 5.

Sincerely,
Dick Joseph, President,
Charlevoix Board of Education

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

During World War II, Charlevoix's population was right about where it is now, about 2,547 according to the last census. During those hard post-Depression times, this little town managed to raise $300,000 in four weeks to purchase a Boeing B17G Flying Fortress for the war effort, with the help of the summer crowd. Committees began the collection drive and in late July of 1943, Orville Gatti, restaurant manager of the Colonial Club fine dining and gambling establishment on Meach Street — just off Dixon Avenue — bought the first war bond for $1,000. Two days later, the city council chipped in $5,000. Two days after that the pledge total was up to $75,000. Three weeks into the campaign that increased to $202,000. Two days before the drive was to end a final $10,000 sent the campaign effort over the top. The Army Air Force "City of Charlevoix" took to the skies not long after, combat destination unknown. Shown are the campaign directors congratulating themselves beneath the topped-out fund thermometer attached to the Clinton Street wall of the old Central Drug Store building.

GUEST OPINION: Proposal 1 is not the solution

It's no secret that Michigan roads are among the nation's worst. A shining example is the shape of our Northern Michigan roads. Because of the more extreme weather conditions and limited funds to our road commissions, you don't have to travel far to realize that our roads need more funding.

In my opinion, Michigan's road crisis is a result of the lack of priority in our state budget and long term funding solutions must be implemented very soon before the problem gets worse and people get hurt.

However, does the fact that Michigan's roads need more funding mean that Proposal 1 is the best option? Is it true that there is no "Plan B" in the legislature to fix our crumbling roads and bridges? What exactly will happen and how much will our taxes be increased if Proposal 1 passes?

First, let me answer the question regarding what this proposal does. This package is 11 bills in all and it includes numerous sweeteners that have little or nothing to do with roads. At the center of Prop 1 is an increase in Michigan's sales tax from 6 percent to 7 percent, which equals a 16.7 percent jump in the tax that you pay on everyday items that you purchase. This would make Michigan's base sales tax one of the highest in the country — second after California. Prop 1 also changes the structure of the taxes paid at the pump by eliminating the 19 cent per gallon tax and the 6 percent sales tax at the pump, and replaces them with a 14.9 percent wholesale tax on gasoline. In essence, this would increase the money you pay at the pump, and, in total, increase the taxes the average Michigan family pays per year by approximately $500 to $800.

Now, all of the revenues raised will go toward fixing roads, correct? Wrong. Actually, when everything is added up, this proposal increases revenues in Michigan's budget by $2.1 billion, but more than $800 million of that goes to places other than roads. At least the remaining $1.3 billion goes to repair roads, right? Wrong again. In the first year alone, $800 million would be spent to pay down old debt.

Second, let me address the question regarding whether Proposal 1 is the best option. I believe you must first answer this question, "Are Michigan citizens under taxed, or does the state of Michigan over spend?" If you believe that Michigan's families, workers and seniors are under taxed, then you will probably support this bill. However, if you believe that Michigan's budget needs to be better prioritized to ensure that road projects and our county road commissions are provided with more adequate funds, then you are not alone. Rather than punishing taxpayers and saddling more of a financial burden upon them, maybe it's time our government does the responsible thing and better prioritizes just like hardworking Michigan families have been forced to do.

That leads me to plan "B." I have co-sponsored legislation that phases out the 6 percent sales tax and 19 cent per gallon tax that you pay at the pump and transitions it to a wholesale tax. This change would also require that all of the money you pay at the pump goes to Michigan's roads without a tax increase. What a novel idea, right? Currently, none of the six percent sales tax that you pay at the pump goes to our roads, and I believe that the condition of our infrastructure is indicative of that.

As a Michigan resident, you send your legislators to Lansing to make tough decisions and to improve our state by securing your God-given rights and providing basic governmental services that align with our Constitution. I believe it's time that the legislature does its job and finds meaningful solutions, and that's what I intend to do should voters reject Proposal 1. While I am not advocating for a YES or NO vote, I personally believe that Proposal 1 is an irresponsible use of taxpayer dollars. It does not adequately fix our road crisis: therefore, I will not be supporting it. Regardless of where you stand on Proposal 1, I encourage you to exercise your constitutional right and get out and vote on May 5.

Lee Chatfield,
state representative

COMMUNITY Highlights

More than 100 attend Autism Speaks event

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Courier

BOYNE CITY — The sun came out along with about 130 participants for the fourth annual Walk for Autism Awareness, on Saturday, April 25, in Boyne City.

The walk brought together families and friends who have been touched by autism. The event is sponsored by North Country Community Health, and co-organized by Christine Lenhon, Children and Family Services supervisor and staff member Heather Smith.

Autism is a developmental disorder that impairs the ability to communicate and interact.

The walk is one of many grass-roots efforts taking place in our country and around the world in April, which has been designated as "Autism Awareness Month" as part of the "Autism Speaks" movement.

Neighbors, friends, parents and families gathered, hugged each other, walked or pushed strollers and by their presence and participation let it be known that two of the most important pieces in the autism puzzle are awareness and support. Early diagnosis and intervention hold the key to the best outcomes.

Ian Weller is with his mother and autism advocate, Linda Weller, at the Autism Speaks event in Boyne City on Saturday, April 25.

Ian Weller, 27-year-old son of Kenneth and Linda Weller, of Charlevoix, is now able to speak candidly about autism. He provides his own voice by writing poetry and has published two collections.

"I didn't know I was a poet until one day in 10th grade," Ian said. "I was writing some lines on a white board and someone said 'That's poetry.'" Ian's first collection was rather dark, remembering lonely and difficult times. In his second book, "Strength for Autism," he is able to look forward with hope.

Ian was diagnosed in elementary school and provided with special services through Charlevoix Emmet Intermediate School District (Char-Em) through those years, said Linda Weller, who had only praise for the Char-Em specialists who picked up on Ian's disorder during the 3-year-old screening and continued to provide training, intervention and support.

With their guidance, he was mainstreamed as much as possible; his teachers also helped to create an atmosphere of acceptance among his peers. Weller had tears in her eyes when she talked about how the undefeated middle school football team under coach Keith Haske voted Ian an MVP Award at the end of the season. Later, "when Ian was a senior, coach Jess allowed him to be part of the varsity team. It meant so much to us all to have him happy and feel accepted," Weller said.

Ian graduated from Charlevoix High School and received an associate degree from North Central Michigan College in Petoskey in News Media and Web Design. He presently works for Gaslight Media as a web developer and graphics designer.

Mike Atchison, the founder of Northern Michigan Autism Association in Petoskey, became another influence in Ian's journey. This community organization's mission is to offer individuals and families information and support to deal with autism.

According to Ian and his mother, they have received many coping mechanisms and services from that association as well as from the Char-Em teams. Linda Weller is especially grateful to Dr. Karen Olson, a retired child psychologist, who served as a consultant to Char-Em, and continues to keep in touch with Ian's progress and accomplishments.

"In the early 1990s there was a lack of knowledge in the medical profession about autism," Linda said. "We were told by specialists at a downstate hospital early on, that we might want to institutionalize our son. As parents we knew we would do anything we could to avoid that prospect and get help for Ian elsewhere; we have been blessed to have received so much."

May is mental health month

PETOSKEY — North Country Community Mental Health reminds people that May is Mental Health Month. "Mind Your Health" is this year's theme for North Country's Mental Health Month activities to draw attention to the importance of mental health to overall health and wellness.

"We know that mental health is integral to overall health," said Alexis Kaczynski, director of North Country Community Mental Health. "People need to care for their mental health so they can respond to the stress of daily life and the challenges it presents."

"This Mental Health Month, we are encouraging everyone to learn about steps they can take to protect their mental health and balance both mind and body. For example, building social support, eating with your mental health in mind, and stress management are important steps that promote good mental health," Kaczynski said.

North Country Community Mental Health has planned the following activities during the month of May:

— Wednesday, May 6 — People who receive services from North Country will participate in the 11th statewide "Walk a Mile in My Shoes Rally" in Lansing from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the State Capitol. Michigan's 46 community mental health agencies are hosting the rally. A number of people plan to attend the event to help raise awareness among state legislators about mental health issues and to help combat the discrimination and prejudice associated with mental illness, intellectual and developmental disabilities along with substance use disorders. Eighty-three people who use mental health services, one from each county in the state, will deliver brief statements from the capitol steps about the status of the public mental health system in their counties.

— Saturday, May 9 — 18th annual 5K Run/One Mile Walk at the Bayfront Park, Petoskey waterfront area by the clock tower. The Governor's Council on Physical Fitness, Health and Sports has endorsed the event and the 5K run will be timed by Professional Race Management. Late registration will take place on the day of the run/walk from 8:30-9:30 a.m. at the Petoskey waterfront. The run will begin at 10 a.m. and the walk at 10:10 a.m. Registration fee for the run is $20 before May 3 and $25 after. There is no charge for the walk. Log on to ncccmh.org or active.com for race and walk registration forms and for more information on May is Mental Health Month or call North Country Community Mental Health at (231) 347-0740.

OBITUARIES

Paul Allen Lindberg, 72

Paul Allen Lindberg, 72, of Charlevoix, passed away Saturday, April 25, 2015, in his home. He was born Aug. 1, 1942, in Cleveland, Ohio, to Paul E. and Mary Elizabeth (Kling) Lindberg. Paul graduated from Trenton High School in 1960 and attended Parsons College in Fairfield, Iowa, where he was a member of the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. He also studied landscape architecture at Michigan State University and later cultivated landscape projects on Grosse Ile, an island in the Downriver area, highlighting his classic design and passion for wildlife and land conservation.

Paul moved to Charlevoix in 1982 where he owned and operated Dairy Queens in Petoskey, Traverse City and Alanson. He continued his landscape work and conservation throughout the United States as well as local projects which include the Charlevoix Country Club and most recently St. Mary's Catholic Church rectory.

In the late 1990s, Paul and Georgeann purchased and renovated the historic Round Island Lighthouse on the St. Mary's River. As a result, he invented a landscape tool for large rock removal, "The Rock Jaw." It is manufactured in Petoskey and sold worldwide. Paul supported Charlevoix projects such as Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, sponsored The Golden Eye Cross Country Race at Golden Eye Farm; led fundraising efforts to preserve The Horton Bay Parade; and in 1992, received the Honorary Sheriff Award presented by Charlevoix's County Sheriff George Lasater. Paul loved hunting and fishing and donated to Duck's Unlimited, The Billfish Foundation and the Audubon Society.

On Aug. 4, 1978, he married the former Georgeann Konieczny on Grosse Ile. Georgeann survives Paul, as do their children, Brian (Cheryl) Hoffman of Clearwater, Fla., Amy (Daniel) Allen of Chicago, Ill., and Elizabeth (Phillip) Dinwiddie of Grosse Ile; grandchildren, Duke, Thomas, Anna and Brandon; sister, Nancy (Maynard) Stetten of Louisville, Ky.; sister-in-law, Suzanne (Mark) Bruning of Switzerland; and nephews, Matthew Stetten and Alaric Bruning.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to Hospice of Northwest Michigan, Charlevoix Area Hospital and/or St. Mary's School Angel Fund.

Julia Leath Orr, 95

Julia Leath Orr, 95, died peacefully Saturday, April 25, 2015, with her family at her side.

Julia was originally from Indiana, but lived her last 15 years in Northern Michigan. Prior to that she was a regular summer visitor who particularly enjoyed the birds and flowers of this area.

She was an expert seamstress who made many of her family's clothes. She also enjoyed knitting and making braided rugs. Until her eyesight declined, she loved to read and do crosswords. She remained a tough opponent at cards with the help of large print cards. She was an encyclopedia of historical facts, another one of her interests.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Robert W. Orr, and her four siblings.

She is survived by her daughter, Margaret A. Orr, M.D., of Harbor Springs and many nieces and nephews.

For the last 11 years, Julia lived at Autumn Joy AFC. The owners, John Caron and Jeff Prell, the staff and the other residents made her last years some of the happiest. For that reason, Julia's family requests the memorial contributions be directed to Autumn Joy, 09020 Upper Bay Shore Road, Charlevoix, MI 49720 so that others may have their lives similarly blessed.

Workers on Wheels program to giveaway a car to one lucky family in Charlevoix area

CHARLEVOIX — As part of Goodwill's enhanced services for Charlevoix County, Goodwill Northern Michigan's Workers on Wheels program has purchased a used vehicle to donate back to a Charlevoix-area family in need and they are seeking the local community's help in selecting a deserving family.

The Workers on Wheels program has assisted hundreds of local families with vehicles since 1999. Donated cars are inspected, repaired and awarded to a low-income, working family in need. In this working endeavor, all vehicles are awarded in the same area from which they were donated. Goodwill is coordinating a special, one-time vehicle giveaway to a deserving family living in Charlevoix County. The hope is that this giveaway will raise awareness of the program and inspire vehicle donations in the Charlevoix area to help additional individuals and families in need.

Nominations will open April 28 and end on May 12. Check goodwillnmi.org/wowgiveaway for updates and to get in the nominations. The car will be awarded at the Goodwill store and donation center in Charlevoix on May 22.

Goodwill Northern Michigan, a locally operated nonprofit charitable organization, is expanding its donations-based retail presence and mission services to better accommodate its vast territory. The local Goodwill has a service territory of 19 Northern Michigan counties, from Wexford to Presque Isle, with Traverse City acting as its hub. Because of this, many of Goodwill's core services are based in Grand Traverse county, including The Goodwill Inn Homeless Shelter, Mi Fresh Start Food Truck and Special Events, and Farm to Freezer.

Other programs have a broader impact, such as Food Rescue of Northwest Michigan, which impacts families in at least five different counties, and Patriot Place, Goodwill's transitional housing community for veterans located in Gaylord. Veterans come from all over the state for residency at Patriot Place. Additionally, Goodwill's workforce development programs are present at all retail store and donation centers, and the rapidly growing hospitality training program launched its first class outside of Traverse City. In Charlevoix, during April of this year.

"Confluences: Connecting Science, History and Art," is a collaborative effort by the Jordan River Arts Council and Raven Hill Discovery Center.

The exhibition informs as much as it pleases the eye. winter with all of our water problems. We cannot attract new businesses to the area if our infrastructure is crumbling."

Porter also supports the current shade tree program and would like to see that plan grow with the use of grants and donations. He also wants to preserve the natural beauty of Charlevoix, by working with council on policies that promote and care for the local beaches, nature trails and parks.

"We live in an area that is naturally appealing to people," Porter said. "Our parks, wooded areas, lakes and beaches are wonderful and need to remain pristine. These areas are one of the main reasons that Charlevoix is a resort community. The resorts were built here because people saw how beautiful this place is and moved here."

Deadline to register to vote in the November election is Oct. 5, said Charlevoix City Clerk, Joyce Golding.

City council members

Leon Perron, representing Ward 2, and Shirley Gibson, representing Ward 3, will run unopposed in November.

"It's pretty much a formality for them," Golding said.

Human Resource Assistant Patty DeRosia, who helped facilitate the council during the semifinalist interviews.

"In the morning city staff will give tours to the two outside candidates," DeRosia said. "The final interviews will start in the afternoon and also will be open to the public."

For some council members, the right fit for Charlevoix is someone who has background or understanding about city management, but also understands the community and has a vision for the future.

"I think experience and personality is the biggest factor in deciding who we chose," said council member Bill Supernaw. "In my mind these three are the ones who have what it takes to do the number one job in the city."

Council member Shane Cole said although Desentz is from a smaller town than Charlevoix, his energy and knowledge of local government gave him a qualified perspective that could serve Charlevoix well in its dealings with local groups and governments.

"He has the ability to really understand Charlevoix and really understand each of our partners, but so does Mark (Heydlauff)," Cole said, adding that each candidate is equally qualified for the city manager position. "Each of them did their homework about Charlevoix and have what we are looking for in our new city manager."

Council member Jeff

Porter is satisfied with the three finalists.

"They have experience in city hall and experience in the city manager position," Porter said. "I can see each of them having an active role in our community. All three finalists are energetic and appear to have great ideas to lead our city."

Council member Luther Kurtz said he was impressed with all five candidates and feels the three finalists could bring new ideas to the city.

"There's the experience factor that they each bring to the table," Kurtz said. "I think that we found the best three for the job and the right one could lead Charlevoix to some really, really good places once we give one of them the chance."

During the interviews beforehand, council members asked each candidate questions such as who the most difficult person they had to deal with was, to name a situation where they had to "get in the trenches" and take personal responsibility for a city problem, and to describe their approach to communication and public relations.

"They answered council's questions well," Kurtz said. "They each had good answers, were able to share their job experiences with us and give great examples to go with their answers."

The council will make their choice for the city manager's position sometime after the last round of interviews. The final interviews will be conducted at City Hall and are open to the public. Public comment will be welcome after city council discussion, DeRosia said.

SUPERINTENDENT

director and elementary school teacher. Ritter is the principal at Ludington Middle School and also has served as an elementary principal, elementary teacher and high school track coach.

During final interviews, the public will be allowed to submit questions for the two finalists to answer, said Rod Green, a consultant with the Michigan Association of School Boards.

Green is assisting the Charlevoix board with its superintendent search. Before the board started discussion of the candidate attributes during the April 28 meeting, he cautioned the board to focus on positive attributes when discussing whom to move forward, saying that the board wasn't choosing the new superintendent; it was selecting the people it wanted to know more about in the process.

"We only bring you successful people," Green said. "These are folks who put themselves out there, who expose themselves and make themselves very vulnerable in the process, and they know only one of them is going to get selected."

The question the board should consider was whether the candidate matched the superintendent profile that the district established, Green said.

A majority of school board members spoke favorably of Koziol and were ready to move him forward during the discussion on Tuesday.

"He's got the superintendent experience," Joseph said. "I was impressed in the interview that he has the experience and he can hit the ground running."

Board trustee Mike Moon also agreed Koziol fit what the board was looking for in their next superintendent.

"I thought, of all of the candidates, he fit the most of the characteristics of that profile," Moon said. "He has been a leader and said things that I would of never considered about when running a school district."

Board members also were ready to move Ritter forward during the discussion.

"I have a good feeling about him," said trustee Matt Peterson. "He was calm and had a steady hand about him during the interview."

School board secretary and treasurer Douglas Bergmann offered favorable comments about Lenore Weaver, Big Rapids Middle School principal.

"She's showed an incredible, personal passion about education," Bergmann said. "She may not have the experience as the other two, but experience doesn't always make you the best fit for the job."

Green said the great thing about the interviews is that each school board member picks up different things from each candidate's interview, which allows for a healthy discussion when it comes to choosing who moves forward.

"I appreciate how much everybody stuck to the process and supported the process and really embraced the process," Green said. "I think it did bring you two good candidates to choose from next week."

BOND

buses are the first priority with this bond."

Security and school safety is another need for the schools that Joseph wants to get across to voters in the district.

"We want to remind them that in our climate today that that's one of our primary concerns as school board members that our schools are safe for our students," Joseph said. "We want our schools to have security measures in place that protect our students, teachers and district staff."

The district's other improvements, such as replacing the aging roof of the elementary school, bus garage repairs and updated technology are on the list, Joseph said.

"I can see where it will be nothing but good for school district," Joseph said.

The school board sent out letters and pamphlets to educate and remind voters about the school district's needs. Some of the money from the bond proposal would go to playground upgrades and to re-surface the track at the football field.

"I think we've done an adequate job trying to inform our public of what this bond proposal's about," Joseph said.

But it's up to the voters, and it seems most parents are on board, Stoble said.

"Historically the schools in Charlevoix receive support from the residents," Stoble said. "We hope they see this bond is as important as the past bond that was paid off this year."

Earth, Wind and Fire exhibit opens at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts

CHARLEVOIX — "Earth, Wind and Fire," an invitational exhibit, opening Saturday, May 2, at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, will feature eight Michigan artists well known for their innovative techniques in the disciplines of clay, glass and metal.

Clay artist, Rosita Gendernalk, resides in Indian River. Her exquisite pieces have been shown in many venues throughout Michigan including Denno's Museum in Traverse City, Petoskey's Crooked Tree and Aiden Dow Center in Midland. Gendernalk is a chemical engineer and upon retirement enrolled in Oakland Community College ceramics program. Her style is referred to as "petal built" where individual clay pieces are put together to form a vessel. A large vessel, 19 to 22 inches tall, contains more than 4000 petals. Flowers or insects are appliquéd piece by piece.

Andrew Otis of East Jordan, is becoming a very well known clay artist, having developed his own style in clay over the last few years. He exhibits his magnificent work at prestigious shows in Florida, Michigan, Missouri and Kansas. Otis has received many awards for his large decorative vessels. He feels that the large vessels become canvases for unique carving and glazing styles.

Glass artist, Kathy Kregear, also brings to the exhibit a unique style of glass, often combined with metals such as copper and stainless steel. Her work is well known throughout the Midwest and has been commissioned by corporations as well as public and private permanent collections.

Jordan Valley Glassworks, of East Jordan, is known throughout northwest Michigan but, their reputation for beautiful hand blown ornaments as well as sculptural bowls in an array of colors, chandeliers, waterfalls and centerpieces are known far and wide in the U.S. and Europe. Jay Bayers is a third generation glass blower learning techniques from his Russian-born grandfather, while growing up in New York. Jordan Valley has been commissioned by Gov. Rick Snyder's office among others for their beautiful ornaments.

Albert Young owns and operates Michigan Hot Glass Studio, one of the oldest glass studio workshops in Michigan. Young is a pivotal member of Detroit area glass community and is on the faculty of the College of Creative Studies. Young is best known for his glass sculptures using innovative casting techniques and combinations of glass and steel.

Cherie Haney's innovative three-dimensional geometric wall pieces are stunning. The contemporary styling of her work, created in her Ann Arbor studio, immediately attracts the eye whether it be one piece or a grouping. Haney's work is found in galleries in many states as well as in private residences and corporate and public venues including Munson Hospital in Traverse City.

Cra Fuller, has brought his one of a kind sculptural figures from Ypsilanti for the Circle's exhibit. Fuller creates his sculptures each with its own personality from lost, broken and forgotten relics. Fuller said he has always been a "fan of vintage vision."

Danlei Roache, of Petoskey, is a metal sculptor working primarily in colorful wall relief sculptures. Roache has been commissioned by corporate and public venues all over the United States. Each sculpture is specifically designed with content relevant to the clients or visitors who will be viewing the sculpture.

The Earth, Wind and Fire exhibit will have an opening reception from 5-7 p.m. on Saturday, May 2. The exhibit will be at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, 109 Clinton St., from May 2 through June 21. The exhibit is free and donations are greatly appreciated. Gallery hours are noon to 4 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays.

Historic presentation May 5

At 7 p.m. on Tuesday, May 5, at the Depot on Depot Beach in Charlevoix, the Charlevoix Historical Society will present a fully illustrated program about the history of Charlevoix's Belvedere and Chicago Club resorts. The program will be narrated by Harsha House Museum Curator David L. Miles. Many of the vintage images accompanying the narration are from the clubs' private collections and have never been shown before.

The Belvedere and Chicago Club have been integral parts of Charlevoix's urban landscape since the late 1870s and early 1880s. Both were founded by church groups, the Belvedere by downstate and northern Indiana Baptists, the Chicago Club by the 1200-strong First Congregational Church of Chicago. Their reputations later began to attract members from around the country. Several well-known names have been associated with both resorts.

As in the past, Historical Society members may attend at no charge. Non-members will be asked to contribute $5 per person at the door. Light refreshments will be served.

Huge wins culminate with No.1 ranking in state

DREW KOCHANNY

CHARLEVOIX — Many around Northern Michigan knew the Charlevoix girls' soccer team was going to be yet another powerful program in the area heading into the season.

Nine games in, as high as expectations were, they may have been too low.

On the same day they earned the No. 1 ranking in the state in the Division 4 poll, released by the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association, the Rayders would drop Lake Michigan Conference contender Grayling, 7-1, on Monday.

"I was pleased with how well we moved the ball tonight," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We had several lovely combinations creating plenty of quality opportunities."

Scoring has been far from a problem for the Rayders this season and it would stay that way early on Monday, with freshman Rachel Nesburg starting the day off with a combination to senior Ellie Way, for a goal just four minutes into the contest.

Leah Davis would then setup Nesburg for a goal of her own, then send pass to junior Kylee Scholten, who made it a 3-0 game.

Isabel Hess would string a pass to Nesburg with just under three minutes to play in the first half, then with five seconds remaining in the first, Nesburg and Scholten combined for a goal to make it 5-0, with Scholten finding the back of the net.

CHARLEVOIX — The Harbor Springs girls track and field team continues to impress as the season moves toward the halfway mark, earning its fourth first place finish in four meets at the LMC quad hosted by Charlevoix on Monday.

The Rams scored 104 points to edge Traverse City St. Francis' 91 and take the top spot, led by nine first place finishes.

Host Charlevoix took third, with 34 points, led by Isabelle Buday's first-place finish in the 3,200 run (14:27.77).

Bree Farmer took second in the 100 dash (14.26) for the Rayders, Ivy Wells took second in the pole vault (7-6) and Charlevoix's 400 relay team took second (57.81) as well.

In the boys race, Harbor Springs took second with 77 points and Charlevoix third with 65 behind first-place finisher St. Francis' 82 in a tight team race.

Charlevoix's Nick Plude was the team's top performer, winning the 800 run (2:06.24) and the 1,600 run (4:42.08) and running the anchor leg on the winning 1,600 relay (3:39.84).

Parker Skeel won the 110 hurdles (16.98) and the 300 hurdles (45.14) as well for the Rayders, and Kevin Pearl took second in the 300 hurdles (45.54).

Stingrays swimmer Ivy Wells signs with EMU rowing team

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343
jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — When college recruiters came calling for Charlevoix student and swimmer Ivy Wells, they weren't the ones she was expecting.

Wells, a decorated swimmer with the Charlevoix Stingrays who had made the Junior Olympics and reached the top level of club competition in USA Swimming, had signed up for recruiting websites to try to get a college swimming scholarship.

So when Eastern Michigan rowing coach Kemp Savage's staff contacted Wells about a scholarship opportunity, her initial reaction was confusion.

"I asked him if he was sure he had the right person, because I've never rowed before in my life," Wells said. "But he said they were very interested in me, because the upper body strength and stamina swimmers have carries over very well to rowing."

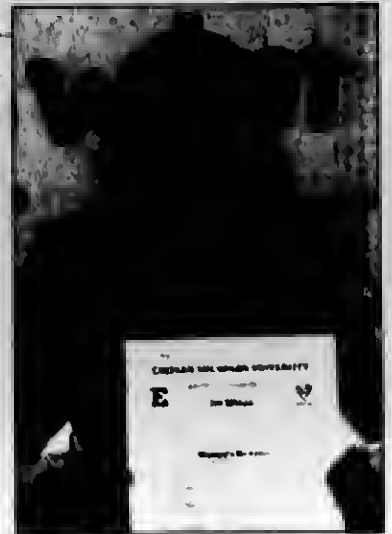

And although Wells had begun the recruiting process hoping to swim collegiately, the idea of a fresh start with a new sport proved appealing to her.

She committed to the Eagle rowing program over swimming scholarship offers, and made it official by signing her letter of intent to compete at EMU in a ceremony at Charlevoix High School on Sunday, April 19.

"I'd been swimming for a decade, and while I had a lot of fun, there was a little bit of fatigue and some burnout," Wells said. "This gave me a chance to take what I'd learned and developed and start a new chapter with a different sport."

While Wells is leaving swimming behind, her work in the pool has her leaving Charlevoix as one of the best swimmers the area has ever produced.

She was the first swimmer in the Stingray program history to become a Junior Olympian, and the first to break through into the USA swimming league that represents the highest club swimming level in the country.

Charlevoix senior Ivy Wells holds up her signed letter of intent to join the Eastern Michigan University women's rowing team at a signing day event Sunday, April 19, at Charlevoix High School.

"She's just really coordinated, and she's the best I've ever coached at controlling her body and keeping her balance in the water," Stingray coach Jory Jonas said. "The most important thing she has is her focus."

"Over 10 years, she went through a lot of tough times and a lot of hardship, but no matter what happened she always stuck with swimming and gave her best effort. That's really what sets her apart."

That focus, along with the upper-body strength and stamina built up by years of swimming, will serve Wells well as she transitions to competing at the college level.

"Swimming has helped me get used to the kind of work you have to put in to be competitive," Wells said. "I'm used to practicing six times a week, two times a day, getting after it hard and maybe not having as much free time or as much of a social life as I could have."

"I've got a lot to learn, but I think being ready for that level of work is going to help me a lot."

Wells has had an outsized impact on the club she leaves behind, and continues to set an example with her signing, Jonas said.

Charlevoix takes pair of close games

ELK RAPIDS — The wins didn't come easy for the Charlevoix baseball team in a Tuesday doubleheader against host Elk Rapids, but thanks to some big plays late, the Rayders were able to secure a much-needed conference sweep.

Charlevoix took the first game 7-6 on an RBI single by Jake Seger in the top of the sixth inning to break a 6-6 tie.

The Rayders fell behind thanks to a six-run third inning by the Elks, but scored four runs in the top of the fourth to tie the game.

Nate Moon earned the win in game one for Charlevoix, striking out five and walking two in six innings of work.

Charlevoix jumped out to an early lead in game two, scoring five runs in the top of the third inning, and added two insurance runs in the top of the sixth to hold on for an 8-5 win.

Hunter Cox earned the win for Charlevoix, walking four in four innings of work, and Christian Matye picked up the save in relief, striking out two and walking two in two innings.

Seger finished four for six with two RBIs to lead Charlevoix in his first varsity appearance, and Austin Putman went five for seven with an RBI as well.

Moon and Will Telgenhof each finished three for six, with Moon adding an RBI, and Cox, Devin Largent and Noah Certa each added two hits and two RBIs for the Rayders.

"We're happy with the sweep but we didn't play well defensively and our pitchers didn't have real good command," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Christian Matye came in and locked down his first varsity save in the nightcap."

Charlevoix is now 7-7 overall and 4-2 in the LMC.

The Nesburg show would continue in the second half, with Davis finding the freshman for her third goal of the game.

Grayling would get a chance to get on the board with a direct kick at the 13 minute mark, with Rachel Monley erasing the zero for her team.

In a 6-1 game, Scholten would then team up with Nesburg once again, as she booted in her fourth goal of the game, giving the contest its final score.

Nesburg's goal total for the season reached 15 followed her four against the Vikings.

With a 7-0 record in the Lake Michigan Conference, the Rayders made the short leap from second to first in the poll this week, after wins over Grand Rapids NorthPointe Christian and Harbor Springs a week ago.

The Rams, ranked No. 6 at the time, also claimed a higher ranking this week, even despite the loss to the Rayders.

With a win over Muskegon Western Michigan Christian a week ago, the Rams moved up to No. 2 in the Division 4 poll.

Charlevoix drops first game of season

GAYLORD — The Rayders haven't had much go wrong during an undefeated start that saw the Rayders ascend to the top spot in the Division 4 statewide rankings.

But in a matchup with Division 2 foe and Big North Conference power Gaylord on the road, Charlevoix got its first taste of adversity.

The Blue Devils scored three goals in two minutes in the final 10 minutes of the first half to put the Rayders behind for the first time this season, and held off a late charge by Charlevoix to come away with a 3-1 win on Tuesday.

The Rayders trailed 3-0 at the half after Gaylord forwards Shelby Baxter and Brandi Wagner combined to score three goals in two minutes starting with nine minutes remaining in the half.

Charlevoix came out much stronger in the second half, keeping the Blue Devils off the scoreboard, but couldn't convert on a penalty kick chance early in the period that could have cut into the deficit and ignited a comeback.

With two minutes remaining, Elizabeth Way found Natalie Nesburg on a cross and Nesburg scored a goal to break the shutout, but the tally came too little, too late for the Rayders.

Keeper Gloria Greene had 15 saves to help give Charlevoix a chance at a late comeback.

"We were definitely not on our game tonight," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We made several mistakes and Gaylord was quick to make us pay for it."

"I was really proud of our second half performance. We went harder to the ball and created several opportunities."

Charlevoix, now 9-1 overall, will have several days off to rest up and work on its play before its next contest, against the Traverse City Liberty, on Monday, May 4.

Charlevoix 3, Harbor Springs 1 (OT)

Certainly fitting the bill.

You can almost guarantee that each season, two games are going to be circled so hard the paper nearly rips for the Charlevoix and Harbor Springs girls' soccer teams.

That matchup of course is against one another, and on April 23, the reason could be seen everywhere from the stands to the play on the field.

"It lived up to the expectations," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We knew it was going to be quite a game and it was. It always is. It's almost what the girls play for every year. It's just such a tremendous rivalry."

Playing through bitter cold temperatures at Ottawa Stadium in Harbor Springs, the Rayders and Rams would need overtime to decide the contest, with Charlevoix eventually capitalizing when the opportunity came in 3-1 final.

A 1-1 game heading into overtime, Charlevoix sophomore Beth Veenstra came through in the clutch sending a powerful shot past Harbor keeper Izzy Gracy for the go-ahead goal with just over a minute left in the first overtime.

"She said 'I'm getting a goal,'" said Scholten with a laugh. "That's the first goal of her high school career. She's been more of a defender all of her career."

"She's the type of kid that embraces any challenge, so that was her first goal and a pretty big one."

With eight seconds left in the first overtime, senior Ellie Way would add an insurance goal for the Rayders on a breakaway, giving the game its 3-1 final.

For Harbor Springs coach Aaron Riley, the fight his team gave the Rayders was more than enough to ask for in the end.

"I don't think there's anything from this game that we take away to be negative," said Riley. "When you take a team like Charlevoix into double overtime, I think conditioning plays a part, cold plays a part. Just sometimes you make mental mistakes, but that's the game. It was played well by both teams."

Harbor's Sophie Seitz would then tie the game with just under five minutes to play in the first half, making it a 1-1 game at the half and eventually at the end of regulation.

Each team went in with a gameplan on the other, with Harbor's plan to slow down the fast paced Rayder attack one that nearly won the game.

"I think we got a little frustrated," said Scholten. "They're well coached as far as with that outside trap. We had I don't know how many offside. Those were opportunities, that up until tonight, we might have been able to capitalize on in other games. They were really smart about it."

Charlevoix keeper Gloria Greene would earn the win in net for the Rayders, adding a tremendous one handed diving save with under six to play in regulation.

Veenstra's goal came assisted by senior Olivia Storm, while Way's second came assisted from Leah Davis.

Harbor would feature three different keepers on the night, with two going down with injury in Sydney Elkins and Gracy, with each deflecting away a number of Rayder shots. Midfielder Haley Rushing would eventually take over in the second overtime, seeing one shot.

A number of games will come and go before the Rayders and Rams meet on the fields once again, but the focus in the back of the mind of a lot of players and coaches will be on that May 18 matchup.

"Motivational factor with Charlevoix, you don't really need much, but it is something that we can take away from this game," Riley said. "We'll definitely make adjustments and hopefully we can beat them at their place."

Scholten feels the same and knows that when the two do meet again, the game will be sure to fit its billing once again.

"I think it's the best rivalry in our conference, for sure," said Scholten. "They look forward to it and both teams play it at a high level. This is always a barn burner when we come up here and it just worked out for us tonight."

Rayders split with state-ranked Gladstone.

CHARLEVOIX — After mixed results in the first few weeks of the season, Charlevoix is picking a good time to be hitting its stride.

With Division 3's seventh-ranked team and a semifinalist last year, Gladstone, coming to town for a Saturday doubleheader, the Rayders put forth one of their best efforts of the season to force a split with the Braves.

A strong performance on the mound in a 7-2 Game 1 win from both starter KeNen Borths and relief pitcher Nate Moon helped Charlevoix's cause. Borths went four innings against a strong lineup, striking out four, walking one and giving up two runs, and Moon finished the last two innings without allowing a hit to earn the save.

"KeNen threw a real nice game in game 1 and Nate Moon came into a no-out bases loaded situation and their all-stater up and locked down the win for us," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said.

Moon also led the team at the plate, going 2 for 3 with a triple and four RBIs, and Christian Matye continued his hot start with two hits and two RBIs as well.

Will Telgenhof went 2 for 3 for the Rayders.

Charlevoix lost the nightcap, 7-4, but battled back late with two runs in the sixth inning to give themselves a chance.

Austin Putman led the Rayders at the plate, going 2 for 3 with 2 RBIs, and also struck out one and walked one in three innings of work to take the loss on the mound.

"I was very happy with the way we played and battled all day long," Telgenhof said. "Even the last inning when we were down by a bunch we rallied and made it a game."

"I hope it will be a turning point for our season, for the first time in quite a while I thought we really played Rayder baseball."

TENNIS

Charlevoix girls remain unbeaten

CHARLEVOIX — Without a loss on the season four matches in, the Charlevoix girls' tennis team has been more than good when they're able to play.

The key, though, has been when they're able to.

Friday was a day that would come through weather wise for the Rayders, with a 6-2 win to follow at Traverse City Christian.

Rae Claremont and Jessica Paramo, playing at No. 1 and No. 2 singles, respectively, would both earn 6-0, 6-0 wins for the Rayders to open the day.

Becca Moon would then earn a 6-2, 6-2 win at No. 3 singles, and at No. 4, Margaret Purvis would take a close, 6-3, 7-6 (7-2) loss.

In the doubles matches, the No. 1 team of Cassie McCraney and Erin Wachter earned a 6-0, 6-0 win, then the No. 2 team of Nicole Swadling and Lydia Baylo defeated Traverse City, 7-5, 6-0.

Grace Freds and Abby Noiro, at No. 3 doubles, would take a loss to Traverse, 6-1, 3-6, 10-7.

Without a No. 4 doubles team, Traverse City would forfeit the match.

Charlevoix improves to 3-0-1 with the win.

ELK RAPIDS

— Charlevoix coach Keith Grunch knows the nine hole league events are great for getting younger players varsity experience, which is exactly what he and others did on Monday.

"The whole idea on the nine whole tournaments is to get some of the younger guys involved," he said. "For a couple of them, it was their first tournament."

Charlevoix competed at Elk Rapids' A-Ga-Ming Golf Resort, finishing fifth by shooting 186 behind Traverse City St. Francis (165), Grayling (165), Boyne City (181) and Kalkaska (185).

Leading the Rayders, Tanner Drost and Tyler Fuchs each shot 45, while Collin Turkelson shot 47; Montana Thompson, 49; Sam Stewart, 54; and Camden Musilek, 69.

East Jordan's Logan Smith led the event with an even-par score of 36.

Austin Hatch ends basketball career, will serve as Michigan undergraduate assistant

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Austin Hatch, who survived two deadly airplane crashes and went on to suit up for Michigan, is giving up playing basketball.

Michigan coach John Beilein announced Monday the Big Ten approved a medical exemption waiver that will allow Hatch keep his scholarship and serve as an undergraduate student assistant.

"Basketball has always been a huge part of my life. However, it is what I play, not who I am," Hatch said. "It was a goal of mine to return to the game that I love so much and I feel very blessed to have the opportunity to play for Michigan. After all that I have been through, it was a dream come true for me to put on a Michigan jersey and get into a game at Crisler Center."

Hatch spent eight weeks in a coma with a brain injury after a 2011 crash that killed his father and stepmother. The single-engine Beechcraft A36 Bonanza flew into a garage near Charlevoix Municipal Airport in northern Michigan, about 10 days after Hatch verbally committed to play for Michigan.

A 2003 crash killed his mother, brother and sister. His father, Dr. Stephen Hatch, was the pilot both times.

Hatch, a 6-foot-6 guard, played a total of five minutes over five games as a freshman last season. He attempted two 3-point shots and made 1 of 3 free throws.

"As I have progressed through this first season, I know that I am not where I want to be, both academically and athletically," he said. "My priority is academics, and I feel that it is in my best interest to devote more time to my studies."

This decision honors my father, and it is something that I know he would agree with and be proud of me for making."

Hatch grew up in Fort Wayne, Ind., but went to live with his uncle in Southern California in 2013.

"I don't want to be known by the time my career comes to an end here as just 'a cool story,'" he said early last season.

"Obviously what happened to me is kind of unique, but that is what happened. That is not who I am. That is a big part of my life, but I am about moving forward and making the most of my experience here."

Beilein said he had been discussing a switch from player to undergraduate assistant the last few months. He said it's in Hatch's best interest to go on the medical scholarship.

"This change allows Austin to devote the necessary time he needs to be successful in his studies and obtain a Michigan degree," Beilein said. "We also wanted to be sure we continued our commitment to Austin keeping his full scholarship in place for the next three years. This waiver allows for both."

Beilein said Hatch can continue to be a valuable member of the team as a leader, mentor and assistant. He said Hatch would travel with the team when it fits into his academic schedule.

and ran the anchor leg on the winning 3,200 relay (8:56).

Oliver DeYoung took second in the 110 hurdles (18.27) for Charlevoix. Jared McLean took second in the 800 run (2:11.27) and Charlevoix's 400 relay team took second (46.58) as well.

Charlevoix competes in the T.C. Central Invite today (Friday).

Charlevoix, Boyne City at Clare Invite

CLARE — Relay success highlighted a strong day for Charlevoix at the tough 16-team Clare Invitational on Friday.

The Rayder boys finished fifth overall as a team, with 75 points, getting first place finishes from the 1,600 relay team of Jared McLean, Ben Boss, Nick Plude and Micah Peebles (3:32.24) and the 3,200 relay team of Boss, Luke Buday, Kevin Pearl, and Plude (8:29.93).

Charlevoix also finished third in the 800 relay (1:39.91) and got third place finishes from Plude in the 1,600 run (4:44.12) and Jared McLean in the 400 dash (52.53).

On the girls side, Charlevoix's best finish came in the 3,200 relay, as the team of Olivia Jeakle, Alexis Tibbelen, Mackenzie O'Leary and Courtney Putman took seventh (10:44.86), and pole vaulter Ivy Wells tied for seventh (7-6).

Charlevoix will host Boyne City and two other LMC schools in a quad, today, Monday for its next event.

IVY WELLS

"At her last practice, the entire team was hugging her and I don't think there was a dry eye anywhere," Jonas said. "But you look at that same group being there for the signing, and there was a lot of pride and excitement."

"Ivy really shows the potential out there for swimmers, and that's one of the most exciting things about swimming for me, is that there's something to learn and gain from it for every age group, and so many ways you can use what you learn."

For her part, Wells, who also runs track and field at Charlevoix and competes as a pole vaulter, hopes to impart that same message.

"I really hope everyone sees that when you're trying to get to the next level, you shouldn't box yourself in or take a narrow view of what you are," Wells said. "There are opportunities everywhere to take advantage of the skills you've developed if you can keep an open mind."

Charlevoix's Kathryn Sell, showcases her collection at CMU's runway show, "Threads"

The wedding party features designs by Kathryn Sell (center) with bride, Meagan Wood, bridesmaid, Laney Billon and flower girl Abby Pearson. MOUNT PLEASANT — It's all about romance for 22-year-old Kathryn Sell, daughter of Christine and Tracy Sell, of Charlevoix. Sell, a 2011 graduate of Charlevoix High School, is about to graduate from Central Michigan University in her chosen field of apparel merchandising and design. The romance element is a theme she wishes to pursue as she moves forward in the industry, designing wedding dresses.

"I am in love with love," Kathryn wrote to describe her collection at CMU's annual runway fashion show, "Threads," held recently at the McGuirk Arena Event Center on campus. "I am enthralled with the fairytales, romantic stories and happily ever afters. Women young and old inspire me to create, because I want to bring their dreams into reality through my dresses." Sell began designing clothes at a really young age, hot gluing fabric together, restyling finds at local resale shops and made her own prom dress, fashioned from an old wedding gown. She became obsessed with sewing her senior year, and actually quit track and cross country so she could take sewing lessons from a local seamstress every day. There were a few art classes that dealt with textiles and design, but most of her enthu-

CHARLEVOIX — Michael Ritter, principal of Foster Elementary, a school for Ludington students in grades three-five, has been chosen as the next superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools effective July 1. The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education voted unanimously to offer the contract to Ritter. His contract is for three years at $105,000 a year.

Ritter accepted the offer on speakerphone to applause from board members and people who attended the special meeting on Tuesday.

"Ritter is the candidate for this position," said board member Tom Kirinovic. "I feel he was always the strong candidate."

School board secretary/treasurer Douglas Bergmann got the sense in the final interview that Ritter had a passion for student learning.

"My sense is he will improve our school district and keep us focused on

Marina area businesses unhappy with sign regulations, parking

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Lack of signage and restrictive parking for businesses near the city's marina on Bridge Park Drive has fostered a complaint from one of the business owners.

Josh Mack, of Sunshine Charters, which offers sailing on Lake Charlevoix and Lake Michigan, presented his concern about the limited parking and no signs to direct customers to the businesses in the marina area to Charlevoix City Council on Monday.

"Myself and other marina district businesses are finding it hard to operate with the lack of cooperation the city is placing upon us with its sign ordinance," Mack said to council during public comment on Monday. "The parking restrictions placed on the parking lot in front of our business also is proving difficult for us to bring in customers."

Voters approve $5 million school bond

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — Voters narrowly approved a $5 million bond issue for Charlevoix Public Schools on Tuesday.

According to unofficial returns from the Charlevoix County clerk, 1,255 voters approved of the issue and 1,168 voted against it.

"We're very pleased to hear the news," said board president Dick Joseph.

"There was a lot of hard work getting the word out."

Money from the bond will be used to purchase new buses for the aging fleet. Other bond projects include roof upgrades to the bus garage and elementary school, security and technology upgrades.

"We hope to replace some of the buses before next school year," Joseph said. "We also will concentrate on new security measures to improve safety at 2 firefighters reflect on years of service

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Words like "brave," "selfless" and "loyal" can be used to describe a hero.

It also goes without question that these same words can be used to describe a fire fighter, but when confronted with these descriptors in reflection of their own work, two volunteer Charlevoix Township firefighters with a combined 65 years of service shy away from being called a hero.

"I'm not a hero," said Steve Paterka, who retired from the department in January, after serving 30 years as a volunteer firefighter and another 10 year as an administrative assistant to the fire chief. "I think of it as serving the community I live in."

But Paterka does hold a certificate, calling him a hero, for pulling a man from his burning car in 1978, on the corner of Waller and Martin roads. "The driver was passed out and the car overheated and caught fire," Paterka said.

During the rescue, it did appear that the driver did not want to be rescued and ended up being pulled from the vehicle more than once, he said.

"He was drunk," Paterka said. "I would start to get him out and he would crawl back in the car. He didn't know what was going on. I was just doing my job and that doesn't make me a hero."

Charlevoix grad speaks about new job

ROSCOMMON — Hired by the Gerrish Township Police Department on March 5, Charlevoix High School graduate Ashley Grosberg became the newest addition to the department. Grosberg graduated from Charlevoix High School in 2007 and has ever since been working toward her career as a police officer. After high school, she attended North Central Michigan College and received her associate degree while studying law enforcement. From there she went on to Kirkland Regional Police Academy No. 39.

"In high school I never really knew what I wanted to do after graduation," Grosberg said. "My brother is an officer in Grayling and seeing my brother in that position kind of sparked my interest in (police work)."

After graduating from police academy, she started looking for jobs around the Northern Michigan area and saw that the Gerrish Township Police Department was hiring. Going through a few rounds of interviews, an oral board, and a test, she was ultimately picked as their new police officer.

On April 14, Grosberg took the oath of office to official become a Gerrish Township Police Officer. She took the oath at a public swearing in ceremony at the Gerrish Township Municipal Center in Roscommon. After she gave her oath, her son planned her badge on.

Although she is employed by the Gerrish Township Police Department, she is still in training. It is a 17-week program where she rides with a senior officer to get the in field experience.

"Officer Grosberg is progressing very well in her field training program," said Gerrish Township Police Chief Brian Hill. "She has a terrific personality and I expect that she will be a competent and reliable addition to our team."

It has only been a few months since she was hired, but Grosberg has already made a difference in the short time she has been with the department.

"I love what I do because of the fact that I can make a difference," Grosberg said. "It doesn't have to be negative, it can be positive too. With the media, and current negative view on police, it is nice to actually be of help to people."

Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer 5K Walk/Run to take place Saturday

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — The memories of two courageous women from the community who battled breast cancer will be the reason for walkers and runners to gather at East Park on Saturday, May 9.

The 21st annual Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Memorial Breast Cancer 5K Walk/Run will take place at 9 a.m. in East Park on Saturday. Registration begins at 8 a.m. Individual walkers, runners and teams can collect "pledges" for participating in the walk, or sponsor themselves with a donation, said Katie Beaudoin, a member of the Walk.Run.Cure group, which helps facilitate the event.

Those who raise $30 or more receive an event T-shirt. Registration forms are available at walkrun-cure.org.

For the fourth year, a feature of the event is a "Wear Your Support" bra decorating contest. All participants, women and men, are encouraged to decorate a bra and wear the decorated bra over their T-shirt or clothing during the event. Prizes will be awarded. Area businesses are also participating by decorating a bra and displaying it in their front windows.

Previous walk/run participants also participated in the "Wear Your Support" bra decorating contest.

"This is a great way to promote the event,"

Beaudoin said. "It helps build excitement among participants and businesses who support the walk/run. Those who participate seem to have a lot of fun with the decorating and display of the garments."

The event honors two local women Sue DeYoung, a young mother of four children that died in 1992, and Judy Edger, who was a driving force behind this event until her death in March 1999.

The funds raised will go to Charlevoix County's Circle of Strength Foundation, to provide mammograms for women in need and to the Health Department of Northwest Michigan, to be used for the free cervical screening program, said Lisa Hoyt, another member of the Walk.Run.Cure group. In previous years the walk/run has raised between $4,000 and $6,000.

"What we raise varies year-to-year," Hoyt said. "Whatever the amount, it all goes to help support programs in the community."

If someone is unable to participate the day of the event, but would like to make a contribution they can donate by check to Charlevoix Area Memorial Cancer Fund and mail to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, P.O. Box 718, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Main Street program to host celebration in East Park

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Main Street Program will honor its Select Level Status with a celebration from 5:30-6:30 p.m. at East Park on Wednesday, May 13, Bridge Street Tap Room and Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company, is catering the Main Street Celebration with appetizers and soft drinks. Dig Into Reading event provides books to local children

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Courier

CHARLEVOIX — On Monday, April 20, more than 200 Charlevoix Elementary School children and their parents enjoyed "Dig Into Reading," an evening of stories, books and activities.

The event was preceded by a light dinner and a preview of the "Dig Into Reading" book section. Afterward, three early education classrooms were made available for families to sit down, relax and enjoy the reading of several favorites with the teacher. Book related crafts and activities followed each reading. At the end of the evening, every child in attendance up to 12 years of age, was able to choose four age-appropriate books to take home in a "Dig Into Reading" tote bag.

"Last year's event was part of a nationwide program called 'Big Box of Books,'" Jamie Warchoi, organizer of the event said. "The purpose of the program was to get as many books into as many children's hands as possible in order to foster the love of reading at an early age."

But funding for the nationwide program ran out, so Warchoi decided to apply for a grant from the Charlevoix Community Foundation to create a local program. The grant was approved and "Dig Into Reading" was born for Charlevoix Elementary School.

"It was great to see the kids and their parents have such a good time," Warchoi said, "and good to know that literacy is alive and well in Charlevoix."

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

Science Rules

Science is not doing well lately. Three important areas are of particular concern.

First, significant numbers of people are reluctant to accept the reality of human caused climate change and are unwilling to support legislation to mitigate its effects. Second, many parents are reluctant to immunize their children against communicable childhood diseases, and so risk causing widespread epidemics that can cripple or kill children. And finally, there is increasing resistance to the use of genetically modified food for human use.

The last of these is probably the most serious concern, because the world's human population continues to increase and supplying that food will almost certainly require the use of genetically modified plant and animal organisms. The alternative in many cases is the increased use of toxic pesticides. There is no evidence that genetically modified crops are in anyway dangerous to humans and other creatures, but campaigns by mostly environmental groups have been so effective in producing fear that laws have been passed in some countries that forbid the importation of such crops. Major restaurant chains and organic grocery chains often require that such foods be labeled as containing genetically modified items. Such labeling is meaningless if the foods are in no way dangerous, but does serve to magnify the fear.

Often the same people hold adverse views about all three science questions, which suggests that the opposition is not so much about the specific issues, but about the denial of science generally. I am concerned that we as a society suffer from too much information and insufficient knowledge. Where does that information come from?

Consider this: whom are you likely to believe, thousands of climate scientist who speak through professional journals, or radio talk-show host who speaks daily to millions of people? Should you believe the spokesperson for Greenpeace, a respected international organization, or a professor of nutrition at a major agricultural university? The professor will tell you there is no evidence that genetically modified organism are dangerous to human health, and the Greenpeace spokesperson will tell you we need more research until we can be absolutely certain there are no ill effects. The same argument can be made about the safety of immunization.

Maybe the problem is that science cannot ever provide absolute certainty, only a very high level of probability. No scientist would argue otherwise.

The notion that all climate scientist are participating in a conspiracy to mislead us, or that all doctors are only interested in benefiting from providing immunizations, or that all nutritionists are conspiring to slip genetically modified foods into our diets is ludicrous or at least unnecessarily paranoid.

Science is necessarily a collective activity, with many people involved. And it is a self-correcting one. No political weight will change the knowledge acquired from the operation of science. And to deny the value or even existence of that knowledge is dangerous to society. Scientists are not always instantly right, but they do accumulate real knowledge. Don't let easily manipulated information from political sources overwhelm that.

This view is seen on a walk along Lake Charlevoix in the early spring.

The beauty of Lake Charlevoix

Editors note: Steven Scott (Scotty) is a community contributor to the Charlevoix Courier. Scotty's column will focus on the different happenings near his home in Wilson Township. by Scotty

The other morning, I arose early to take a stroll by Lake Charlevoix to see the sunrise across the sky hoping to catch the colors of the sun upon the water. The ice has melted away, the water rippling with life, the dawn of spring breaking from the grip of Old Man Winter and a variety of birds greet me with song as I looked on into the tranquil waters. This beautiful body of water did not disappoint me.

Soon the docks will be placed, the boats ready for sail and this playground of waves will be filled with activity and recreation. The assortment of sails will flourish on the horizon and laughter will dance upon the warm breeze from the children as they play in the park day-dreaming of their first swim of summer.

Boats in the marina are starting to lose the winter's plastic protective shell in anticipation of being placed in the harbor ready for the summer's journey from one end of the lake to the other. It has been a long winter and colder than usual, but the open water of the lake gives us all a feeling of relief from the bitter cold and raises our spirits as we know the warmth of summer is coming soon and how nice it is to be outside and active.

This will be my first summer in Michigan, making my home with my wife. She is native to the area here in Charlevoix County and I'm eager to participate and enjoy the beauty of this new landscape. I hail from Alaska where the mountains tower over the land and surround the sea, but I have come to know that northern people of northern states are the same type of folk only the scenery has changed. Every one I have encountered has been very nice in welcoming me to this wonderful area of Northern Michigan. I traded mountains for water and I feel it was a good trade, soon the colors will burst out from nature that surrounds me and I wait eagerly to enjoy such beauty.

Thank you Lake Charlevoix for sharing your beauty with me and giving me that warm fuzzy feeling of spring in my new home and thank you Northern Michigan for having me. Friends are always welcome you need only to say hello back and let the conversation arise.

In ending, I encourage everyone to take a stroll by the lake and enjoy the coming of summer you won't regret doing so, as this is your county. Enjoy every bit of it, as I will do the same.

CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

COURTESY OF CHARLEVOIX HISTORICAL SOCIETY

This photo is from a glass plate negative recently donated to the Charlevoix Historical Society and shows perhaps the first image ever taken of the Congregational Church. The photographer, a local professional named Ernest Peaslee, took many of the classic photos of Charlevoix and surroundings in the late 19th century. The tall man standing by the crosswalk is the Rev. C. F. van Auken, a frequent vacationer in the area who was looking for place to establish himself in the north and had applied for the ministerial position even before the church was built. He was accepted at an annual salary of $1,000, very generous for the times. But apparently the congregation had second thoughts. According to a church history, he was later paid $160 per quarter for three quarters and $200 for the fourth quarter of a year. The next two ministers received $800 and $900, respectively. Plus, the congregation thought he was making enough and refused to allow him also to preach at the Barnard Church. The main entry into the building, originally part of the steeple base, was later moved forward and flush with the east facade.

COMMUNITY Highlights

East Jordan Rotary Club: Darwin Dee Morris as 2015 Father of the Year

EAST JORDAN — The East Jordan Rotary Club announced that long-time area resident, Darwin Dee Morris, is selected as East Jordan's "2015 Father of the Year." The award was presented by club president, Mark Penzien, at the 95th annual East Jordan Father-Son Banquet on Saturday, April 25.

Nominated for the award by each of his four adult children, Ed, Tim, Jim and Judy, and his wife of 58 years, Mary Lou, Darwin was described over and over again as a loving, caring, honest and hard-working family man.

The children wrote: "I never realized what an extraordinary father he was until I grew up and observed how other men act; "I wish I could go back in time and live my life according to the example that my Dad tried to set; "Why didn't we nominate him long ago;" and of Darwin and Mary Lou, "I still want to be like my dad and mom and have the relationship they have."

Morris, who was brought up and still lives today on the family farm, is a 1950 graduate of East Jordan High School and a veteran of the Korean War. He served many years on the city council and township boards, coached Little League baseball, was a Boy Scout leader and retired from the East Jordan Iron Works. Most importantly, he remains a loving husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather.

East Jordan is proud to recognize Darwin Dee Morris as 2015 Father of the Year.

Several contributors helped kick off the fifth year of the 100 Men Campaign, a local effort to engage men in the movement to end violence against women and girls. Pictured reviewing campaign materials are (from left) Dan Branson, Chuck Smith, Doug Fuller and Kevin Burns.

100 Men campaign aims to stop violence against women

PETOSKEY — The 100 Men Campaign was developed by the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan to help men become more actively involved in the movement to end violence against women and children. The campaign invites Northern Michigan men to take a public stand against the violence that impacts one in four U.S. women, by having their name published in local newspapers and donating $100 to support local prevention initiatives.

In its fifth year, the 100 Men Campaign is one of many programs across the nation to engage men in the effort to help end what has become one of the most significant social issues of our time — violence against women and children. Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan Executive Director, Jan Mancinelli, said men in the community have always wanted to help in one way or another.

"Men in the community have supported the Women's Center and Safe Home for decades," Mancinelli said. "Back when the Safe Home was heated with wood, men would help cut, split and stack wood to provide warmth for survivors and their children who had taken refuge at the shelter."

The work was an active way for local men to get involved and help, while providing a visible result.

"Several years ago we conducted focus groups with local men to learn more about their willingness to get involved in this issue," Mancinelli said. "The men we talked to wanted to help survivors and also ensure a safer future for their daughters, sisters, mothers and friends, but they weren't sure how to go about it."

The 100 Men Campaign has grown from 125 to 161 over the past four years. Recently, Mancinelli sat down with several campaign donors and encouraged them to further develop the campaign through their feedback and suggestions.

The issue of violence against women has never been so prominent in the media, online and in every day conversations than during the past year, according to Mancinelli. Violence against women and girls has been making headlines in the sports arena, high-profile cases and on college campuses with regard to Title IX legislation aimed at providing educational environments free from sexual harassment and violence.

"The more local awareness and education we can provide around this issue and about the roots of this violence, the better chance we have of ending it," Mancinelli said.

"We are encouraged to have the support of men in the community who are teachers, doctors, police officers, business owners and leaders — who are also brothers, fathers, sons and grandfathers — who want to step up and say this violence is no longer acceptable."

The Women's Center has provided supportive services to thousands of survivors since 1977.

"We are at a tipping point in ending this epidemic of violence," Mancinelli said. "Now is the time to take action."

Seventh annual Charlevoix Kiwanis Club Vandenberg Essay Contest

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club is sponsoring an essay contest open to all Charlevoix area students currently in the fifth grade. Students are to explain, in one or two pages, which nonprofit group they think should be given an award of $50 and why they have selected that particular charity.

There will be multiple students essay contest winners and an award ceremony will be held in which winners and their parents will be invited. Each student who wrote a winning essay will be presented with a $50 check and the student in turn will present that check to his or her favorite charity.

The Charlevoix Kiwanis Club hopes to encourage fifth grade students to think about all of the good things that the various charities do to help our community. The essay contest is named after former Charlevoix Kiwanis Club member Merle Vandenberg. Vandenberg served the Kiwanis as president of the local club and as lieutenant governor. He was a teacher and dedicated his life to helping students.

Friends of BASES seeks donations to offset accreditation costs

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — For more than 20 years the men and women of BASES — Bay Area Substance Education Services, Inc. — have been providing substance abuse prevention, education and intervention services to area kids, families and community.

To continue this tradition of service, it is necessary for BASES to obtain additional accreditation, so they can serve a greater population in the area, said Rob Maxwell, vice president of the BASES Board of Directors.

"Our core focus on teens will remain the same," Maxwell said. "What the accreditation will help us with is be more proactive in the community. It will allow us to serve more families in our community, by opening up new funding sources."

During the past two years BASES has been preparing for accreditation by refining their service offerings, making facility improvements and assisting staff obtain necessary credentials required by government entities.

"The facility upgrades are completed," Maxwell said. "Our staff expertise and credentialing are in order. We are now ready for our accreditation site visit."

However, in order for BASES to complete the process the organization is asking for help from the community. In order to keep their site visit and accreditation timetable on track BASES needs an additional $8,000.

"The non-recurring costs associated with accreditation exceeded anything we were able to anticipate while forming our 2015 budget," Maxwell said. "These funds will cover the unanticipated costs and keep our existing programs on track until accreditation brings us expanded revenue streams, which are expected to begin in October."

To help BASES maintain their momentum to accreditation, people can make a tax deductible contribution by going to BASESTEENCenter.org. Click the "Donations" tab on the Home page and use one of the secure website payment options. Residents also can mail a check payable to BASES, 208 W. Lincoln, Charlevoix, MI 49720, Attn: Friends of BASES.

"We will keep you posted on our progress toward accreditation," Maxwell said. "When we reach our $8,000 goal, a 'Friends of BASES' recognition roster will be posted on our website and shared with the local newspapers."

OBITUARIES

Gregory Peer Gynt Krueger, 67

Gregory Peer Gynt Krueger, 67, of Boyne City, Mich., passed away suddenly from a heart attack on Saturday, April 25, 2015, at McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey, Mich.

Born on Feb. 21, 1948, in Detroit, Mich., Greg was the son of Peer Gynt and Dorothy (Kalis) Krueger.

After graduating from Chippewa Valley High School, Greg attended Wayne State University, graduating with a bachelor's degree in business administration.

Greg was a lifetime boater and a third generation marine industry veteran. He spent much of his youth working in the industry doing things like washing, detailing and running boats, overseeing boat yards, and in Greg's case, even captaining the Harens Island Ferry on the North Channel of the St. Clair River. As a teenager he was in charge of houseboat rentals for Sunset Marina on Harpens Island, Mich., and later oversaw outboard motor repairs for Krueger's Boats and Motors, which was owned and operated by his grandparents along with his father.

In 1971, Greg started his career in boat sales at Jefferson Beach Marina; he was 23 years old. Greg worked his way to the top becoming No. 1 in sales within six months and eagerly worked under the mentorship of former and late industry icon, Mr. Alvin Wagner. In addition to sales, Greg pursued boat building. He started building center console vessels in 1982 and formed American International.

Greg was a Michigan Boating Industries Association (MBIA) member and Hall of Fame inductee, who regularly served on the Board of Directors since 1983. He co-founded the Recreational Boating Industry Education Foundation in the mid-1980s, with the goal of building a better future for the marine industry.

Greg was the president and owner of Jefferson Beach Yacht Sales (JBYS), with six Great Lakes locations representing Sunseeker, Viking Yachts and Princess. JBYS is the oldest Viking Yachts dealer in the world, the oldest Sunseeker dealer in the United States and among the oldest Princess dealers in the nation. Greg made tremendous contributions to model and technology innovations among industry manufacturers, and he, along with the JBYS team, has been acknowledged globally for outstanding sales and customer service over the years.

He was highly respected, well known and well loved by his family, friends and colleagues who will remember his passion and dedication to the highest ideals, trust and professionalism. In addition to Greg's love for boating and, of course, fishing, he was an avid snow skier. Greg was a staple to his friends at Boyne Mountain and other slopes around the country. With his family always his number one priority, he treasured time spent with them. He was generous with his spirit and therefore known as a brother, a father and an Opa to many. Greg attended Walloon Lake Community Church in Northern Michigan.

Greg was preceded in death by his father (Peer Gynt), and by his first wife, Nancy Ann (Curatolo) Krueger.

On July 1, 2007, Greg married Judy M. (Harrison). He is survived by his wife, Judy; his children, Amy Lynn Krueger Malow of New Haven, Mich., and Erik Gregory Krueger of Holland, Mich.; grandchildren, Alayna Nancy Malow, Wade Victor Malow, Samuel Gregory Krueger and Isabel Nina Hutcheson; his mother and stepfather, Dorothy and Frank Pryg of Macomb Township, Mich.; and sisters, Candice (Rob) Voigt of East Lansing, Mich., and Lisa Irish of Oakland, Calif.

Virginia 'Gina' Loeb Lepman

Long-time summer resident Virginia "Gina" Loeb Lepman died Sunday, April 26, 2015, at Lake Forest Hospital, Lake Forest, Illinois.

Born Jan. 11, 1931, in Highland Park, Illinois, to Ernest and Adele (Fies) Loeb, Gina married Richard "Dick" David Lepman on July 5, 1952. They raised their five children in Northbrook, Illinois.

Gina spent every summer of her life at Loeb Farms, her beloved family home in Charlevoix. Gina loved to travel — seeing all 50 states and parts of five continents. Gina also enjoyed Colorado. She enrolled in Colorado College in 1949, was skiing the slopes of Aspen her freshman year and by 1961 was enjoying powder skiing at Vail. She was living for two years in Littleton, Colo., when her fifth and youngest child was born.

When wintering Up North, Gina could be found at Nub's Nob or cross-country skiing across Lake Charlevoix near Three Mile Point and across her grandfather's land.

She loved sailing and skippering her boat Sonnet, participating in Charlevoix Yacht Club events and, as recently, as last summer, won her class in the club's Wednesday Night Summer Race Series. She was a lifelong tennis player competed in the Venetian Tennis Tournament well into her 70s. In summer, she hosted an open Thursday afternoon bridge game on the terrace of her home where it was not unusual to see five tables in play.

Gina had a love of gardening, both vegetable and flowers, delighted in the animals she raised at her farm, especially Scotch Highland Cattle, and was a member of the Michigan Chestnut Growers Association. Gina was most happy presiding at the end of her dining table surrounded by family and friends, eating fresh vegetables from her garden, viewing beautiful flowers that she picked and arranged and wearing one of her many hand-knitted sweaters. She loved a party, hosted many and was the life of most. All who knew her will miss her youthful spirit and warm infectious smile, zest for life, love and laughter.

Gina is survived by her children, Tad, Robert (Carol), Martha Lepman (Martin Gonzalez), Adele (Gary) Furbig and David; grandchildren, Anne (Andrew) Baker, Caroline Lepman, Jessica Lepman, Jennifer Lepman, Rachel Gonzalez, Michael Gonzalez, Daniel Gonzalez, Samantha Sell, Grant and Max Forthrig; great-grandchildren, Ariella and Alastair Baker; and sister, Elizabeth

"Boots" Nathan.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Richard "Dick" in 2012, and sister, Jane Sooy in 1999.

A memorial service will be held at a later date this summer.

Please continue her active support of these Up North organizations: Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council; Watch; Lake Charlevoix Association; Lake Charlevoix Mariners; Charlevoix Yacht Club; or Charlevoix Public Library.

Mary Anne Ferguson, 63

Mary Anne Ferguson, 63, passed away Wednesday, March 18, 2015, at McLaren Northern Michigan hospital in Petoskey.

Mary Anne was born in 1951 to the late Clarence and Lorraine (Boyle) Palmer of Beaver Island.

She graduated from high school on Beaver Island in 1969. That same year she joined "The Ghost Riders" band as their drummer.

In 1976, she attended National Beauty College in Canton, Ohio, and became a licensed cosmetologist.

In 1978, she started her own licensed home cleaning service, working in the Petoskey and Harbor Springs area.

Mary Anne is survived by her ex-husband, Roger Ferguson; son, Eric Ferguson (Marilyn) and three grandchildren, Eric Jr., Alex and Aaron of Murrieta, Calif.; daughter, Traci of Lansing; three sisters, Virginia Palmer of Hayward, Calif., Evelyn Olesky (Tom) of Charlevoix and Roberta Palmer of Traverse City; brother, Edward Palmer (Mary) of Beaver Island; many nieces and nephews; and very close friend, Ruthie Gregg of Petoskey.

Mary Anne loved and enjoyed all things related to nature. Two of her favorite pastimes were mushroom hunting and collecting a variety of stones, especially Petoskey and pudding stones, with her friend, Ruthie. Mary Anne also enjoyed all kinds of music, especially Irish and old traditional music.

She was a very kind, humble, loving person with a great sense of humor. She will be dearly missed by all who knew and loved her.

Funeral service will be at 3 p.m. Saturday, May 23, at Holy Cross Church on Beaver Island. Burial will follow at Holy Cross Cemetery.

New creperie, ice cream shop coming to Charlevoix

Lonnie Allen
231/547-6588 - allen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Homemade crepes and ice cream are the focus of the new to-go creperie/ice cream shop called That French Place.

Gildas Berrou, and wife, Tara, of Pea & Compagnie and Brian Freund, of Brian's Ice Cream Experience, staples at the Charlevoix and Boyne City Farmers Market will now be located at 212 Bridge St., in Charlevoix.

"We did so well next to each other at the farmers market we decided to have something more permanent," Freund said.

The new owners hope to have their doors open by memorial weekend. The carryout restaurant will feature the crepes and ice cream just as they did at the farmers market and their pastries, crepes and ice cream will be made fresh daily with all natural ingredients from locally sourced farms and vendors, Berrou said.

"There will be no mixes used here," Berrou said. "We will use local sourced fresh ingredients to produce our products."

Cooking each product

Brian's Ice Cream Experience and Pea & Compagnie have combined culinary talents to open a to-go creperie/ice cream shop in downtown Charlevoix called That French Place. Owners are from left Gildas Berrou, Tara Ostrum-Berrou and Brian Freund.

from scratch will take time and Berrou hopes people will understand as they do when he cooks his crepes at the market.

"People would wait up to 45 minutes for my crepes," Berrou said. "Each week they would come back and we hope they will now visit us here in our shop."

Obstacles they are working to overcome are convincing local vendors and farms of the amount of fresh cream and butter they are ordering is a real order.

"All my ice cream is made from scratch," Freund said. "That requires a lot of real cream. Everything will be made fresh from scratch."

Because staying true to their dream of fresh made food from locally sourced, all natural ingredients is important to them, That French Place has a Go Fund Me page at gofundme.com/msa55w for people to help invest in their dream.

"We believe that the people who love what we do will want to get behind us on our endeavor and we want to give them the chance to help start our new business," Freund said.

The trio also will continue to sell their products at the area farmers markets as well.

"They have been good to us and we want to continue that tradition at the market for our loyal fans," Berrou said.

Each day they will prepare their recipes with one goal in mind — to run out of product before they close.

"We hope to run out of food daily," Freund said. "When we are out we are out, because we want everything fresh each day."

That French Place will have an opening party from 6-9 p.m. on Saturday, May 16, at Dhaseleer Events Barn. The event is free; families are encouraged to bring their children for an evening of fun.

said Tara Ostrum-Berrou. "There will be music by Josh Hall and we will be featuring a selection of our menu items for purchase — including crepes and ice cream," Ostrum-Berrou said.

The Irreverent Reverends to perform at the last Back Porch Coffeehouse

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Senior Center's last Back Porch Coffeehouse for the season will be at 7 p.m. on Saturday, May 9, and will feature The Irreverent Reverends — John (the) Thomas and David Tomlinson from southwestern Michigan.

Irreverent Reverends are two friends singing and playing the rhythms and sounds of life. Their original songs tell stories about the human experience: comedy, love, tragedy, introspection and, of course, irreverence. This is an Americana-style, folk duo featuring guitar and mandolin, with cameos by harmonica and one always happy ukulele. They also may be heard on WNNC 90.5 from 6-7 p.m. on Friday, May 8, or at reverbnation.com/irreverent-reverends.

The Back Porch Music Series is held on the second Saturday of each month, September through May at the Charlevoix Senior Center building. Doors open at 6 p.m. Donations — $5 to $10 per person suggested — at the door are for the scheduled performers. Soups, coffee, cookies available at no extra charge. A Circle Jam begins at 8:30 p.m.

The Charlevoix Senior Center building is fully accessible and is located at the corner of Carpenter and Sheridan streets.

Minecraft Mayhem on Mondays at Charlevoix Public Library. Children participate in a minecraft paper craft.

Library features Minecraft Mayhem

CHARLEVOIX — The Minecraft game has ballooned into a world-wide phenomenon and the Charlevoix Public Library is excited to continue its participation.

Children in grades four and up are invited to play on the library's Minecraft server during Minecraft Mayhem, 3:45-5 p.m. on Mondays. Minecraft is a game about breaking and placing blocks. At first, people built structures to protect against nocturnal monsters, but as the game grew players worked together to create wonderful, imaginative buildings, landscapes and cities.

The players on the library's server have created a fascinating world of their own. The library's server is monitored during game play.

A special Minecraft in Real Life program is planned for 3:45 p.m. on Monday, May 11. Come see what can be done in real life with Minecraft without computers. The afternoon includes activities and refreshments. Preregister by calling (231) 237-7350.

2015 Summer Stroll for Epilepsy in Midland

MIDLAND — The Epilepsy Foundation of Michigan will hold its 24th annual Summer Stroll for Epilepsy on Saturday, May 9. The event raises vital funding and promotes awareness of individuals with epilepsy.

More than 2,000 people gather in Midland, Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids and Metro Detroit for morning walks that bring people together throughout Michigan. There is even a virtual stroll for those people who want to participate, but can't make it to one of the four locations.

The foundation kicks off the summer season with the Midland Summer Stroll for Epilepsy at Dow Diamond, 825 E. Main St., Midland. Check-in will begin at 8 a.m. and registration fee is $20 per adult and $10 per child. The morning includes breakfast, face-painting, choose your own raffle, prizes, music, a walk throughout downtown Midland and more.

"This event is at the core of what we do," said Arlene Gorelick, President of the Epilepsy Foundation of Michigan. "The stroll raises at the stroke funds our programs, allowing us to fulfill our mission throughout Michigan year-round. The awareness raised and sense of community that the event promotes does even more to combat the stigma associated with epilepsy. Show people that we are here for them."

In 2014, the stroll raised approximately $250,000.

"It's great, because you can get started early and really make an impact in your community," said Gorelick. "We have prizes and recognition for the fundraisers in each market."

For more information on the Epilepsy Foundation of Michigan or to register for any of the summer strolls, visit epilepsymichigan.org/stroll or call (800) 377-6226 ext. 1231.

Volunteers, guild members, fundraisers strive to help honor $50,000 pledge

CHARLEVOIX — It is likely that the first person seen when a patient or visitor walks through the entrance of Charlevoix Area Hospital will be a smiling volunteer. He or she will be there to answer questions, give information and help guide people to their destinations.

The hospital would be a very different place without volunteers and guild members. In many ways, they are the hospital's good will ambassadors. The time they put in, often behind the scenes, saves the hospital thousands of dollars each year.

Proceeds from the gift shop as well as individual fundraising events will help to raise funds to match a generous $50,000 pledge from the guild.

The latest fundraiser is an annual favorite and is open to the public. It's the sale of beautiful geranium plants in conjunction with Circle K.

Herb Farm. Circle K Herb Farm has generously kept the price low — $4 per plant — for a number of years, and each year the demand has grown. Red, pink and white geraniums can be ordered at the hospital's Gift Shop until May 15, and pickup is from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Friday, May 22, at the Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation, 14700 Lakeshore Drive, in Charlevoix.

This is one example of the creative ways the volunteers and guild members impact Charlevoix Area Hospital. If you are interested in becoming a volunteer, contact Faye Parrish at (231) 547-8501, and if you are interested in becoming a guild member or have questions about any of their fundraisers, call (231) 547-8651 or stop by the hospital's gift shop.

Charlevoix County Community Foundation OKs more than $240,000 in grants CHARLEVOIX — The board of trustees of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently approved $244,146 in grants during its spring grant cycle, including 46 awards.

Maureen Radke, who coordinates the grant-making process at the community foundation, was elated with the results.

"We received the second highest number of grant applications, 52 from area nonprofit agencies in the history of the community foundation," Radke said. "Grant making is an exciting process that involves the input from many advisers to make the maximum possible impact in our communities."

The grant awards included $26,648 in funding for projects that will impact Charlevoix County youth in a positive way. The grants were recommended by the foundation's Youth Advisory Committee (YAC).

"The YAC members take their role very seriously, as they make decisions about youth programming that affect all youth in Charlevoix County," said Mishelle Skooks, who coordinates the Youth Advisory Committee on the foundation's behalf. "After surveying their peers with a youth needs assessment, they use the results of the survey in conjunction with the foundation's grant making guidelines to determine the merit of each proposal and fund accordingly. It is a huge responsibility that they handle very professionally."

Grants in the recent cycle supported programs in the arts, education, community development, the environment, human services, health and wellness, recreation, youth services and more. The foundation's endowed funds provide the resources for grant making to occur.

"Our nonprofit organizations provide an awareness of community needs," Radke said. "We connect those needs with existing funds; and with donors, who provide an additional level of funding support. That's the beauty of the community foundation at work."

A charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses and civic groups and manages them as permanent endowments. The principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing perpetual charitable capital to benefit Charlevoix County's residents and nonprofit organizations.

Since it was founded in 1992, the foundation's net assets have grown to more than $31.2 million, and grants and scholarships totaling more than $20 million have been distributed to a wide range of worthy programs, projects and nonprofit agencies.

SELL

slam for the art of clothing design came from sewing, Sell said.

The Threads show is the second largest student run event on the CMU campus. The judging process especially in the area of construction makes it challenging to get in, according to Sell. Last year she was the recipient of two awards — the JC Penney's First Pick for the Most Marketable Collection and Junior Designer of the Year. This year her collection was a three piece bridal collection which included a Cinderella-like strapless bridal gown in tulle and organza with a bodice of French lace, floor length slim fitted soft coral bridesmaid's dress and a delicate flower girl's dress in a coordinating color.

Several relatives and friends in attendance report that her collection was a highlight of the show in a packed arena. The collection was a labor of Sell's love for design and took a little more than three months to put together. Participation in the event is not a class project for a grade, but an extracurricular activity which allows aspiring designers the experience of production for the runway.

Perhaps the most exciting prospect on Sell's horizon will present itself shortly after graduation on May 9. She has been offered an internship in New York City with Katie Ermilio, a young designer who has fashioned outfits for such notables as Katy Perry and Taylor Swift. Ermilio comes from a designing family; her grandfather was a stylist for Grace Kelly and also designed the green Master's jackets.

"To be able to go New York and work with someone of her caliber is a dream come true," Sell said.

She will intern from May through August, working in Ermilio's studio in the garment district five days and 40 hours a week. She will be participating in a wide range of related activities including sewing, cutting, hand stitching, pattern-making, running errands and assisting at photo shoots.

And what will all this lead to?

"That's the exciting part. I'll just see where it goes from there," she said.

Sell is a talented, aspiring fashion designer who is willing to work hard and take the risk of leaving her comfort zone for the Big Apple in order to have her dream of bridal design come true.

"My goal is to do what I love all the days of my life," she said.

The Ride Of Silence in Boyne City will begin at 7 p.m. on Wednesday, May 20, at Veterans Park.

COURTESY PHOTO

Ride of Silence to honor injured or killed bicyclists

BOYNE CITY — Quiet reflection will happen in Boyne City on Wednesday, May 20, as bicyclists from the Boyne Area gather to ride and remember those fellow bicyclists injured or killed on the road.

Event organizers ask participating riders to begin gathering at 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday for orientation and greetings near the pavilion in Veterans Park. The group leaves at 7 p.m. from Veterans Park on the lakefront in Boyne City. This ride covers about 10 miles of roadway from Veterans Park to Whiting Park and back. The Ride of Silence is a free ride that asks cyclists to ride no faster than 12 mph for no longer than an hour, and to remain silent during the ride. The first Ride of Silence took place in Dallas 2003, after endurance cyclist Larry Schwartz was killed by a passing bus mirror on an empty road. Last year, there were more than 300 groups riding in the U.S. and 18 countries, to bring attention to the carnage that can happen in an accident involving a motor vehicle and a bicycle.

Participants must wear a helmet and be 18 years of age and older, or accompanied by an adult; bright clothing and lights are highly recommended. The ride organizers encourage wearing black armbands, or red, if you have had a bike/motor vehicle accident.

what is important to the community," Bergmann said.

Board President Dick Joseph said the board is very appreciative of input provided by the community during the board's thorough search for a new leader.

"We really wanted to do this right," Joseph said. "We feel we have the best candidate on board."

Michigan Center Schools Superintendent Scott Koziol backed out before final interviews were scheduled to begin, Joseph said. Koziol confirmed he withdrew his candidacy for the job, but declined to give a reason why.

"It sounded like his school board really wanted him to stay in their district," Joseph said.

Joseph was concerned during the meeting that people would think the school board was settling and addressed members of the audience before the vote for Ritter.

"We are not settling on the only candidate left," Joseph said. "Michael Ritter could have very well been the one we hire whether Koziol dropped out or not. We really liked both finalists."

Some of the characteristics most desired by trustees and other stakeholders for the superintendent position are approachable, knowledgeable, relationship building, experience in the classroom and strong decision-making and communication skills — all characteristics the board feels Ritter has, Joseph said.

"I feel like we all had ownership in this process and decision because we listened to our staff and community about what they wanted," Joseph said.

Some of those security measures include new cameras, new phone system in classrooms to allow teachers to dial 911 and new safety measures at the main entrances of each school, Joseph said.

Interim Superintendent Tom Stoble said educating the public about the bond helped at the polls.

"We worked hard to tell the community about our needs," he said. "This was a combined effort from parents, students and people interested in the progress of the district. I continue to be impressed with the people of Charlevoix and their support for our schools."

The district will pay off the debt over 10 years. Residents will pay the equivalent of $20 annually on a house with a taxable value of $100,000.

SIGN

Manager Mike Spencer said off premise business signs on Bridge Street are not allowed because of the Michigan Department of Transportation regulations against that practice.

"We have already spoke with MDOT about placing off-premise signs on Bridge Street," Spencer said. "MDOT does permit off-premise signs on a state trunk-line highway. This was one of the first issues we addressed when we updated the sign ordinance."

The parking problem that Mack is referring to is the 14 parking spots the city leases out each summer to people on a first-come-first-serve basis. The spots cost an individual or business owner $500 for the summer season.

"We have businesses, boaters and condo owners who all purchase the parking permits for those spots," Doan said.

The city began leasing those spots as a way to raise revenue because no one was using the parking meters, said Charlevoix Chief of Police Gerard Doan.

"No one was parking there," Doan said. "We would go to collect from the meters and no coins would be in them. Leasing the spots has proved more successful."

But that does not help the businesses near the marina, Mack said. Sunshine Charters, Beaver Island Boat Company and Keweenaw Excursions average nearly 400 people a day coming to the area in June, July and August, according to Mack.

"We have seven businesses and multiple condo rentals competing to find parking near our establishments," Mack said. "Presently there are 14 privately leased slips and four city parking spots in the lot in front of our businesses. There is no reason that these parking spots need to be in the most congested parking lot in the city."

City council member Shirley Gibson said it was the individual business owners' responsibility to not park in that area and keep their employees from doing the same.

"When businesses and their employees are parking there, they also are contributing to the parking problem," Gibson said. "If they are using parking spaces then it is not the city's problem, it is the business's problem for allowing themselves and employees to use spaces that could be used for their customers."

Gibson also would like to see the lease parking eliminated and any city employee parking spaces removed from that area.

"The city should not have reserved parking in a heavily congested parking lot," Gibson said. "There should only be meters in that lot. We should not lease parking for the few who can afford it."

FIREFIGHTERS

Captain Fred Parsons, who also retired in January after 25 years as a volunteer, shared the sentiment.

"It's about public service," Parsons said. "Doing something good for people, by giving back to the community you live in."

Parsons and Paterka each said words such as hero used to describe the men and women who fight fires became more common after 9/11.

"The perception of what we did as volunteers changed," Parsons said. "People thought more of us and the work we do."

"I remember the early days people would joke about us doing nothing," Paterka said. "The idea we all sat around the firehouse and played cards all day went away after 9/11."

Paterka was among the original 20 volunteers who served on the Charlevoix Township Fire Department when service began in 1974.

At the time the township fire department was coming into service the men who were volunteering their time for the department had to complete approximately 66 hours of training. Since the inception of the township fire department training has changed dramatically.

Today, firefighters train more than 250 hours to get to level firefighter one and two, said Charlevoix Fire Department Assistant Chief Dave Christiansen.

Training increases with each level, he added.

"Michigan requires certain amount of training hours before a person can become certified to fight fires," Christiansen said.

That is where it can be difficult for new volunteers wanting to join the department, Paterka said.

"A volunteer firefighter is required to complete the same training as a professional firefighter," he said. "A volunteer also needs a job to support himself. We're on call 24 hours and for many years we were not paid."

The department became a paid on call volunteer department, after beginning fire runs for other townships, Christiansen said.

But it's not about the money, Parsons and Paterka agreed that the brotherhood they have grown into is what has kept them around.

"You're hanging around other people who care for other people," Parsons said. "There is nothing like it in the world. When one of us is down we're there to lift each other up."

In that line of work, they feel it is especially important to have this level of companionship, and said that oftentimes the only people who truly understand the bond firefighters have are those who have experienced similar situations.

Being there for each other also extends to each firefighter's immediate family, Paterka said, as he spoke of the camaraderie in the department.

"We share meals and share each other's lives and we learn to rely upon each other with our lives," he said.

The strength of that bond became clearer to Paterka and his family after a staff infection in his spine changed everything in 2004.

"I was a quadriplegic because of it," Paterka said. "It was a rough time. I had to learn how to do things all over again. When tragedy strikes in your life, these guys show up at your door."

While recuperating from his illness he had an eagerness to help when he heard a call. But he had to let those feelings go, knowing one of his "brothers" will be there to take care of it because he cannot.

"You learn to depend on other people because there are a lot of other people depending on you," Parsons said.

Parsons said all of their training kicks in when it comes to fighting fires, and no matter how bleak it may seem at the time each fire fighter fulfills their duty.

"There are moments when it's tense and it's close and life hangs by a hair," Parsons said. "It's then you know you're around people who depend on you being there doing what you were trained to do."

Despite the gravity of being a volunteer firefighter during a fire, there are plenty of situations that make it all worth it.

"Nothing beats the feeling when you're able to save the house full of memories for somebody," Paterka said.

"We've been able to get boxes upon boxes out before they're ruined, or go in and get that special item that you want. And there's no better feeling than when weeks or months later you see that person and they thank you, all because you put in that little bit of extra effort."

Charlevoix sets up LMC showdown with doubleheader sweep of Harbor Springs

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix baseball team couldn't afford a letdown against visiting Harbor Springs on Tuesday with a potential conference-deciding showdown with Traverse City St. Francis waiting today (Friday).

And the Rayders didn't fall for the trap, taking care of their business and dispatching the Rams 9-0 in game one and 8-4 in game two to set up a date with the Gladiators.

Charlevoix jumped all over the Rams early in game one, scoring three runs in the second and five in the third to pull away.

With Nate Moon on the mound, those nine runs were more than enough for the Rayders, as the senior ace pitched a complete game shutout, striking out six, walking one and giving up two hits to earn the win.

Chase Lepird walked one and gave up two earned runs to take the loss for Harbor Springs in a complete game performance.

In the nightcap, the Rayders fell behind 4-0 early but rallied with eight runs in the third, fourth and fifth innings to take the win.

Hunter Cox went the distance for Charlevoix, striking out five and walking six to earn the win, while Chris Finklebe struck out one and walked three in four innings of work to take the loss for Harbor Springs.

Kenen Borths went three for four at the plate in game two with an RBI to lead the Rayders offensively, and Jake Seger chipped in two hits and three RBIs on the night, including a two-run double in game one.

Andrew Michaud added two hits and two RBIs, Cox chipped in two hits and an RBI, and Christian Matye finished with a hit and three RBIs.

Moon hit a double and a single for the Rayders, Noah Certa added an RBI double, and Will Telgenhof chipped in an RBI single.

"Nate Moon is really hitting his stride on the mound, he was close not only to a no hitter but a perfect game," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "We didn't have a guy strike out in either game and when you put the ball in play, good things happen."

"I think that the tough competition we played early on is really helping us out now."

Charlevoix (13-7, 8-2 LMC) can take over first place in the league race with a sweep against St. Francis today.

Rayders take two in crucial LMC doubleheader with Grayling CHARLEVOIX — Friday's home doubleheader with Grayling was an opportunity the Charlevoix baseball team couldn't afford to waste, sitting tied with the Vikings in the LMC standings a game behind T.C. St. Francis.

The Rayders not only didn't waste their chance, they made the most of it, sweeping Grayling convincingly with TRAVERSE CITY — It's not often the Petoskey and Charlevoix track and field teams find one another on the same track.

When they have, they've proven to be fairly evenly matched.

That would prove true once again on Friday, as each traveled to the annual Ken Bell Invitational hosted by Traverse City Central.

Neither team, however, would be able to match up with Division I power East Kentwood, who took first in both the boys' and girls' meets by wide margins, amongst the 15 programs in attendance.

BELLAIRE — The Charlevoix boys golf team got off to a solid start this season, but the Rayders are really hitting their stride now.

Charlevoix fired a season-best round of 335 to take its first LMC Jamboree title of the season at Centennial Farm Golf Club on Wednesday, besting runner-up Traverse City St. Francis by nine strokes.

Noah Jeakle shot a 75 to earn medalist honors and lead the Rayders, edging out East Jordan's Logan Smith for first place. Smith shot a round of 79.

While Jeakle's round was impressive, Charlevoix backed it up with three more golfers finishing their rounds under 90 strokes on the way to the title.

Montana Thompson carded an 86, and Matt Good and Tanner Dryst each shot an 87 as well for the Rayders.

Collin Turkleson shot a 90 and JJ Wachler a 95 as well for Charlevoix.

"Obviously, having Noah shoot the score he did is a big help, and the course today was a little more forgiving than some of the others we played on," Charlevoix coach Keith Grunch said. "Our guys have really buckled down and done a better job with their short game, and that's allowed us to shave strokes off our scores throughout the round."

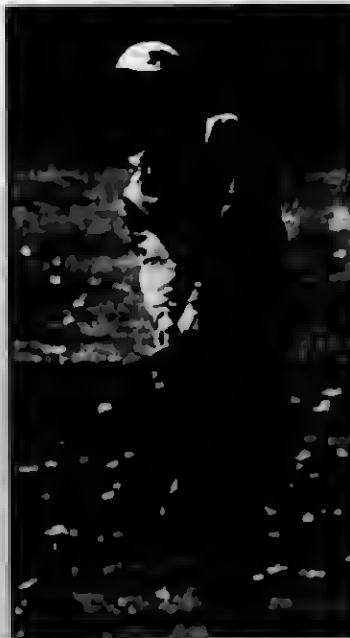

Harbor Springs shot a 355 to finish third in the Jamboree, a result coach Pete Kelbel said he was pleased with given the Rams were missing one of their normal top six.

Ben Arnold and Keith Fitzpatrick each shot an 88 to lead the Rams, Hayden Grezlak carded an 89, and Adam Cavitt finished with a score of 90.

Cam Kennard shot a 91 and Cole Ketterer a 98 as well for Harbor Springs.

"The golf courses in Harbor Springs have not been open, so we have to come from the back of the pack at the start of the year,"

Charlevoix nearing title showdown after 3-0 win over TC Liberty

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

TRAVERSE CITY — Winning the Lake Michigan Conference title is the task at hand for the Charlevoix girls soccer team.

And although the Rayders, ranked No. 1 in the state in Division 4, still have work to do to lock up the title, Charlevoix took a big step toward that goal with a 3-0 win over the host Traverse City Liberty Monday.

The Rayders struck quickly, as Sophie Herbolsheimer scored off a cross from Rachel Nesburg just 17 seconds into the game to give Charlevoix a 1-0 lead.

A long pass into the wind by Leah Davis off the kickoff to Nesburg made the goal possible.

Davis added to Charlevoix's advantage 25 minutes later, scoring on a long-distance shot that beat the goalkeeper to make it 2-0, and Grace Way finished off a Kylee Scholten pass off a Nesburg corner kick with 13:51 remaining to put the game away.

Gloria Greene earned her sixth shutout of the year in net for Charlevoix, making 10 saves to preserve the win.

"I was really happy to see us come out so strong to start the game, especially with us playing into the wind," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "T.C. Liberty is a very good team who is very well coached."

"They had excellent passing in the midfield and forced us to play the ball in the middle."

Charlevoix improves to 10-1 overall and 8-0 in the league with two huge conference clashes looming.

The Rayders traveled to Boyne City on Thursday for an LMC match, and if Charlevoix was able to get past the Ramblers, it will face second place Elk Rapids Monday, May 11, for a

The Petoskey boys would earn 12th overall, with the Rayders taking eighth place, while on the girls' side, Petoskey earned eighth and Charlevoix, 14th.

Finishing with top 10 performances on the day, Petoskey's Kurt Boucher took ninth in the 100 meter dash, finishing in 12.08 seconds, while in the 800 meter run, Charlevoix's Nick Plude finished under a second off of the top spot, earning second in 2:00.70.

In the 3200 meter run, Thomas Vanslebrouck of Petoskey earned fourth in 9:53.59, while Noah Carson of Charlevoix took ninth in 10:22.74.

Charlevoix's Parker Skeel would impress in the 110 hurdles, taking eighth in 17.40, but would just fall out of the top 10 in the 4x800 hurdles in 12th, followed by teammate Kevin Pearl in 13th.

In relay events, Charlevoix's Ben Boss, Micah Peebles, Jared McLean and Plude finished fourth in the 4x400 relay in 3:33.15, while in the 4x800 relay, Boss, Plude, Kevin Pearl and Luke Buday earned fourth, in 8:23.52.

Seven meet records fall at Harbor Springs Kiwanis 9/10 Invite HARBOR SPRINGS — By the 11th year, most meet record books stand largely intact from year to year.

Not so with the Harbor Springs Kiwanis ninth and 10th grade Invite, as beautiful weather and a strong field for this year's edition mean the record book will look very different heading into next year's meet.

Seven meet records fell this year, four on the girls side and three on the boys side.

East Jordan sprinters Ryan Graham and Katie Rowbotham each set a meet record in the 100 dash, with Graham winning in 11.24 to break the record of 11.33 set by Jack Bishop of T.C. West in 2013, and Rowbotham winning in 12.63 to break the record of 12.85 set Emily Bulson of Sault Ste. Marie in 2006.

Harbor Springs' Erika Lechner rewrote both records in the throws, winning the girls shot put with a throw of 33-feet-5.25 to break the record of 32-4 set by Erika Lafrinere of Cheboygan in 2008, and winning the girls discus with a throw of 106-11 to break the record of 100-7.75 set by Melissa Fochtman of Kalkaska in 2004.

Charlevoix's Jared McLean set two records as well, taking first in the boys 200 dash in 23.13 to break the record of 23.34 set by Nick Plude of Charlevoix in 2013, and teamed with Graham Kroon, Malcom Williams and Kevin Pearl to break the Rayders' own record from last year in the 1,600 relay, finishing in a time of 3:42.16.

The last record of the day went to Anna Harmeling of Boyne City, who won the girls pole vault with a clearance of 8-7 to break the record of 8-6 held by Caitlyn Wonski of 5-0 and 12-4 wins to stay in the hunt in the conference race.

Charlevoix got big nights offensively from Noah Carta, who went 6 for 6 with two doubles and three RBIs, and Brad Klingner, who was perfect at the plate as well with two doubles and three RBIs, to jump all over the Vikings in both games.

Nate Moon finished three for six with two RBIs as well for the Rayders, Hunter Cox added a two-run single and Jake Seger hit an RBI single as well.

"Brad Klingner got some extra hitting practice in early and it really paid off," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "he had a perfect night at the plate as did Noah Carta.

"We were clicking all night long."

Moon was a force on the mound in game one, striking out five, walking none and giving up two hits in a complete game shutout to earn the victory, and Cox had a strong outing as well in the nightcap, striking out two, walking three and giving up one earned run in six innings of work.

"Nate Moon threw one of the best games I've seen him pitch," Telgenhof said. "He worked fast, threw strikes, didn't walk anyone and let his defense make plays behind him.

Rayders sweep Gaylord

CHARLEVOIX — For the second time in a week late rallies helped the Charlevoix baseball team sweep a doubleheader.

After two close wins over Elk Rapids April 28, the Rayders did it again against visiting Gaylord on April 30, earning a 6-5 walk-off win in game one and using a big performance in their last inning at the plate to pull out a 9-4 game two victory.

Charlevoix led 2-0 until the top of the sixth inning in game one, when the Blue Devils exploded for five runs to take a commanding lead.

With just three outs at their disposal, the Rayders clawed their way back, getting a no-out RBI double from Austin Putman to cut the lead to 5-3, then scoring Putman on an error to make it 5-4 with two outs and two runners in scoring position.

in with a single to left field to complete the comeback for Charlevoix.

Nate Moon led the Rayders offensively with two hits, while Will Telgenhof and Jake Seger each drove in a run.

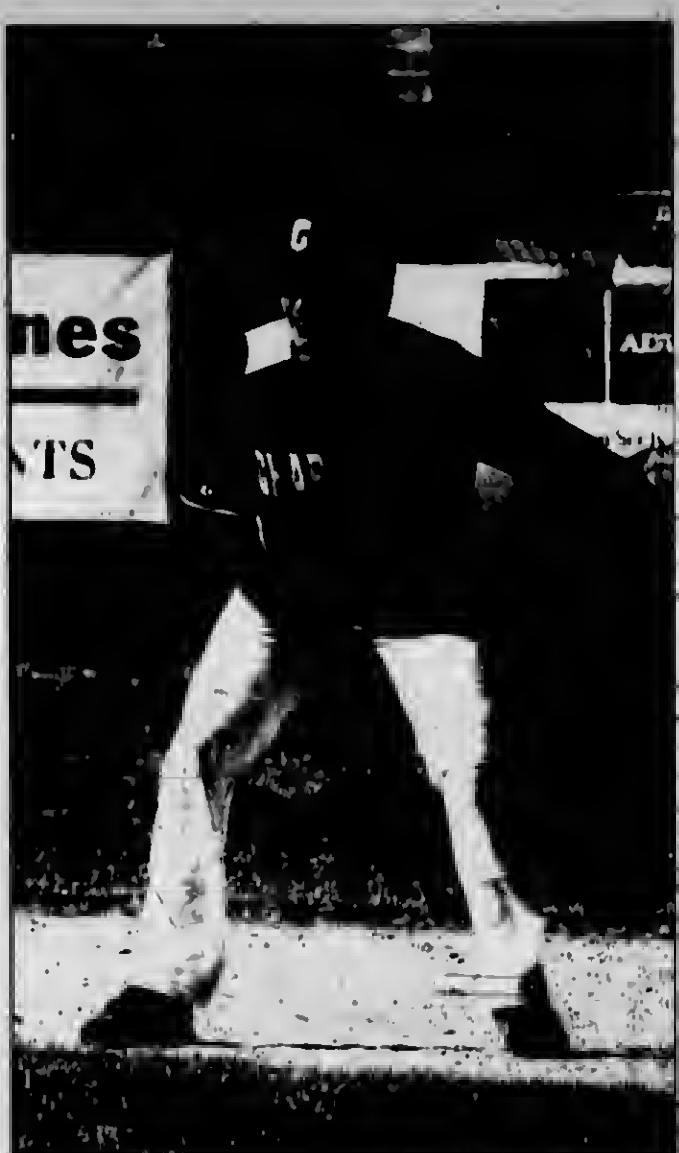

Putman earned the win on the mound, striking out three and walking four in six innings of work.

In the nightcap, Charlevoix broke a 4-4 tie with five runs on five hits in the bottom of the fifth inning, and pitcher KeNen Borths retired the side in the top of the sixth to seal the victory.

Seger and Cox each led the Rayders at the plate with two hits and two RBIs, and Noah Carta went two for three with a double as well.

Putman, Borths and Devin Largent each added an RBI single for Charlevoix, and Borths went the distance to earn the win, striking out nine and walking four.

"It was a fun night; we were able to start all 16 of our guys and get a sweep against a Big North team, Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Jake Seger continues to stay hot for us, coming off the bench to get a pinch-hit single and score the winning run (in game one), Hunter Cox also had a great night, getting the walk off two-run hit with two outs, and adding two more hits in game two."

ORDINANCE NO. 772 OF 2015

AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND TITLE II, PARKS AND PUBLIC GROUNDS, CHAPTER 31, PARKS - GENERAL REGULATIONS,
 SECTION 3.3 - FIREWORKS ORDINANCE

THE CITY OF CHARLEVOIX ORDAINS:

SECTION 1. Repeal Section 3.3 Fireworks of Title III, Chapter 31 of the Charlevoix City Code is hereby repealed in its entirety and replaced with the following:

The purpose of this Ordinance is to provide for the regulation of the ig-

UNIFICATION. The 14-hour History of Society is screening the world premiere of a new live-in-theater documentary, "The Wizard of Boulder Park: A Legend in Our Time," filmed at the University of Colorado. Partnering with three-time Emmy award winning filmmaker, producer, writer, and actor, and author of Ed Young and Anne Beranger, of Real America draws the film will present authentic stories and pictures of the life and works from the man who has inspired architects, current home-owners, friends and family members.

OBITUARIES

Virginia Whitehead Million

From Feb. 11, 1922, in Vancouver, Ind., my mother Virginia Whitehead Million (her maiden name) was the strongest person I ever knew. She died Sunday, April 15, 2012, in Scottsdale, Ariz., after one of her long illnesses.

She is survived by two siblings, four children, nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Her legacy is several public service including family's staying in Canada during World War II. I am proud ing at the World Museum and Family Art Exchange in Phoenix as well as working with coming 100th year. The house is a place that we can't stop in our garage. They're still left in room for a car.

But her legacy did not stop there. I am proud of her and her family. I am proud of her and her family. I am proud of her and her family.

Roadhouses inspire new dining spot

BY ANNE KELLY
Staff Writer

CHARLEVOIX A new restaurant soon will open in a building that's already known for dining.

In fall 1977, a nameless building at the intersection of Highway 1 and Highway 27, known as the "Roadhouse," was built by Robert Goodie and Robert Cupo.

Some will remember the building, also known as the "Roadhouse," as the site of the 1977 fire that destroyed the building. The fire was caused by a gas leak in the kitchen, and the building was destroyed.

Following the fire, the building was demolished and the site was left empty.

Goodie and Cupo met over the construction of the building. They had been friends for many years and had been working together for a long time.

Honor Flight to take local vet to D.C.

LOWNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER
 Charlevoix resident Gus Schmidt looks through the Mid-Michigan Honor Flight inaugural flight photo book at the Charlevoix Courier's office. Schmidt will be one of 60 veterans flying for free in June to Washington D.C. to see the national war memorials built in their honor.

LOWNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 - lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — World War II veteran Gus Schmidt is ready to attend the Honor Flight along with his Honor Flight Guardian Larry Levensgood. They've waited nearly a year and a half for this moment.

"It will be very moving to hear the stories from these veterans when we take this trip," Levensgood said.

Schmidt, 91, of Charlevoix, served from March 17, 1943, to Jan. 28, 1946, and was in three European war campaigns — Rhineland Campaign, Ardennes-Alsace Campaign and Central Europe Campaign.

He was a combat engineer in 303rd Engineering Battalion in the 78th Division of the U.S. Army, where he observed the Pontoon Bridge Construction while waiting to cross the Ludendorff Bridge at Remagen.

"We did anything that dealt with mines and explosives," Schmidt said. "We would be called in when the Army needed us to help with any of that type of work."

Schmidt is looking forward to the flight in June and seeing the World War II Memorial.

"It's just something I want to see," Schmidt said. "It's an honor to be going with others who served during the war."

Levensgood and Schmidt have known each other for about 30 years. Levensgood said talking with Schmidt about his war experiences is "mind-boggling."

"I'm very impressed by what he tells me," Levensgood said. "It must of took a lot of courage to be there during combat and see all that he has seen."

Honor Flight is an all-expense paid trip for World War II and Korean War veterans to visit and reflect on their memorials in Washington, D.C. Terminally ill and senior veterans get first priority. Mid-Michigan Honor Flight flew twice in 2014. In June the group flew its inaugural flight out of Grand Rapids and in September the flight left from Traverse City.

The coming of the resorts

BY ANNE KELLY AND DAVID MILES
 Special to the Courier

This is the second in a two-part article profiling the summer clubs that have been an integral part of the Charlevoix community since the 1800s. It is a summary of a program written and presented by David Miles, curator of the Harsha House Museum, resident historian and guardian of a collection of historical photographs of Charlevoix, largely the product of a lifetime of work by his father, Charlevoix photographer Bob Miles.

Chicago Club
 Like its counterpart the Belvedere Club, the Chicago Club had its origins in a religious affiliation. Word of what the Belvedere Baptists had done in 1878, purchasing land to create a summer resort community, reached the 1,200-strong First Congregational Church of Chicago. A scouting group was sent up Lake Michigan to check out the possibility of a similar real estate investment opportunity for their flock. Soon, the Aug. 21, 1880 edition of the Charlevoix Sentinel announced that negotiations were underway with Charlevoix landholder John Dixon and a purchase agreement for 40 acres of his land on the north side of the upper channel was taking place. The transaction was finalized, and on June 2, 1881, the resort received its Articles of Incorporation as the "Chicago Summer Resort Company" from the State of Illinois. Construction of the clubhouse began immediately and was completed in six weeks. It is still there, the oldest building on the grounds, set above terraced lawns and surrounded by cottages which soon followed on the same level and down below. Even the clubhouse registration desk is still there, looking exactly like it did more than a century ago. Like the Belvedere clubhouse, it was not open to the public and catered to stockholders and a limited number of carefully selected guests. Names associated with American business and industry have been part of the Club over the years: Domino Sugar, Quaker Oats and

60,000-plus petunias ready to plant on US-31

 (231) 547-6558 - lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Next week, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful will use hundreds of volunteers to plant roughly 60,000-plus petunias throughout the city, with an additional 135 hanging baskets to line the lamp poles.

A variety of colored petunias will be planted at 5 p.m. Thursday, May 28, along a five-mile stretch of U.S. 31 both north and south of Charlevoix. It's a tradition for the city to be lined on both sides of the road with volunteers ready to dig in.

Dale Boss, the founder of the Keep Charlevoix Beautiful effort, launched the movement in 1982 with the colorful petunias, said Aaron Wilkin, president of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful.

Fisherman's Island State Park DNR wants input on plan

BY MALACHI BARRETT
 Charlevoix Courier intern

CHARLEVOIX — The Michigan Department of Natural Resources is seeking public input on the first General Management Plan for Fisherman's Island State Park since 1974.

Residents and visitors to the park, located in Charlevoix County, are invited to share their opinions and ideas through an online survey, available through June 24 at survey-monkey.com/s/Fishermans_Island_State_Park. In addition to inquiring about park use and visiting habits, the survey asks residents their opinion of a proposed regional trail initiative that would link Charlevoix to Traverse City and extend the Little Traverse Wheelway south. The non-motorized pathway would run through Fisherman's Island State Park.

"We are hoping to have a draft plan ready for public review in mid-to-late August," said Debbie Jensen, DNR park management plan administrator. "We will take all the comments from the survey and get

City ordinance bans sky lantern use

LOWNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 - lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — With summer's festival season approaching Charlevoix officials would like to remind everyone that the launching of sky lanterns is prohibited in the city after city council enacted the new ordinance earlier this month.

Sky lanterns are small air balloons made of paper with an opening at the bottom for a candle or fuel container, and are launched into the air, normally during holiday celebrations or special events. Because they have floating open flames, they can be considered a fire hazard, city officials said.

The measure came at the suggestion after Charlevoix Police and Fire Chief Gerard Doan studied the potential hazards from sky lantern use.

"These things are dangerous," Doan said. "You are launching a candle in the wind and that can blow anywhere."

Doan said he has seen situations in which sky lanterns have blown on boats and down the beaches after they were launched.

"If it makes contact with any dry vegetation or even somebody's trash goods out by the sidewalk for pickup, even next to their garage, the potential is there for an uncontrolled fire," Doan said.

Sky lanterns are considered fire balloons and in the same category as aerial fireworks, which are not illegal in Michigan. That's the reason for the updated ban.

"These are beautiful devices that float into the air, but they do have an open flame. And at some point in time, you could really

Tranquilized black bear back in forest after trek to Charlevoix

Lonnie Allen
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charvoix.com

CHARLEVOIX — Michigan Department of Natural Resources officials said the black bear that wandered into the city of Charlevoix on Sunday, May 17, is safe and roaming free at the Pigeon River State Forest.

The young bear has been moved to a good place that's a good bear habitat," said Brian Mastenbrook, wildlife supervisor for the Department of Natural Resources.

Mastenbrook does not believe the bear will return to Charlevoix because of its encounter with humans was a negative one.

"The bear should want to avoid people because of the negative reinforcement it received around us," Mastenbrook said. "He was tranquilized, put in a cage and loaded on truck where he would have awoken during the ride. The impact of this encounter is most likely a frightening experience for the bear."

The bear, a male possibly between 1 to 2 years of age, weighed about 125 pounds. It is the males that are most likely to come into contact with humans, Mastenbrook said.

"Yearling young males are aggressively driven away by their mother once her interest is turned toward breeding," he said. "These young males seek out new territory for food, which sometimes leads them into neighboring towns."

Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan said a Charlevoix Police Department officer received a report of someone seeing the bear crossing Bridge Street near the Dairy Grille a few minutes before midnight Sunday.

Doan said the officer located the bear at about 1:30 a.m. on Monday, May 18, as it was going through some garbage in the same area.

"A lot of times we get these calls at night that a bear is wandering around town," Mastenbrook said. "Most times the bears are seen breaking into bird feeders or feeding on garbage. Black bear have enormous appetites and an excellent sense of smell. They will travel great distances to find food."

This time of year, bears are particularly hungry and will take advantage of any food sitting out in the open. This includes trash cans and bird feeders, and bears have been known to return to food sources multiple times.

"We live in bear country and the easiest thing people can do to avoid problems is to take in their bird feeders and store other attractants like trash cans inside until garbage pickup," Mastenbrook said. "Once the woods green up, bears tend to move on to find more natural sources of food, as long as they haven't become habituated to the bird seed or garbage cans."

The DNR got involved with the bear removal when it became clear that the bear was not coming down from the tree it was in early Monday morning, Doan said.

"We had an officer keep an eye on the bear in the tree until about 7 a.m. before DNR officials tranquilized the bear," Doan said. "It was about 15 minutes after the bear was sedated before he came down the tree."

Normally the DNR and law enforcement officials like to let bears wander out of town on their own, but because this one stuck around until daylight it became clear they needed to remove the bear, Mastenbrook said.

"They're a wild animal and scared," he said. "We don't want to take the chance of the bear coming down during the day and crossing into traffic or encountering more people. It increases the chances of a more negative incident, which we want to avoid."

Doan said the bear incident ended much better than previous ones in the city, where law enforcement had to shoot and kill a bear.

"This was a much more happier ending," Doan said.

James Perry Bennett is veteran of the month for May 2015

The veteran of the month for May 2015 is James Perry Bennett. Born Aug. 3, 1916, on the family farm in Antrim County, Bennett attended the Bennett School in Antrim County, that was built by his grandfather, during the early grades, continuing his education through the eighth grade in Rudyard.

Bennett returned to his father's farm doing farm work and lumbering, and on Sept. 18, 1937, Bennett, in East Jordan, married Fern Virginia Gee. In November 1944, he went to work for the East Jordan and Southern Rail Road as a locomotive engineer firing the boiler and operating the locomotive.

On March 1, 1945, Bennett was inducted into the Army, entering into active service in Chicago, and following basic and specialty training, where he qualified expert with the M1 Garand rifle. Bennett departed the U.S. on Aug. 14, 1945, arriving in the Pacific Theater of Operations, Sept. 8, 1945, and was one of the first units of occupation in Japan following the dropping of the atomic bombs.

He was assigned to Service Unit Company, 126th Infantry Regiment, serving as a light truck driver and drove trucks up to and including 2.5 tons hauling personnel, supplies and equipment. He also serviced, cleaned, lubricated, maintained vehicles, did minor and road repairs on vehicles, did night driving and also drove a bulldozer. On Dec. 29, 1945, Bennett departed the Pacific Theater of Operations arriving in the U.S. on Jan. 14, 1946.

On Jan. 22, 1946, at the Separation Center, Fort Sheridan, Ill., Bennett received an Honorable Discharge, having attained the Non-Commissioned Officer rank of Private First Class, and was awarded the following decorations and awards:

- The Victory Medal
- The Asiatic Pacific Theater Medal
- The Expert Infantryman Badge.

Returning home, Bennett worked at the East Jordan Canning Factory and in 1955 went to work at the East Jordan Iron Works, retiring in 1978. Bennett was a member of the East Jordan VFW and the East Jordan American Legion Post 227, and enjoyed working bingo and serving in the Legion Honor Guard at funerals, was an avid bowler, enjoyed gardening, especially his tomato plants, sitting in the sun, and spending quality time with his family and friends.

On Sept. 8, 2005, James Perry Bennett answered the final call and is being honored by his children and their families.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 or on Tuesdays call (231) 582-7811 from 3:30-8:30 p.m. The ceremony may be witnessed on the first Thursday of each month in front of the American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City at 6:15 p.m.

"I can make your project better."

OPINIONS yours & ours

The last hoorah

BY BOBAN GEM
Special to the Courier

Earlier this year I was on a bus ride home from a downstate baseball game. It wasn't the prettiest of the four games we — Charlevoix Raiders — played against Whitehall and Montague, winning just one out of the four. As I sat on the bus, I noticed that all of my teammates were doing something different. One was either sleeping, listening to music, free-styling or attempting to have a meaningful conversation. I, on the other hand, sat there and reminisced.

It was starting to hit me. My high school career was coming to an end. I've been feeling it ever since the first day of my senior year. It is an incredible feeling. Coming home back in September after a bad day, and reminding myself that I should make the most of my time here, as I don't have much time left. I always knew being a senior was special, but I didn't know it was this special.

I came to Charlevoix in 5th grade. Before that I attended Ebenezer Christian School in Ellsworth for my kindergarten year. I then transferred to Ellsworth Community Schools for grades 1st thru 3rd. I was home schooled for my 4th grade year.

When I transferred to Charlevoix in 5th grade, it was a big transition. Even though I made some friends there through sports, I was still looking to find my place. Middle school, like for a lot of kids, wasn't the easiest place to be. I was never a talkative kid, that seemed to work against me. I didn't know if that would ever change. I didn't see that change until I entered my freshman year of high school.

There was something about high school that seemed to always fit to me. My dad, Brian, taught construction there for many years — I won't embarrass him by saying exactly how many.

I often found myself as a young kid running around his shop, sometimes even running into the big, bad high schoolers that were in his class. I'd like to say I wasn't scared, but I was no doubt intimidated by them whenever we crossed paths. I loved it. They seemed and were more mature than middle schoolers. I saw my fit.

I reminisced about my times playing tennis. I played tennis my freshman and sophomore years, before the program got cut because of a lack of players in 2013. It was a fun time, and I enjoyed it much. Tennis, like the sport I now play, baseball, is more mental than physical. That was the hardest part for me to adjust to as a younger kid, and I still find myself dealing with mental gaffes from time to time.

I reminisced about the many, many years I have played baseball, my favorite sport. The memories made through this sport are some of the best I have had. I have been blessed to be on great teams, with great teammates and great coaches. I owe all of my success to them. Winning the district title in 2013 for the first time in 25 years was for sure the best baseball moment, or any sports moment ever.

I can't talk about my time with playing sports without mentioning the relationships I have through them. I can't even put into words what it has meant to me. This isn't the first time I've said it, but life is about what people mean to us, and what we mean to people. Of course there was and still are times where we don't get along well, but there's no getting around that. We're all human.

I reminisced about the many years I have been involved in the church my parents rose me up in — The Community Reformed Church — and how my time there will be cut due to attending college this fall. So many memories of my sister and I running around as little kids wreaking havoc to anyone we came across. Something about it was special. As an 18-year-old, I have seen first hand my faith grow. My youth group took a mission trip to the Dominican Republic more than a year ago and that trip put a lasting impression to me about how blessed and honestly how spoiled we are here in America. It was a trip that I will cherish for the rest of my life.

What can I say? As I sit here writing this I can feel a sensitive vibe come across my body. My high school, and for that matter my grade school career is over. This fall I will be attending Calvin College in Grand Rapids. I'm excited to see what God has in store for me there. Through all of the ups, and downs these past years, I wouldn't be able to get through it without the people who helped me along the way. I know nothing is ever perfect in life, but every one of you have made this ride worth it, and I just want to say thank you.

Take time to remember

When I was growing up in my hometown of Greenville, Mich., a small town about an hour north of Grand Rapids, Memorial Day was the day when I would ride along with grandma to the different cemeteries around the city, planting flowers around the many graves of loved ones who had long passed on.

TO THE POINT

As I remember it, Memorial Day always seemed to be a glorious sunny day and after we were finished planting the various flowers we would go back to her house where the rest of the family would be waiting. Grandpa would start the charcoal grill, so it would be nice and hot for our annual hamburgers and hot dogs, while the women would be inside preparing a variety of different potato, macaroni and vegetable salads, along with other side dishes to complete our start of summer feast.

Memorial Day was the official start of summer in my young eyes, but once I got older, I realized how wrong I was. The day meant so much more to so many people and I never really thought about it, until I enlisted in the United States Marine Corps after high school.

Once I began to serve, I learned the history of this day and the importance of the entire flower planting grandma had always done. She wasn't just remembering lost loved ones. She was honoring those in our family who gave their lives for the service of our country.

Unlike Veterans Day, Memorial Day is the holiday set aside to pay tribute to those who died serving in the military.

As a veteran, I cannot imagine not setting aside some time to revere and respect people who are sacred to our country. They are our thousands of heroes who are buried all across America. They're the heroes who fought and died preserving the union. They're the heroes who left home to go to hostile places and laid down their lives for us. They're America's men and women of the U.S. Armed Forces protecting this country for the rest of us.

As Americans we need to take a moment and visit the grave of someone who died representing us. Go and take just a few moments and give thanks for that person who will be one of many, many thousands who have made what we have in America possible.

We take America for granted. We enjoy so much freedom, opportunity and protection. We are so far from perfect, but nothing in the world is perfect. It is up to us to teach our children and youth the reason for the day off to gather with family. Don't wait until they go off into the world on their own. Give them the chance to reflect and understand the meaning of the parades and cemetery ceremonies.

Teach them that before you light up that grill to kick off the summer season we spend some time to remember the blood of those who gave us the chance to have the freedom to travel, grill out, go to the mall or make summer memories with our family.

This Memorial Day weekend, remember, and give thanks for the soldiers who have made all that possible.

The 55th Annual Morel Festival in Boyne City was this last weekend and the town was flowing with fungi lovers from all over Northern Michigan. This little mushroom has a following celebrities would envy; the little fungus is a popular Morchella. Leading me down the path to the festival was flags on the light poles and banners on buildings leading to vendors and morel experts who greeted me with morel educational conversation.

I dare ask the question "So where do you find these Morels?" I get the once over from head to toe and the greenhorn gets the answer of the day, "You're not from around here are you?" I reply "Me? Why do you ask?" I replied, "Because you asked where to find them." Okay I did ask for it and if Bill Engvall was around I would have humbly received my stupid sign.

Despite my new-to-the-area persona I dove into the realm of the Morel with both feet and with fascination, learning all that I could from the experts in morel hunting. I learned that it must be moist, warm, and these little mushrooms are easy to miss. The month of May is the best time of year to look for them. I learned to look for them in areas that have either been affected by a forest fire or a lot of downed elms. After you find your Morels what will the great hunter of fungi do with their bounty? They are cooked up in many ways; many recipes for the morel can be found online, just type in morel recipes and up pops several sites to choose from for your morel cooking experience.

I chose to introduce my taste buds to the deep fried morel with a side of fries. Being the newest morel hunter on the block I chose to take an adventure to Buhbas BBQ at the festival where I met Mike Shaw with his two Grandsons Max Burgan and Ralph Guthrie, they took the time to share a little of their expertise of Morel hunting with me as they huy their morels in Petoskey. Mike did say he did much morel hunting as a child and sprung a little joke on the gullible Scotty, "One day I found a morel on the side of the road I had to get a chain saw and cut it down it was so big it almost didn't fit in the back of the truck!" we shared a good laugh.

Taking a stroll around the festival I noticed many vendors were devoted to the morel, many sculptures carved out of wood in many and there is even a whole clothing line fashioned for the little fungi. My experience, a great one for my palate, was fulfilled on a beautiful Saturday afternoon at the festival. I can't wait for the next one. Happy Morel hunting to you all, may your adventure be bountiful.

Rotarian Jerry Hepner entertains the audience at the 2014 East Jordan Rotary Variety Show.

East Jordan Variety Show scheduled for June

EAST JORDAN — The East Jordan Rotary Club will host the 9th annual Rotary Variety Show at 7 p.m. on Friday, June 5 and Saturday, June 6, at the community auditorium at East Jordan High School, doors will open at 6 p.m. each night.

Rotarian Chip Hansen will again be the show's master of ceremonies.

"The production team has produced another amazing show," Hansen said. "The audience will have a great time, enjoying the great music and slapstick comedy that they've come to expect from our shows."

The show features the fabulous Rotary Chorus, as well as a live pit band.

"The chorus and the band carry the show," Hansen said. "Our musicians fly in from all over the country and they're incredibly talented."

The Rotary Variety Show is a team effort, too. Rotarians Mike Aenis and Mark Penzien coordinate the show's production team, which selects the chorus medleys, writes the skits and crossover acts, manages the rehearsals and, in general, plans the entire show.

"We've got a great team of creative and talented people that create the show," Aenis said. "The planning meetings are oftentimes as fun, and funny, as the show itself."

Penzien agreed with Aenis about the upcoming show.

"The show really brings out the best in our club members, who work together to provide a couple of great evenings of entertainment for all to enjoy," he said.

The preshow begins at 6 p.m., so guests are encouraged to come early to enjoy music provided by Bud Bechtold, Bob Bryan and the rest of the Rotary Swing Band.

Tickets are $10 each, and are available in East Jordan at Charlevoix State Bank and Huntington Bank. Tickets also may be available at the door, but in very limited quantities. According to Hansen, the show generally sells out.

"Last year, the show was sold out in mid-May," he said. "It's important to get your tickets early."

Proceeds from the show will be utilized in support of all the work the East Jordan Rotary Club does throughout the year including scholarship support for local students, youth leadership training programs, community improvement projects and more.

This home replaced the large Victorian on Park Avenue.

World premiere: 'The Wizard of Boulder Park' to be shown June 6

Just after World War II, with his four children grown and gone, Charlevoix's builder in stone, Earl Young, designed a smaller house for himself and wife Irene for the lot next door to his first-ever building, the house now receiving the thatch roof at 304 Park Ave. It perfectly reflected his philosophy of respect for the character of the land upon which a house sits.

Young believed that it must visually integrate itself with its surroundings. The lines of the rooftop, shingle edges, eaves, and Onaway stone slabs of the walls all imitate the gentle undulations of the lawn below. Even the chimney caps that look like melting cement are organic. On the Clinton Street side, it seems as if the house has opened up and spilled in wave-like stone terraces down to the street. This is in direct contrast to the old Victorian that his house replaced, which has no connection at all to the land on which it sits, but seems to aloofly dominate it.

These images are the second in a series of four featuring Earl Young's work. A new film documentary on Young, "The Wizard of Boulder Park," will receive its world premiere at Charlevoix Cinema III, 107 Ant-rim Street, at 8 p.m. on Monday, June 8, for one night only. There will be a gala reception at the Weathervane prior to the private screening at the theater and a panel discussion afterward available for $125 per person as a fundraiser for the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Call (231) 547-0373 for information and reservations. General admission tickets, $15, are on sale now at the theater or by calling (231) 547-2661. All ticket proceeds go toward support of the Historical Society.

Foundation's Canopy Fund helps keep Charlevoix streets tree-lined CHARLEVOIX — Several streets in Charlevoix's downtown valley area have been upgraded recently with the planting of many new trees, replacing many that fell victim to the invasive emerald ash borer, and others that had outgrown their locations and were infringing on power lines and sidewalks. The new trees represent a diverse variety of species, helping to ensure that any future disease that may be introduced will not spread to affect the entire tree population.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation's Canopy Fund, which was established a year ago, contributed funding for 22 of the 105 trees that were planted.

The tree loss has been so great that city funds cannot meet the need to replace the trees.

"We've been fortunate to maintain a portion of our tree replacement program, but it's an ongoing process requiring more resources than we have," said Pat Elliot, public works superintendent.

"The Canopy Fund is a huge help. The ability to plant an additional 20 to 30 trees every year makes a big difference in our community."

Chip Hansen, the president of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, likes the Canopy Fund, too.

"The beautiful tree-lined streets add so much to the appeal that Charlevoix has for residents and visitors alike," Hansen said. "We're hopeful that the fund will continue to grow, which will help to ensure that Charlevoix's streets will remain as they are today — lined by beautiful, mature and healthy trees."

To contribute to the Charlevoix Canopy Fund, contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at (231) 536-2440 or visit c3f.org, and click on "Make a Gift."

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a public charity dedicated to improving and enriching the lives of people in Charlevoix County. The organization holds various funds, all established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes; others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix County now and for generations to come.

A Laugh because of Kelsey

BY LUKILA WITTHOEFT
Special to the Courier

Editors Note: The following article is from Lukila Witthoeft is a sophomore at Charlevoix High School and a member of the yearbook class. She is the daughter of Marvin Witthoeft and Amber Rose. She is a student of Karen Peterson, English teacher at Charlevoix Middle School/High School. Her students worked on 300 word features — a type of feature created by Brady Dennis who worked for the St. Petersburg Times.

Walking down the long hallways of Charlevoix High School Jessica Paramo is anxious to get home. Not to go out, or be with her friends, but to spend time with her family.

Spend time with her sisters.

Because 13 years ago, Jessica Paramo found out what it's like to burden the pain of losing a loved one, losing someone that you share those precious moments with. Losing her cousin Kelsey.

"We learned at a young age how valuable life is and to be thankful for every day you have," Paramo said.

When she's with her sisters...

They laugh. They cry. They laugh more. They're inseparable.

Spending late afternoons playing tennis. Getting so competitive that they want to rip each other's hair out.

"It almost always end in a fight," she said.

Using the summer days to paint their house. Spilling the paint. Making a mess. Calling mom home from work. Nothing but anxiety, but moments later laughing so hard they forget about what happened earlier.

Driving to the east coast, spending an endless amount of time in the car. Enjoying every bit of watching the trees pass by the window, listening to music, laughing and talking.

Watching old movies that came out before younger sister Abby was born, to enlighten her with Jessica and Katie's favorite childhood things.

Because Jessica realizes how "quickly life can change."

She spends nights on the phone with her older sister at college because she doesn't want to miss a moment of her sister's life.

Anxiously waiting for her to get back, for all three of them to be together again. To be able to create more memories.

"We do nothing but laugh, we have so many inside jokes," Jessica said.

It's all because at age four — her age when Kelsey died — her sisters were there for her and have been ever since.

Michigan state parks to honor veterans with fireworks-free Fourth of July celebrations

LANSING — This Independence Day weekend — July 3 through 5 — several Michigan state parks will offer Fireworks-Free Fourth of July celebrations.

Located farther away from urban areas that often host large local fireworks displays, these participating parks are ideal camping locations for veterans and others who prefer a quieter holiday celebration.

The idea for the Fireworks-Free Fourth was the result of a conversation with a veteran, who mentioned how fireworks and other loud noises could bring up distressing memories from military experiences. Fireworks-Free Fourth of July celebrations are made possible by a partnership between the Michigan Veterans Affairs Agency and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources.

"While fireworks are a traditional Fourth of July festivity, some veterans and others prefer a calmer celebration with a little less excitement," said DNR Parks and Recreation Division Chief Ron Olson. "We are pleased to honor our veterans and offer that opportunity in several of our beautiful state parks."

ment," said DNR Parks and Recreation Division Chief Ron Olson. "We are pleased to honor our veterans and offer that opportunity in several of our beautiful state parks."

One in five veterans of the Iraq and Afghanistan wars has been diagnosed with post-traumatic stress injury. Post-traumatic stress injury (PTSI), sometimes known as post-traumatic stress disorder, is a condition that can occur after a person has been through a traumatic event. Even when removed from the stressful situation, similar sounds or experiences can trigger intense feelings of fear, stress, anger or sadness. In honor of Michigan's 660,000 veterans, including those with PTSI, the following parks this year are celebrating without loud fireworks:

- Bewabic State Park, Iron County
- Brighton Recreation Area-Bishop Lake Campground, Livingston County
- Cheboygan State Park, Cheboygan County
- Craig Lake State Park, Baraga County
- Hayes State Park, Lenawee County
- Lake Hudson State Park, Lenawee County
- Leelanau State Park, Leelanau County
- Menominee River State Recreation Area, Dickinson County
- Orchard Beach State Park, Manistee County
- Rifle River Recreation Area, Ogemaw County
- Sleepy Hollow State Park, Clinton County
- Wells State Park, Menominee County

For camping reservations at these and other parks, visit Midnreservations.com — all regular camping fees apply.

"Everyone has their own Fourth of July traditions, and we're excited to partner with Michigan state parks to offer veterans and their families a way to enjoy the holiday without worry or stress," MVA Director Jeff Barnes said. "PTSI is a normal reaction to abnormal circumstances and it can affect anyone, and an event like the Fireworks-Free Fourth is a great alternative when celebrating our nation's freedom."

For more information about Fireworks-Free Fourth celebrations, call Stephanie Wirtz (DNR) at (989) 686-2790 or Lauren DeVoi (MVA) at (517) 242-6869. DNR and MVA encourage Fireworks-Free Fourth campers to join the conversation online and spread the word with the hashtag #Fireworks-Free4th.

Local business owner 'stuffs the bus' for his birthday

CHARLEVOIX — Twenty-five marks a very special birthday for anyone and the creator of Creative Cupcake in Charlevoix has a very special way of celebrating such life events.

Rather than accept personal gifts, Alfred Soriano-Micheau, owner and culinary artist of Creative Cupcake, invited guests to contribute to a cause near to his heart.

For his 25th birthday celebration, on Friday, May 15, he asked guests to bring school supplies in lieu of a personal gift. These gifts will be distributed to area schools as part of Char-Em United Way's "Stuff the Bus" school supply drive. A "bus" was on hand and attendees at the party, a royal ball held at Castle Farms, filled it to overflowing with school supplies.

The tower of school supplies was only matched by the towering birthday cake, an example of the amazing creations to be found at Creative Cupcake.

Each fall, Char-Em United Way asks the community to come together and help them "Stuff the Bus" with supplies which are then delivered to each of the districts in the two-county area. These supplies are utilized by school staff to supplement classroom materials for students who are unable, due to financial or other reasons, to bring what is required for class.

"Our goal is to assure that students who lack sufficient means have the materials needed for school success have it," said Lorraine Manary, executive director of Char-Em United Way. "We are thrilled that Alfred wanted to start our annual 'Stuff the Bus' off with this very generous support. What an amazing way to celebrate, giving to the community and its children."

Anyone wishing to contribute to this school supply drive is welcome to contact Char-Em United Way. Efforts will be in full force this Aug. 1-15. Look for boxes at local retailers or drop off supplies at the United Way office in the lower level of the Red Cross Building, 2350 Mitchell Park Drive, Petoskey.

For more information, call (231) 487-1006 or info@charemunitedway.org.

Future of downtown focus of Main Street visioning sessions

LOHME ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • allen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Michigan Main Street officials are back in Lansing going over all the information gathered after a week of meetings and visioning sessions with Charlevoix community leaders, residents, business owners and many other stakeholders.

Annie Doyle, Charlevoix Community Economic Development director said last week's meetings went very well.

"We had a tremendous amount of people turnout from many of our local community volunteer organizations, along with a strong showing from residents, downtown businesses and other stakeholders in Charlevoix," Doyle said. "It was really inspirational to see those people come out to give their voice to the vision of our Main Street program."

The city was accepted into select level status of the Michigan Main Street Program in March and Main Street officials remained in town May 13-15 to help Charlevoix develop its or a baseline and visioning assessment.

"It was quite an extensive reach to create the most effective plan moving forward," Doyle said. "The residents that participated in the sessions gave great input on what they hope Main Street can accomplish in the next five years."

Main Street officials also met with city council members, chamber of commerce members and other entities around Charlevoix to better gauge what can be done in Charlevoix to bring a successful downtown business community.

"Many of us met with Main Street officials so we could better understand what we can do to move our Main Street program forward," said Amanda Wilkin, of the Charlevoix Visitors Bureau.

To kick off the Main Street process national and state level Main Street officials held a celebration in East Park to welcome the community to select level status and share a bit how the program will work. As a full-fledged Michigan Main Street community, Charlevoix will receive five years of intensive technical assistance, through the Michigan Main Street program, with a focus on revitalization strategies designed to attract new residents, business investment, economic growth and job creation to their central business district.

Michigan State Housing Development Authority officials were at the celebration to meet with community members and give information about the work they are doing in Charlevoix through Friday. MSHDA director Joseph Borgstrom said the celebration is what they do with everyone to get the community excited about being part of the program, which is designed to help improve downtown business districts.

"Our team is here for three days where we will meet with all the stakeholders in Charlevoix, including residents," Borgstrom said. "This is the first visit of five years of technical assistance that will be here in the community. We offer a lot of assistance and we help with branding and market analysis to give all the volunteers all the tools they need to bring Charlevoix to the point where the community wants it to be."

The celebration in East Park featured musical performances from the Charlevoix Jazz Band, appetizers and beverages catered by Bridge Street Tap Room and the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company and various speakers thanking the community for supporting Main Street.

"This is a worthwhile endeavor and it is important for us to thank the community for being part of the Main Street," said MSHDA Executive Director Kevin Elsenheimer. "It's a thank you for what has been done so far and to show there are significant proven results from this program that we can point to throughout the state. I know we will be able to point to similar results here in Charlevoix."

Economic improvement in a community from Main Street begins with the downtown, Elsenheimer said.

"Whenever you focus on a downtown the question is what are the impacts going to be on the neighboring communities?" Elsenheimer said. "I have no doubt that the surrounding townships will see positive economic impacts from the Main Street effort in Charlevoix."

Tricia Benjamin, of Charlevoix, who was at the celebration with her family, said she thinks Main Street will help the city take a good thing and make it better.

"I think this is a great for Charlevoix. I think our downtown is doing well, but we have an opportunity to be better and I think this is what is needed to do that," Benjamin said.

Borgstrom said Main Street staff will visit Charlevoix monthly as they work to see where the community can begin building work plans based on the city's strengths and assets.

"We want to identify the strengths of Charlevoix and develop a work plan that asks 'Who does what, by when and how much is it going to cost,'" Borgstrom said.

The community visioning session gave the public a chance to tell Borgstrom and other Main Street staff what they think should happen in downtown Charlevoix.

"Main Street works when everyone comes together," Borgstrom said. "It is that rising tide lifts all boats mentality. The community knows what they need to do to fix their downtown and we help them to do it. It is really about helping the community make those steps and getting everyone involved on the same page."

The communities that are part of this program have created 542 new or expanded businesses around the state and 1,539 net new full time jobs, Borgstrom said.

"The approach works," Borgstrom said. "The end product may be different in each community, but at the end of the day the approach works by having the people come together and communicating what that message is going to be. It's about making Charlevoix the best Charlevoix for everyone."

He also said, there has been more than $148 million in private investment and more than 439,000 volunteer hours that go into this program.

"We see on average about 4,000 volunteer hours per community," Borgstrom said. "There is a direct correlation of the amount of time a community puts in to the program to the end result. It takes the community to do this."

Borgstrom said it's a gradual process. The first year will be about identifying volunteers and figuring out "who wants to do what" as Main Street builds the local network of people who will drive the organization.

"Community involvement is incremental. Downtowns didn't get in the state they are in overnight, and they are not all going to come back overnight either," Borgstrom said.

Borgstrom is careful not to take all the credit for Main Street.

"It's really the communities that are doing it," Borgstrom said. "Main Street gives them the tools. At the end of the day, we're government. We don't create a single job. But we try to provide the communities the tools and the services they need to bring those jobs to their downtown."

Michigan DNR releases morel map for mushroom hunters

LANSING — The Michigan Department of Natural Resources has produced an interactive map that highlights the state's 2014 wildfires and prescribed burns that are more than 10 acres in size to help morel mushroom hunters in their quest for morels.

"Morel mushrooms are often found in locations where large fires occurred the previous year," said Paul Kollmeyer, resource protection manager for the DNR Forest Resources Division. "Each spring we get calls from people who are seeking details on those sites to hunt morels. We've created this map to give our customers the information they are looking for in a mobile-friendly, easily accessible package."

The DNR's interactive Mi-Morels map provides forest cover type information, latitude and longitude coordinates, and state land boundary information.

Morel mushrooms commonly sprout in locations burned by wildfires or prescribed burns with a forested cover type; grass or sunlit open settings are less likely to produce the tasty fungi.

"While the map may provide details on the cover type that was burned, it's up to the user to investigate whether morel mushrooms are growing at any location on the map," Kollmeyer said. "Just because a spot is marked on the map, it doesn't mean morels will be growing at the area identified. We're providing a resource, but it's up to the hunters to head out to the forest and see what's available."

"Whether you find mo-rels, a day's spent walking in the woods, enjoying the spring beauty, is a day well spent," he added.

The information and data in the map on burn locations, state forest cover type and state land boundaries are available for users to interact with and download via the DNR Open Data portal. This site gives the citizens and public land users of Michigan access to Michigan DNR spatial data and information.

RESORTS

Steelcase Furniture to name a few.

One of the original founders, Brayton Saltonstall, chose to build on a parcel on the channel, but the Revenue Cutter Service, later the Coast Guard, took that land for the construction of its station in 1898. There are now 31 members' cottages, of which 26 are on the original 40 acres. That makes Chicago Club about a third the size of the Belvedere, but certainly not a third in importance to its presence in and contributions to Charlevoix.

With the arrival of the railroad in 1898, the resorts were required to cede some of their land as it was built along the shoreline and across the neck of the channel. The land configuration was filled in to accommodate an elevated track bed. Even now, the Chicago Club resorters tunnel under the old railway structure on their way to the beach.

One of the quaintest areas on the Chicago Club property is Park or Island, a 7-acre island that narrowly extends into Round Lake and shelters a low waterway, Old Channel, that flows west of the Coast Guard Station, hugs the shoreline of the lower part property, and means out into Round Lake. It has been a favorite rowing spot for both resorters and people alike ever since the upper channel was created in 1869. Charlevoix's own builder, Earl H. H. and his future wife were courted in a canoe on the River and returned on the 50th wedding anniversary to commemorate the in the same canoe. At the east end of the island is a wooden bridge that gives access to an undisturbed parcel marked only by footpaths.

A major addition to the club was the golf course. Developed in 1896 as a nine-hole course, the original design of the course was altered to accommodate the 250-room Inn hotel built on Mercer Boulevard above the depot. The course's fairways were redirected north across Elm Street. In 1901, with the purchase of 45 more adjacent acres, the course expanded to eighteen holes which later gave the Belvedere some competition. But the Club was hit hard by the Depression in the mid-thirties and couldn't afford to keep the course. On April 14, 1937 they deeded it over to the city of Charlevoix for one dollar. It has survived as the 9-hole municipal course we know today.

Both the Belvedere and the Chicago Club can be credited with giving us the precursor of what we now celebrate as our annual Venetian Festival. As early as the late 1880s, boating regattas provided a highlight for the summer resort season. The races drew participants and spectators from far and wide and were often followed by a display of fireworks. Today we continue the tradition with a boat parade and fireworks display on the last weekend in July.

Strong on family values, members have passed cottages down from generation to generation and have instilled into new members a deep and abiding connection to Charlevoix that for some, like the Belvedere, can be traced back to the founding.

The philanthropy of both resorts toward our community has been significant. This year, on Aug. 3, the Charlevoix Public Library will honor our friends at the Chicago Club with a presentation of the Margaret Duert Award in recognition of their contributions.

"make someone's day very tragic," said council member Bill Supernaw.

Gov. Rick Snyder signed legislation in 2011 that made it legal to sell and use more powerful explosives such as firecrackers and some consumer-grade devices that shoot into the air, such as bottle rockets and Roman candles. The law allows Michigan residents to discharge consumer fireworks the day before, day of, and day after a national holiday.

Council member Shirley Gibson said the law is "stupid."

"In my view, it's the stupidest thing the Legislature has done in 20 years," Gibson said. "There's constant fireworks all summer long and it's very unpopular with our residents, as far as I can tell."

National holidays in which Michigan law allows fireworks the day of, day before, and day after:

"He is known around here as Mr. Petunia," Wilkin said.

More than 30 years ago, Boss launched the effort to plant five miles of petunias through the heart of the city. Boss said usually when someone has an idea in Charlevoix half the town is against it. Before the details are out, it must have been his personality that made it a success.

"I'm a little bit of an oddball in town, which probably helped launch the plan," Boss said, jokingly. "I don't take someone telling me it's impossible to do something as the final answer. Don't tell someone like me that I can't do something because I am going to work even harder to prove you wrong, as any teenager would."

The program took root, and every summer for the past 34 years, Boss has headed out at 4 a.m. seven days a week in his custom-designed, 2,500-gallon tanker truck to water his beloved flowers.

"I have to be a little eccentric to want to water flowers every day, for the past 34 years," Boss said. "I start early though, so I can avoid all the traffic. I've never missed a day. Every quart of water that has been placed on these flowers, I've done it."

Boss said he's spent more than 10,000 hours tending the flowers and said people in this town respect the flowers. The rich tradition of petunia planting has always taken place the Thursday before Memorial Day, but in the past few years the tradition was moved to the Thursday after Memorial Day to prevent problems with frost and rescheduling, Wilkin said.

"We decided that holding it a week later will limit potential delays from cold weather," Wilkin said.

Planting time will begin at 5 p.m., as in past years. Block captains are assigned to coordinate the efforts of the volunteers while they plant the 1,200 flats of colorful petunias.

Benjamin Muladore, a seven-year block captain, said the petunia operation is not possible without the many volunteers.

"Everyone who helps plant has been great over the years, from novice planters to master gardeners," Muladore said. "Everyone is friendly and excited to be out planting flowers after the long, snowy winter."

Seven flats per every 100 feet is the goal, and volunteers are urged to bring their own gardening gloves and hand trowels. Volunteers are reminded that the north side of town is often overlooked and more volunteers could be used near the municipal golf course, Wilkin said.

Also, volunteers are encouraged to find a safe parking space on a side street and look for the assigned block captain who will be wearing a fluorescent yellow T-shirt. Block captains also will distribute tickets to a free picnic at East Park that evening, when Charlevoix's business community will sponsor hot dogs, chips, apples, cookies and soda.

"In a typical year, I usually give out 40-50 picnic tickets," Muladore said. "It would be great to see the same support during the days the weeds are pulled from the flower beds throughout the summer."

This year, two summer weeding events are planned. One is on Wednesday, June 24, and the next is on Thursday, July 16.

"Operation Petunia is a reflection of the generosity of our community," Wilkin said.

All facets of Operation Petunia are funded through donations to nonprofit organization Keep Charlevoix Beautiful, which always is accepting donations that are federally tax-deductible.

Volunteers in numbers ranging from 800 to 1,000 are expected to attend Operation Petunia on Thursday afternoon.

More information is available at (231) 547-2101. Donations also are accepted by mail at P.O. Box 1, Charlevoix, MI 49720 and online at keepcharlevoix-beautiful.org.

third flight to honor the heroes from America's Greatest Generation," said Mid-Michigan Honor Flight Director Ticia Donegan. "These veterans flying with us on June 2 are some of the most resilient men and women America has ever known. We are taking a USMC nurse from World War II, who wants to see the Womens' Memorial at Arlington; most of our flyers are between 91-96 years old. These Greatest Generation veterans are dying off at more than 1,000 per day. We simply must get them to D.C., and quickly. They deserve this trip and the gratitude of all Americans."

It takes funding to make the trip and Mid-Michigan Honor Flight is staffed 100 percent with volunteers, Donegan said.

"We receive no government funds," Donegan said. "All donations come from previous flyers, private citizens, veterans groups and organizations, corporations and companies who share our vision and support our mission."

Mid-Michigan Honor Flight is currently underfunded for a second flight, and time is ticking away, Donegan added.

"I'm hoping that there are a lot of grateful Michigan residents who will partner with us to make these trips happen," she said. "Please consider what these men and women sacrificed while serving our country. We owe them a debt of gratitude for the freedom we enjoy today. And, it's never too late to thank a veteran."

Mid-Michigan Honor

Flight is a Regional Hub of the Honor Flight Network. Honor Flight Network is the national organization, which is behind this massive effort to see that all veterans have the opportunity to see their memorials, free of charge. There are approximately 136 Hubs in 48 states committed to this mission.

get our team together and review them. After the plan is put out on the project website, people can review portions of it."

The General Management Plan for Fisherman's Island State Park defines a 10 to 20-year planning and management strategy that will assist the DNR Parks and Recreation Division in preserving the site's natural and cultural resources and providing access to land and water-based recreational and educational opportunities.

Jensen said issues with park roads were brought to planners before public opinion survey was opened. Entrance roads into the north end of the park and routes in the southern part of the 2,678-acre park are in need of repair, she said.

"It seems to us that state of the park is pretty good, but we don't always know (all of the issues)," Jensen said. "That's why we put the survey out to see if people bring something up we haven't thought of."

JoAnne Beemon, chair of Friends of Fisherman's Island State Park, said she is pleased DNR planners are reaching out to the public. Her organization has been vocal in protecting the environment in the park.

"(Our organization) has been in touch with them and talked with them, and one of the things that makes us happy, is the fact that they see the incredible beauty of Fisherman's Island State Park," Beemon said. "It's such a treasure, and I think that most of the people in Charlevoix understand that."

DNR planners also are considering administrative improvements to the park office facilities.

Clearzone Inc. is a consultant contracted by Parks and Recreation Division to facilitate the management planning process. The Lathrup Village-based firm will consolidate public input into a readable format for DNR officials and help develop the Management Zone Plan. Management Zones are developed based upon input from DNR experts, key stakeholders and the community.

The survey is one of several opportunities for the public and stakeholders to be involved in the planning process. An informational meeting took place in November, introducing interested citizens to the planning process. Jensen said the DNR also plans to host a public open house later this year, providing an opportunity to review and comment on the draft plan.

"We've been doing these plans across the state since 2004 and are gradually working through the state park system," Jensen said. "It gives us an opportunity to look at the different aspects of the park and see what is and isn't working, so we can protect resources and make the recreation experience better for visitors."

The park's future Fisherman's Island State Park has been at the center of growing conversation among county residents because of a possible land swap between St. Marys Cement and the park.

After St. Marys launched an exploratory committee to gauge support of the swap, the Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees and Charlevoix City Council each voted unanimously on separate resolutions opposing a potential land swap with St. Marys Cement.

The company would trade some land it owns at the south end of the park for land owned by the state at the north end. In its current stage, proposal is only a concept that may or may not move forward.

"All 415 acres on the northern part of the park in Charlevoix needs to be absolutely protected," Beemon said. "We hope (St. Marys) will be a good neighbor and stay out of our state park and honor what the people of Charlevoix want."

Steve Gallagher, vice president of human resources at St. Marys, said the land swap is "not a priority" for the company and nothing has changed with the status of the proposal.

Jensen said the DNR has not received a proposal from St. Marys.

"I don't think anyone knows if and when there will be a proposal, so we're proceeding as we normally would," Jensen said. "My preference would be that we would not have to review a land transaction application until this plan is done. I don't know how it would affect things."

Charlevoix players mob Hunter Cox (4) after the junior's RBI single in the bottom of the sixth inning gave the Rayders a 5-4 win in the nightcap and a doubleheader sweep of visiting Kalkaska on Wednesday, May 13.

Walk-off wins, broken records highlight busy week of action for Charlevoix team

CHARLEVOIX — Facing a must-win game in the nightcap of a doubleheader with visiting Kalkaska on Wednesday, nothing was going to stop the Charlevoix baseball team's way.

The Rayders saw hard hit balls fall right into the hands of the Blazers in every inning, and a four-error top of the fourth by Charlevoix allowed Kalkaska to break the game open with four runs.

But instead of folding, the Rayders dug deep and found a way, manufacturing two runs in the bottom of the fifth to stay alive and then scoring three in the bottom of the sixth, including the game-winning RBI single by Hunter Cox, to walk off with a 5-4 victory and a much-needed sweep.

Austin Putman hit a two-run double in the sixth as well for the Rayders, who got six of their seven hits in the game in the last two innings, while KeNen Borths drove in two runs with a single in the fifth.

"We've got a lot of resilience on this team," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "It's hard in baseball to turn the page, such a mental thing, but I thought they did a great job of letting go of that rough start."

"We needed baserunners in the last inning and our guys were very, very patient at the plate to set us up for the win."

Cox pitched the first five and a third innings in the win, walking three and giving up four hits on the day, and Christian Matye faced the last two batters, getting both out to earn the win in relief.

In the opener, Charlevoix got another strong outing from ace Nate Moon in a 3-1 win. The senior struck out five, including the final batter, walked one and gave up three hits in a complete-game effort.

"Nate had a rough start to the season, but he looks like a completely different player out there now," Telgenhof said. "Early in the year, he was struggling with location, but when he's hitting his spots like he is now, he's as good as anyone."

"I thought he was the best pitcher in Northern Michigan as a junior last year, and he's starting to find that form again."

The Rayders broke open a scoreless game in the third inning, when Noah Cerna hit a single to drive in two runners after a Kalkaska throwing error moved them both into scoring position.

Will Telgenhof added another run on a sacrifice fly in the fifth, and Brad Klingner chipped in a double.

The two victories give Charlevoix a final record of 11-3 in the LMC. Charlevoix is a game back of Rayder team surges in OT for 2-0 win over Harbor Springs on special night

CHARLEVOIX — Leah Davis' first attempt at a breakaway goal in Charlevoix's 2-0 overtime win over visiting rival Harbor Springs wasn't a successful one.

Davis' shot with five minutes left in regulation was snatched out of the air by Rams goalkeeper Sydney Elkins for a late save that helped to force overtime.

But the Charlevoix senior didn't earn first-team all-state honors by giving up easily, and in the first overtime period Davis created another scoring chance and beat the keeper this time for a crucial goal in the Rayders' LMC-title clinching win.

On the goal less than three minutes into the period, Davis got behind the defense on a throw-in and took a shot from the right side of the box that just slipped past the goalkeeper's hands.

"I felt like I had to make up for not scoring the first time," Davis said. "Also, I knew at that point how important it was that we got a goal for us to win, and I wanted to make that happen."

The Rayders kept attacking after the goal, and senior Ellie Way added another three minutes into the second overtime period to help Charlevoix seal the win, scoring off a cross from Davis.

Davis' perseverance was a defining trait for Charlevoix in the victory, as the Rayders started slow but got stronger and stronger as the game wore on, generating numerous chances in the final 10 minutes of regulation and dominating the overtime period.

Charlevoix's strong play late in the game is nothing new, as the Rayders beat the Rams with two overtime goals in their first meeting this season, and scored three goals in the final five minutes of a 4-3 comeback win over Leland on Saturday.

"This group, they never give up, and they find a way to get it done,"

Leah Davis (far left) and her Charlevoix teammates celebrate after Davis' overtime goal in a 2-0 win over visiting rival Harbor Springs on Monday, a win that clinched the outright LMC title for the Rayders.

Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We knew it was going to be a tough game tonight; there's a lot of high emotions and both teams play with a lot of heart when we play each other."

"I felt that we dug deep, played with a lot of energy and won the majority of the balls in overtime, and that allowed us to find the back of the net."

The victory added to an already meaningful night for the Charlevoix girls soccer program as the Rayders honored Charlevoix graduates and former players Carolena Elowsky and Maura Brandi, who died in a car accident on Jan. 2, by retiring their jerseys at a halftime ceremony.

"We really wanted to play well for them tonight and dedicate this game to them," Scholten said. "As good as Carol and Maura were at soccer, they were far more special as people, and they'll forever be in the hearts of the soccer community in Charlevoix, for sure."

It was also the final home game for five Charlevoix seniors, including four who have been with the program for four years.

Along with Way and Davis, it was the last home game for keeper Gloria Greene, who made 12 saves, to earn the shutout, and defender Olivia Storm, as well as Norwegian exchange student Oda Folkedal.

For Harbor Springs, the outcome was a frustrating case of déjà vu.

The Rams got a strong game from Elkins in net, as the keeper made several impressive saves to force

Charlevoix's Rae Claramunt signs to play tennis at Olivet College; Rayders compete in regional CHARLEVOIX — Rae Claramunt doesn't really think of herself as a trailblazer.

But there's no denying the senior is headed into uncharted territory for a Charlevoix girls tennis player.

Claramunt signed her letter of intent to play on the Olivet College girls tennis team in the fall, becoming the first Rayder in the history of the girls tennis program at Charlevoix to sign with a college program, according to head coach Audra Randall.

"It's amazing to make it official," Claramunt said at her signing on Monday. "It's something I've thought about for pretty much my entire life."

Claramunt spent her entire senior season in the No. 1 singles position for Charlevoix, playing against the other team's best in one of the toughest small school tennis conferences in the state.

Her performance in that spot, as well as her leadership on and off the court is what attracted interest from the Comets in the first place, Randall said.

"She brought a great presence to our team and great leadership," Randall said. "She has a great quality of play and talking with the Olivet coach who came to watch her at regionals, he kept pointing out several things that were really great skill sets that Rae has that will allow her to be an asset to them next year."

While Olivet was interested in her, there were several things about the school that interested Claramunt as well as she was making her choice.

"I'm really comfortable with it, it's such a community and a family atmosphere," Claramunt said. "I really liked the feel of a small private college, and the team is really fun and has a really strong bond."

"The coaches are young and energetic and trying to build a program, and I'm excited to be a part of that."

As part of a six-player freshman class joining a program in the early stages of a rebuilding effort, Claramunt expects to play a role in that building process right away.

EAST JORDAN — Despite miserably cold conditions at Tuesday's LMC Conference Meet in East Jordan, the Charlevoix boys track and field team scored 166 points to pull out a close race with TC St. Francis and take home the conference team title.

The Rayders won eight conference event titles, led by Nick Plude, who took first in the 1,600 run (4:36.56) and the 800 run (2:02.79) and Parker Skeel, who won the 110 hurdles (17.42) and 300 hurdles (43.59).

Jared McLean won the 400 dash (51.82) and took second in the 200 dash (23.58) for the Rayders. Sam Hovie won the pole vault (11-0) and Charlevoix also took first in the 3,200 relay (8:41.99) and 1,600 relay (3:37.97).

Noah Carson took second in the 800 run (2:08.97) and Bryan Noirot finished second in the long jump (19-3) for the Rayders.

On the girls side, Charlevoix and East Jordan tied for third with 68 league-leading TCSF, but the Gladiators still have one more league doubleheader to play, against the Blazers today, Friday.

A split would give Charlevoix a share of the title, and a sweep would allow the Rayders to win the league outright.

"We feel like we've done everything we could have done," coach Telgenhof said. "11-3 is a very strong record in this league, and good enough to win it outright most years, so no matter what happens, I'm proud of these guys and what they've accomplished."

"Kalkaska is a strong team with good pitching, and you never know in baseball. We'll have to wait and see."

Suttons Bay 3-12

CHARLEVOIX — The Rayders had no trouble bringing their bats to bear in a doubleheader sweep of visiting Suttons Bay on Thursday, scoring 30 runs on 20 hits, and setting a school record in the process.

Charlevoix broke open Game 1 with a nine-run fourth inning, backing up a solid effort on the mound by KeNen Borths, who struck out seven and walked three in five innings of work.

The Rayders mustered just six hits in the win, but drew nine walks and four hit batters.

Nate Moon and Austin Putman each hit a two-run double to lead the way, Spencer Stewart added two hits and two RBIs, Adam Michaud chipped in a single and three RBIs, and Borths finished with an RBI single.

In a wild, high-scoring nightcap, the Rayders took charge at the plate, led by Andrew Michaud, who finished with three hits, including a double, and two RBIs, and Putman, who hit a single, a double and two RBIs as well.

Will Telgenhof chipped in two hits and an RBI, Adam Michaud and Borths each added two hits, and Hunter Cox and Spencer Stewart each finished with an RBI single.

Putman, Adam Michaud and Christian Matye all took turns on the mound for Charlevoix, with Matye earning the win. The trio combined for eight strikeouts and eight walks in six innings of work.

"It was a fun night getting a couple of wins and more importantly getting a chance to get everyone a good amount of at-bats," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "Guys like Adam Michaud, Andrew Michaud and Spencer Stewart work as hard as anyone on our team and it was great to see them hit the ball so well."

"I thought KeNen gave us another really nice game on the mound."

Whittemore-

WHITEMORE — Charlevoix had mixed results at Saturday's Whittemore-Prescott Invite, but did manage to reach some exciting milestones.

The Rayders dropped a tight 2-1 game against a strong Hillman team in the opener, a reversal of a 2-1 win Charlevoix had over the Tigers in last year's edition of the tournament.

Nate Moon struck out five, walked three and gave up two runs on four hits in a complete game to give Charlevoix a chance, but the Rayders managed just three hits off Hillman ace Tyler Jones in the loss.

"This year (against Hillman) it was a battle of the same pitchers (as last year) — Nate for us and Tyler Jones for them, two of the best in Northern Michigan," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "They made the plays and we didn't; we had one fielding hiccup and a couple mistakes on the bases and that's the difference."

The Rayder bats rebounded in a big way in the consolation game against Mio, scoring five runs in the first and 11 in the second to roll to a 19-4 win.

Moon hit a two-run triple that was also his 124th career hit, a new Charlevoix school record, and Brad Klinger chipped in his first career home run, a three-run shot, to cap a 3-for-4 game at the plate.

Adam Michaud went 2 for 3 with two RBIs at the plate, Jake Seger drove in three runs, and Noah Certa and Forrest Noirot each added an RBI hit.

Hunter Cox and Mason Louiselle each pitched two innings in the win, combining for two strikeouts and four walks for the Rayders, who have now won 20 games for the third year in a row, the first such stretch since 1981-83.

Monday
Charlevoix 16-14
Inland Lakes 1-13

CHARLEVOIX — Although the Rayder baseball team got a sweep of visiting Inland Lakes on Monday, the two wins couldn't have been more different.

In Game 1, Charlevoix dominated in a 16-1 win behind a no-hitter on the mound from junior Austin Putman, who struck out three and walked four in four innings of work.

Will Telgenhof and Nate Moon each finished with two hits and three RBIs, while Moon added a triple, Christian Matye added a single and a double, and Hunter Cox and Devin Largent each chipped in a two-run single for the Rayders; who set the tone with an eight-run first inning.

In the nightcap, Charlevoix opened the game by giving up eight runs, and spent the rest of the night digging out of that hole.

Luckily, Putman came through at the plate, going 4 for 4 with a double, five RBIs and just the fourth home run by a Rayder at home in 11 years, and Hunter Cox hit a walk-off RBI single in the bottom of the sixth for a 14-13 win.

Moon went 3 for 4 with a double, a triple and an RBI, Telgenhof added two hits and two RBIs, and Spencer Stewart chipped in a single and a double.

Moon earned the win in relief, striking out four and walking two in an inning and two-thirds on the mound, and Cox went four innings in relief as well, striking out three and walking seven.

Charlevoix is now 22-10, and hosts Traverse City Christian today, Friday, for its next doubleheader.

KALKASKA — Just as the flowers have begun to bloom during the month of May, so too has Boyne City's Griffin Powers.

Over the course of the month, Powers has steadily improved, capped by a medalist position during Monday's Lake Michigan Conference golf championships.

Powers led a crop of 45 Lake Michigan golfers across eight teams with a round of 80 at the Twin Birch Golf Course in Kalkaska.

The round came after a 92 opened May at the Grandview Golf Club, followed by an 83 at the Charlevoix Country Club two weeks ago and a 79 at A-Ga-Ming Golf Club last week.

Team-wise, Traverse City St. Francis captured the Lake Michigan Conference crown with a 349, followed by Charlevoix with a close second place of 352.

Behind Charlevoix, Grayling placed third with 356, Harbor Springs, 367; Elk Rapids, 372; East Jordan, 379; and Boyne City, 390. Kalkaska had an incomplete score.

Charlevoix's Noah Jeakle finished one stroke behind Powers, with an 81 on the day, Riley Lamie of St. Francis shot 83, followed by a tie of Jake Hinkle of Grayling and Nick Brewer of Kalkaska, both with 84.

Also for the second place Rayders, Matt Good shot an 88, Tanner Drost carded 91; Montana Thompson, 92; Ryan Joy, 96; and Collin Turkelson, 99.

Grayling's Tyler Summers would earn medalist with a round of 39 through nine, while

"It's going to be a young team, and I think it's going to be a lot of fun working together and seeing what our different strengths are," Claramunt said. "I think we're going to improve pretty fast."

To get to this point, Claramunt has been working hard at her game for more than a decade.

The senior credited her parents, Randall Claramunt and Melissa Claramunt, for keeping her on track, as well as her grandfather and personal coach Marv Kiesewetter, who is the tennis pro in charge of the Bay View tennis program and has been Claramunt's coach since the first day she could walk and hold a racket.

"They've really inspired me to pursue this," Claramunt said. "It means a lot to have their support and to achieve my goal."

Rayders take fourth at regional meet

TRAVERSE CITY — The Charlevoix girls tennis team did its best to navigate a tough field at the Division 4 regional hosted by Traverse City St. Francis on May 14, taking fourth in a field that included two of the top six teams in the state, the host Gladiators and Ludington, as well as state qualifier Harbor Springs.

Despite the stiff competition, the Rayders made it to the semifinals in two flights, with the No. 2 doubles team of Emily Zabawa and Nicole Swadling and the No. 3 team of Elizabeth Barrutt and Lydia Balyo each taking games off strong Ludington teams before falling short of the final round.

"A really nice accomplishment given that we have 11 new girls out of 15 on the roster," Coach Audra Randall said. "I am very proud of the girls for overcoming such a great learning curve to make the season successful and being able to capture fourth place behind strong, state-qualifying TCSF, Ludington and Harbor Springs teams."

Charlevoix competed in the LMC Championship for its final event of the season on Tuesday, May 19, but results for that event were not available at press time.

overtime, but Harbor Springs couldn't create the goal it needed and couldn't keep up with the Rayders in the extra period.

"Overtime games are always tough because you've got players on the field who are exhausted from playing a full game and that leads to mistakes," Harbor Springs coach Aaron Riley said. "Give credit to Charlevoix, because they did a good job of being in the right place to make us pay for the two mistakes we did make in the extra period."

"I thought overall we played well, but we just never finished the goal we needed to win."

Charlevoix (15-3, 11-0 LMC), still the top-ranked team in Division 4 in the most recent coaches poll, finished the regular season with a trip to Grayling on Thursday, while Harbor Springs, ranked seventh, hosted Elk Rapids Tuesday, before playing Boyne City today, Friday, to end the season.

Rayders come from behind to stun Leland late

LELAND — It was a situation that Charlevoix, the top-ranked girls soccer team in Division 4, hasn't found itself in much this season.

After host and fifth-ranked Leland's Libby Munoz scored her second goal of the game on a penalty kick with 10 minutes to play, the Rayders trailed the Comets 3-1 and chances of a comeback seemed slim.

But Charlevoix found a way, scoring three goals in the final five minutes, including the game-winner from Ellie Way off a pass from Kelsey Engstrom with 14 seconds to play in a huge 4-3 win on the road over a fellow ranked team and potential future district opponent.

"I was incredibly proud that our girls never gave up," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "With being down 3-1 with only 10 minutes to go, they just kept fighting and found a way to win."

"Leland is a very good team who we have a lot of respect for. This was a huge comeback and a great win for us today."

Charlevoix secured a huge advantage in the first 10 minutes of the game when a dangerous Rayder scoring chance drew a Leland handball in the box.

That created a penalty kick that Way converted to give the Rayders a 1-0 lead, and also drew a red card that forced the Comets to play down a player for the rest of the game.

Charlevoix carried the momentum from that penalty to a 1-0 halftime lead, but Leland turned the tables in the second half, showcasing their attacking brilliance by scoring three goals despite playing 11 on 10 to take a commanding 3-1 lead.

Leland's Ella Blomdahl tied the game in the first 10 minutes of the second half, and Munoz then got behind the Charlevoix defense to create a goal and draw a penalty in the box that led to another goal.

With 5:37 to play, Charlevoix would begin a counterattack, as Way drew another penalty in the box and converted the kick to cut the lead to 3-2.

The Rayders tied the game two minutes later as Engstrom finished a cross into the box by Leah Davis to knot the score at three.

That comeback set up Way's winning goal as time expired, and allowed Charlevoix to come away with a win over one of the best teams in the state.

Gloria Greene finished with 10 saves in net for the Rayders.

Charlevoix athletes win four regional titles

EAST JORDAN — For many track and field athletes across the state, their seasons will wrap up early next week with the end of conference meets.

But with strong performances at Saturday's Division 3 regional meet hosted by East Jordan, several Charlevoix athletes bought themselves another week of competition, and a shot at the ultimate prize — a state title.

Leading the way for those qualifiers was senior Nick Plude.

Plude was a part of three regional event titles, leading wire-to-wire in the 800 meter run and winning in a season-best time of 1:59.88, three seconds faster than the runner-up.

"The two guys from Benzie Central who were in the race with me have more races under their belt this season, so I knew I had to go out there and burn them on the first lap, and then just stay strong in the second," Plude said. "It's great; I've been wanting to get all-state in the 800 for four years now and I knew it was going to be tough to get back there with this field."

"Hopefully, I can go down there and make it happen this year."

Plude also ran anchor legs on two championship relays for the Rayders, teaming up with Micah Peebles, Jared McLean and Parker Elowsky to win the 800 relay (1:33.07), and with McLean, Peebles and Kevin Pearl to win the 1,600 relay (3:31.85).

"In the 800 relay, we were bringing back three guys who were on a sixth-place team in the state last year, so we were really building off that core," Charlevoix coach Nick Barnum said. "In both relays, we had a lot of guys who were running four events to try and help us in the team standings, and I think it kept us from going quite as fast as we could have gone, especially in the 1,600, but we were still pretty happy with how things turned out."

Charlevoix finished second in the men's meet as a team, with 87 points, behind champion Benzie Central's 125, and got a fourth regional title from Sam Hovie in the pole vault.

Hovie was the only competitor to clear 12 feet, taking home the title and a trip to the state meet.

"It feels really good, because last year I'd made the height to qualify before and kind of choked here," Hovie said. "This year I just came in with my eyes on 12 feet and went for it."

"Today, I was just very consistent in my approach and that meant I just had to work on my form up top to get it done."

Several other athletes earned state final qualifying berths for the Rayders as well.

Defending 3,200 state champion Amber Way battled back from an injury to return in her signature event, finishing second in 11:24.21, and Way also teamed with Courtney Putman, Alexis Truhfeller and Mackenzie O'Leary to take second in the 3,200 relay (10:16:91) as well.

On the boys side, the Rayders' Bryan Noirot qualified in the long jump (19-11) with a runner up finish, and the 3,200 relay team of Luke Buday, Noah Carson, Ben Boss and Pearl also took second (8:26.62).

All qualifying athletes will travel to Cumstock Park on Saturday, May 30 to compete in the Division 3 state final, with top eight finishers in all events earning all-state honors.

Skateboarders battle weather, other obstacles to do what they love

SABRINA NOSLER
Special to the Courier

For most skateboarders, winter is a nightmare.

The freezing, cold, snowy Michigan winter weather certainly prevents skateboarders from skating. Because of the snow, skaters like Luke Telgenhof are hardly able to skate — unless it's in their basement.

Unless they live in a place with a warm winter climate, many of the 6 million skateboarders in the world have to deal with the same issue. Some decide to take up snowboarding in the winter, some go to indoor skateparks, and some do just what Telgenhof does.

"Skateboarding is fun and challenging," he said, and he suffers through the winter by using his flat bar in his basement and practicing tricks he hasn't been able to do in the past.

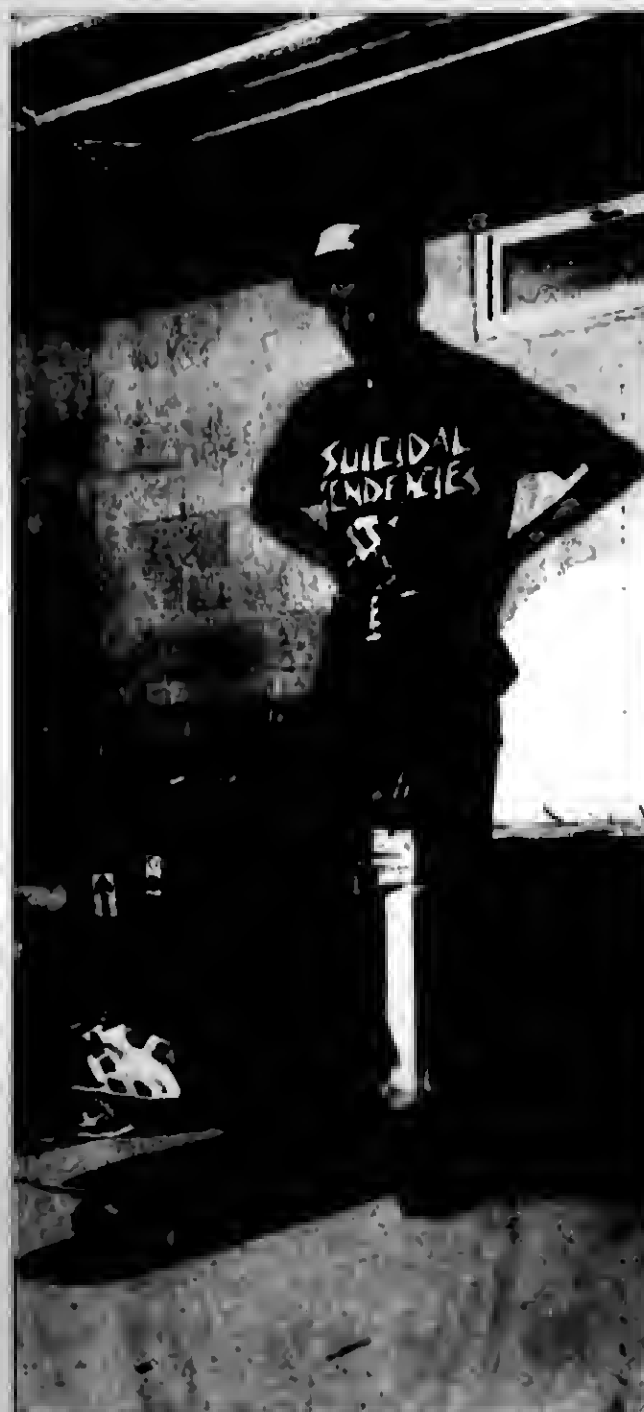

At the age of merely 3, Telgenhof started playing Tony Hawk video games, which was leeway to becoming passionate about skateboarding.

"I've always wanted to be a part of skateboarding. I love going fast and not having anyone tell me what I can and can't do," he said.

As a current sophomore in Charlevoix, Telgenhof has skated since he was about 7 years old.

In the time between then and now, he has learned how to do many impressive tricks, such as crooks on his flat bar, which is a skateboarding trick where you ollie (the skater kicks the tail of the board down while the board pop into the air) onto a rail, land your front truck on the rail, and grind the rail at about a 45-degree angle.

Unfortunately, there are still tricks he just can't land. "I still can't do heel flips," he says sadly, describing that heel flips are where the front heel is used to manipulate the board during a jump, completing a sideways rotation before landing.

Since 2005, skateboarding has declined vastly, dropping from more than 10 million to less than 7 million in 2013. Unfortunately, the numbers are continuing to drop as years go on.

Because skateboarding has gone down in popularity, especially in the small town of Charlevoix, containing less than 3,000 people, the Charlevoix Skatepark is left with no choice but to be open even fewer hours in the summer.

"It's upsetting that they're open fewer hours, but it's obviously gonna happen if kids stop showing up," Telgenhof said. "I blame video games."

Charlevoix senior Sam Hovie clears the bar in the pole vault at Saturday's Division 3 regional meet in East Jordan. Hovie won the event to qualify for the state final.

LANDSCAPING TIPS

A Small Corner; A Delightful Garden

A lot of people still imagine that it's impossible to plan for a garden if the available space is too restrained. Yet, with a bit of imagination, it is always possible to create an agreeable and welcoming setting where we can find a wealth of vegetation.

However, it must be remembered that it isn't always simple to develop a small area. On the contrary! For example, a huge flower bed too big for the area, a badly designed path or invasive plants can, in the short term, discourage the best of intentions.

Details shouldn't be neglected as you have to feel completely at ease in this type of garden, which may only measure 50 square metres. Start by planting trees and shrubs which will become the basis of the garden. Be sure to choose slow growing, compact plants. To give the impression of size, it is better to progressively reduce the width of the lawn right to the end of your lot.

Learn how to create volume. To make the most of the area available, you can build pergolas or procure some arches on which climbing plants can grow.

Finally, remember that in a small garden everything will be noticed more quickly than in a larger expanse. It's important, therefore, that each plant, ornament or structure integrates well with the whole.

In a small area, it's better to think quality rather than quantity.

Missing East Jordan teen found OK

EAST JORDAN — An East Jordan teen who had been missing since he was involved in a traffic crash early Monday has been located and is safe.

Charlevoix County Undersheriff Chuck Vondra confirmed late Tuesday night that Jesse Bacon, 16, who is a Petoskey High School student, had been located and is safe.

In a news release issued at about 10:40 a.m. today, Wednesday, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider said that at 7:25 p.m. Tuesday missing Jesse returned home to his grandparent's residence in East Jordan. He was immediately taken to McLaren Northern Michigan hospital for evaluation and treatment, Schneider said.

The sheriff said Bacon suffered minor abrasions from the accident consistent with the seat belt he was wearing. He also had some minor bruising as well.

Authorities said Bacon reported that he fell asleep at the wheel of the vehicle he was driving and ran off the roadway and crashed.

Schneider said Jesse reported following the crash he was scared and ran into the woods where he drank water out of stream and ate what he thought were wild onions.

Jessee had been missing since a traffic crash that took place at about 4:20 a.m. Monday on Boyne City-East Jordan Road east of Marvon Road.

In an earlier news release, Schneider said the vehicle was traveling west on Boyne City-East Jordan Road when it went off the roadway and down into a ditch, striking a utility pole.

"When deputies arrived on scene, there were no passengers in or around the vehicle. It was later learned that the driver, Jesse Benino Bacon, a 16-year-old white male CHARLEVOIX — The wet weather did not keep residents from honoring the memory of America's fallen in Charlevoix on Monday.

"The rain can't dampen your spirits," said Dora Kelsey, who just moved to Charlevoix. "The American people are a patriotic people and honor their fallen."

Despite heavy downpour and dark skies, about 300 people attended the parade and observance ceremony in East Park that followed the Memorial Day ceremonies at Brookside Cemetery.

Kelsey said Memorial Day is important because it reminds people of the sacrifice made by men and women in uniform in past wars and conflicts.

"If it wasn't for those who served our country we never know what America would be like today," Kelsey said.

Rotary mentoring program gives local students chance to improve

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — Maybe it was a parent or a grandparent. Perhaps it was a teacher or someone from church who always made a little time for you. Whoever it was, most of us have someone who we looked up to and who served as a mentor to us at some stage of our life.

For six Charlevoix High School graduating seniors it was mentors from the Charlevoix Rotary Club who guided them to success through a program that encourages each student to aim their goals high.

"It's very beneficial to have a mentor working with you, especially if you've struggled to keep your grades up," said 17-year-old Lyndsay Towsley, who plans on attending Northern Michigan University. "The mentoring program gave me the incentive to always try hard and do my best to get good attendance and grades."

The program is called STRIVE — Students Taking Renewed Interest in the Value of Education — and it links Charlevoix Rotarians with high school seniors who are completing their graduation requirements with the goal of inspiring them with their educational and career goals.

"The program is an asset to students who can use extra encouragement and support throughout the school year," said Charlevoix Rotarian and STRIVE program chair Benjamin Muladore.

At the end of the school year, scholarships are handed out to top students have brought their grades up the most during the school year.

DDA considers expanding board seats to meet Main Street needs

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority discussed the idea of adding four more seats to its board, depending on discussion with the city attorney and approval from the Charlevoix City Council.

The additional seats would help with the new direction of the board and its implementation of Main Street, said mayor Gabe Campbell.

"(The board) is no longer a brick-and-mortar organization," Campbell said. "I think it is time (for more board members). Board members will be required to put in much more time with Main Street compared to just meeting once a month."

Board members appeared to agree with the suggestion, with a few of them saying new appointments should be people who have been involved with Main Street from the beginning.

"I think it is a good idea that we should have a larger board," said board member Tamil Gillespie. "I feel more input would be valuable and if new members came from the steering committee that helped get us Main Street that knowledge they would bring would be helpful."

Board chairman Dan Barron said he feels it is a good idea because of all the changes Main Street brings to the downtown board.

Belvedere Club announces Junior Golf program

CHARLEVOIX — The Belvedere Club, 5731 Marion Center Road, will have official registration for this summer's junior golf instructional on Wednesday, June 10. Area youngsters must be 8 to 17 years old to participate. This is the 21st year that the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association has offered the program to area youth. It teaches the fundamentals of golf, meets two or three times weekly and runs through July 13.

The local program previously drew acclaim from the National Junior Golf Association as being one of the top thirteen in comparison to similar associations in the country. Pros from local courses will make up the teaching staff.

Lessons will rotate between the Belvedere, Charlevoix Golf and Country Club, Municipal and Antrim Dells' courses. There also will be a Sunday evening "Fun" scramble play with a variety of events for advanced players, scheduled for the Belvedere Course. Plans also are set to include a competitive match play league for those wishing competition and planning to eventually try out for the high school golf teams.

Registration begins at 9 a.m. for children ages 12 to 17 and at 10:15 a.m. for children ages 8 to 11. A parent or guardian must be present to provide a signature on the waiver of liability form and to learn about the family commitment necessary for minors to successfully benefit from the program. There is a per-lesson fee of $5 or a $50 seasonal plan option that pays for all scheduled lessons and play days. Juniors should bring clubs as there will be a lesson following registration. Loaner clubs will be available.

"We will again have scholarships available based on need for families where the fee may be a hardship with details available at registration," said Director Dean Davenport. "We want every youngster to have this golfing and educational opportunity."

Additional adult volunteers are needed to work in the mentoring program. Whenever youngsters play a few holes to conclude each lesson it's required that they have an adult monitoring them. New mentors should attend the registration session or call Davenport at (231) 547-6433.

Children support non-profits by participating in essay contest

BY GAYLE GENNETT

Special to the Courier

CHARLEVOIX — The Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix recently held an awards ceremony on May 21, at the Charlevoix Elementary School honoring former Kiwanis member, Merle Vandenberg.

The contest began seven years ago with the inspiration of its namesake. Vandenberg was an active Kiwanian who believed in helping others through action and paying it forward. In his memory, the fifth graders were asked to write an essay about a non-profit that touched their lives. The winners of the contest would present their monetary award, in person, to the non-profit they wrote about. This essay contest continues to garner plenty of applicants and is now part of the persuasive writing portion of the school curriculum.

A committee of Kiwanis members reviewed the essays of 70 students and seven winners were selected. Five of the students received a $50 check, which they in turn presented to the non-profit they wrote about. Two essays were selected as the overall best essays and they received a check for $100, each which in turn was given to the charity of their choice.

This event was orchestrated by the Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix with help from sponsors who provided money toward the event.

Below are abbreviated versions of the top two overall best essays:

"F.A.C.E.S." written by John Sauer, a fifth-grader at Charlevoix Elementary School

There are orphans in the world. Probably a lot more than you think. I bet you're wondering what F.A.C.E.S. stands for so I'll tell you. It stands for Foster, Adopt, Care, Educate and Support. Most people, me included, don't realize how thankful we should be. Some orphans have to take cold baths and get small amounts of food so they steal it from each other. I think not having a family is bad enough. Once I was older I realized how important F.A.C.E.S. is. Thank you for reading on my non-profit organization. I hope you consider helping the orphans of the world.

"Exceptional Riders" written by Maya Whitley, a fifth-grader at Charlevoix Elementary School

Have you ever ridden a horse? Exceptional Riders is a fun program for kids with disabilities. It is physical therapy in a fun, soothing manner. This charity helps children learn to improve their balance and self-esteem. It also teaches kids how to function their legs even better than before. This charity is very important to me because my little brother has Down Syndrome and after I started riding he decided to follow in my footsteps. He always had a huge smile before, during and after his ride and it lasted a week until his next ride. Improving self-esteem and balance is an important life skill and this charity teaches it well.

Other winning essays in support of non-profit organizations include: "The Sue DeYoung/Judy Edger Walk, Run, Cure" written by Alexandra Baron a fifth-grader at Charlevoix Elementary School; "The Charlevoix Community Christmas Project" written by Greer LaCroix, a fifth-grader at Charlevoix Elementary School; "The American Red Cross" written by Paige Pemble, a fifth-grader at Charlevoix Elementary School; "The Charlevoix

Uninterrupted support when you need it most

Consider hospice, funeral home relationships when choosing a provider

AMY WIELAND

Executive Director
Hospice of Northwest Michigan

Funeral home services have become an integral part of hospice care. Funeral directors provide leadership in bringing hospice care to their communities and in supporting their area hospices with their expertise when caring for families.

"When dealing with the difficult decisions faced by families at the time of a death, the close professional and personal bonds between our local hospices and funeral homes make Northern Michigan a special place," said Rick Gillis, general manager at Stone Funeral Home.

"When you consider the philosophy of hospice and funeral homes, it's clear why funeral services are a natural extension of hospice care."

Both disciplines should work together to plan a natural, seamless transition of family care at the time of a loved one's death, and into the months that follow. There should be no time at which family members are without support. The supportive environment continues uninterrupted as families move through the process of dying, death and bereavement.

"The health care professionals, staff and volunteers with the hospice of your choice are there to make a confusing and emotional time somewhat less stressful for both the patient and the family," Gillis said.

Hospice care workers and funeral directors each have unique expertise that converges where families need help during the loss of a loved one. Other disciplines, especially the clergy, are also directly involved. Effective interactions require an open dialogue and a willingness to share information among all parties.

This helps to build a foundation of mutual trust and respect.

When a loved one passes, someone has to call the funeral home to inform them that the death occurred.

Hospice professionals will make this difficult call on behalf of the family. When someone dies at home, there are many details the funeral home needs to know, and many decisions to be made.

Hospice professionals are there to help handle those difficult logistics, ensuring the family's wishes are carried out and funeral service providers are prepared to provide a dignified transition.

Removal of a loved one's body can be awkward and deeply emotional for family members, especially when the death has occurred at home. Hospice professionals are there to provide comfort and assistance to the family during this time, often staying with the family in another room and consoling them as the funeral professionals prepare the body for removal.

Hospice and funeral services adhere to strict principles and high standards of care. Both are committed to serving the entire family during a loss, in addition providing care for dying patients. Both services should be mutually aware, supportive and in touch with one another.

You have a choice. Be sure to choose a hospice and a funeral home that work together to provide a peaceful, dignified, supportive transition for loved ones and family members.

In Praise of Rhubarb

It's Rhubarb season! That probably does not thrill you as much as say the

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Christmas season. Rhubarb does not have an abundance of devotees. It could be because there are so few things that can be done with rhubarb, and maybe also because the season is so short. When I was a child we called it "pieplant." Rhubarb does make a fine pie, but after a few of them they lose their appeal. Rhubarb compote also is a possibility, but after then not much can be done with rhubarb.

More than 50 years ago I taught a course at Michigan State titled "Poisonous Plants." The course was required of all veterinary medicine students. I taught it for two years and I certainly learned a lot. Anyone teaching something always learns more than the students do.

Is rhubarb a poisonous plant? The answer is yes. Its history from poison to food is interesting.

Rhubarb originated in China and as long ago as the 1500s the dried roots were imported to Europe as a medicine. Medicine often consist of a small dose of something that in a larger dose is poisonous. The dried roots — actually large underground stems — were used to treat almost anything that might ail one. Eventually someone discovered that you could grow the magic roots in Europe.

It was not until the 17th century that rhubarb as an edible became common. Since both the roots or rhizomes and the larger triangular leaves are quite toxic, I have to suppose that some king's taster was used

In early experiments with the plant. The only safe edible part is the large stalks that support the leaves. The pleasant tartness of cooked or raw rhubarb comes from a high concentration of oxalic acid and a number of other less well known ingredients. Too much oxalic acid is associated with the formation of kidney stones, so it, maybe a good thing that the rhubarb season is so short.

Rhubarb is almost never a commercial product, whether fresh or preserved. However during those years at Michigan State, I did visit a commercial, mostly underground dark-horse facility where extremely tender and flavorful rhubarb was produced from the rhizomes through the winter. I believe the idea came from Belgium.

I have never before written anything that repeated the word "rhubarb" at least a dozen times. Enough about rhubarb. The season is nearly over.

Earl Young Series Segment 3

In the early 1950s, Charlevoix builder in stone Earl Young began work on what has come to be considered his residential masterpiece, the Mushroom House at the corner of Clinton and Grant streets. It was completed by 1954. Designed in what Earl considered to be the form of a button mushroom set atop the foundation of a typical two-storied Michigan L-shaped residence, the structure's rooms are laid along an oval outline around a central core. The precise square footage of the house has never been determined, because highly sophisticated laser equipment would be needed to figure out the configuration of each room. Some of the walls are 3 feet thick. The mul-lioned windows began life in a Polish castle and were brought to the U.S. to be installed in a lumber baron's mansion downstate, and when word of its demolition reached Young, he went down and rescued them. The house has had three roofs, all made of thousands of hand-carved wood shingles, all of these laid atop an undulating base that almost encircles the house. The chimney top repeats Earl's favored motif of oozing, melting cement. Collectively, all of Earl Young's houses are called the Mushroom Houses, also Tolkien, Troll, Hansel and Gretel, Gnome, Fairy Tale and Early Mother Goose Houses. This is the official Mushroom House, now the most photographed residence in Charlevoix.

This image is the third in a series of four featuring Earl Young's work. A new film documentary on Young, "The Wizard of Boulder Park," will receive its world premiere at 8 p.m. Monday, June 8, at Charlevoix Cinema III, 107 Antrim St., for one night only.

Gala reception at the Weathervane, private screening at the theater and panel discussion afterward are available for $125 or $300 per person as a fundraiser for the Charlevoix Historical Society. Call (231) 547-0373 for information and reservations.

General movie admission tickets, $15, are on sale now at the theater or by calling (231) 547-2661. All ticket proceeds go toward support of the Historical Society.

Charlevoix physician receives Outstanding Volunteer Faculty Award

EAST LANSING — Local physician Dr. James Jeakle was honored at the Breslin Center in East Lansing on Saturday, May 16, during the Michigan State University commencement ceremony. Chosen by the Traverse City Campus Class of 2015 to be the recipient of the Outstanding Volunteer Faculty Award, it is clear that Dr. Jeakle is highly valued by not only his peers, but also by his students.

"Dr. Jeakle is hands-down one of the best preceptors students have ever had the privilege of working with," said Rachel Mason, one of Dr. Jeakle's students. "He has a tremendous amount of experience and knowledge, which he shares with incredible enthusiasm. His passion for the medical profession and his patients is contagious; you will undoubtedly be a better physician for learning from him. He is not only an excellent doctor, but puts a lot of effort into mentorship. MSU is lucky to have him as an alumni and teacher."

Mason's words were read at the commencement ceremony where Dr. Jeakle was presented with the award.

cial place in his heart for Michigan State University, having received both his undergraduate and medical education there. He is certified by both the American Academy of Family Physicians and the American Board of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

As a Hospital Foundation board member and a volunteer faculty member at MSU, Dr. Jeakle actively participates in "giving back" to both his profession and the community. Well-loved by patients and staff alike, Dr. Jeakle continues to provide the gentle care and personal touch he has become known for at Charlevoix Women's Health Care, part of Charlevoix Area Hospital.

"As a dedicated board member, Dr. Jeakle is thoughtful in his leadership and generous with his time and support," said Chelsea Townsend, CAH Foundation Executive Director and a patient of Jeakle. "As a physician, he gives his undivided attention to his patients and is always searching for learning opportunities."

I've been asked on more than one occasion in his office to have students observe, which I am happy to oblige despite my bashfulness. It is clear he is passionate about his craft and the future of health care in our area."

The team at Charlevoix Area Hospital applauds Dr. Jeakle for this well-deserved honor.

Writing, reporting, sports by local senior

BY NICHOLE HART
Special to the Courier

Editors Note: The following article is from Nichole Hart, a sophomore at Charlevoix High School and member of the CHS yearbook team. She is the daughter of Tereta Hart and Scot Hart. She is a student of Karen Peterson, English teacher at Charlevoix Middle School/High School. Peterson's students worked on 300 word features — a type of feature created by Brady Dennis who worked for the St. Petersburg Times.

All have been a part of his high school life. Senior Noah Certa has been a local sports column writer for the Charlevoix Courier since last September.

"I will never twist the truth of someone's answers. I try to be fair with everyone," Certa said. He adds that people want to read things about people, written by people which they trust.

Certa noted that his writing shows the city people who aren't usually talked about, or recognized in sports. That is his favorite part about being able to write these articles.

He wrote about Jenna Way's volleyball experience.

He wrote about Ivy Well's swimming career.

And he wrote about Keegan LeBlanc's life of basketball.

Certa is all about people inspiring each other.

"It's crazy how people don't always know about others who they can inspire," Certa says.

Certa also is really big on what we mean to each other. We inspire people, and people inspire us. We mean a lot to people, and we may not even know it, he said.

"It's what life is all about," Certa says.

Certa hopes to inspire other young readers with his articles. He claims everyone has the same ability to do the same thing he does.

"We all have the ability to have the courage to act on our thoughts, which is what life ends up being all about," Certa said.

One of the most important things to Certa is getting to know the people he writes about. He is planning on going to college next fall. He hopes to pursue a writing career, and he also will play baseball for his school team.

Two things he loves at one time. Writing and sports.

Solstice barn concert to benefit Manna Food Project

EAST JORDAN — In a barn concert, on Saturday, June 20, an area food bank, a local farm and Michigan-based musicians are coming together from different sides of the community to make healthy food more accessible for low-income people.

When the band Breathe Owl Breathe sets up to play in the hundred-year-old barn of Bluestem Farm in June, all proceeds will be used to stock the shelves of area food pantries with organic vegetables. The barn concert begins at 6 p.m. with a cakewalk and silent auction, which are also fundraisers. Music starts at 7:30 p.m.

"Manna Food Project is happy to join forces with the musicians from Breathe Owl Breathe and Bluestem Farm to make it easier for people who are food-insecure to access great, healthy food," said Deb Niblett, director of Manna Food Project.

A project of this kind involves not only growing food and giving it away, but also accepting and offering donations, as well as the many logistics involved in distribution, fundraising, and community organization, not to mention the musical event itself. "We are elated to partner with Manna Food Project and Breathe Owl Breathe to make this happen. As a farm, we're good at growing great food. Manna is excellent at distribution and community organization. And Breathe Owl Breathe are talented and beloved musicians. We think there's going to be a great crowd," said Mary Brower, owner of Bluestem Farm.

For more than a year, the farm has operated a food donations program in partnership with the Health Department of Northwest Michigan called the Help Others Eat Well Fund. Relying on individual and group donations as well as fundraising events, the fund has supplied more than $3,500 in donated food in the form of farm memberships, also called CSA shares, to families in need.

Employees of the Health Department select recipients, who receive farm "shares" each week, alongside their neighbors, who are paying customers.

"We think healthy food is an investment in our future, and a very important way to raise our community's quality of life at the same time we lower the cost of public health," said Erika Van Dam, director of Community Health Services at the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

Volunteers, event sponsors, silent auction donations and cake donations, as well as advance ticket purchases, are all welcomed at bluestemfarm.net/events.

Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation announces scholarships are available

CHARLEVOIX — Nurses are an integral part of the health care workforce and are often the front line staff for your medical needs. OBITUARIES

Edward "Guy" Swanson, 76

Edward "Guy" Swanson, 76, of Charlevoix, died Wednesday, May 20, 2015. "Mighty Good" was one of Guy's favorite sayings, and reflected how he filled his life with positivity. No matter the meal or situation, he usually had a smile on his face while making a joke. He had a heart of gold and kindness. Guy had a way of making everyone he knew feel completely accepted and unconditionally loved. His infectious energy was one to admire, and his humble attitude spread to all of those around him.

Guy certainly went through some great times, tough times and adventurous times during his life. He was born in Charlevoix July 7, 1938, and lived here most his life, except for a few years when he traveled by train hopping like a "hobo" out to California. It was there that he helped purchase a boat they named "The Black Douglas" and traveled from California to the Cayman Islands where he lived for five years. When he returned to Charlevoix he was employed with Freedman/Harbor Industries for 35 years and retired from there in 2008.

Something that kept his spirits high was his love for the outdoors. He frequently took long biking trips to and through the Upper Peninsula; he loved to walk miles and miles, and loved working out by the sawmill or in the woods. Guy also enjoyed going out to eat and especially having breakfast with family members and coffee with the boys. His other interests included the newspaper comics, reading about space and cheating at cards.

Guy is survived by siblings, Jean Swanson of Charlevoix, Sharon and Tom Davis of Canadian Lakes, and Carl and Jamie Swanson of Midleville; nieces and nephews, Duane and Sheila Davis of Charlevoix, Adam and Joan of Wayland, Hanz and Shelley Davis of Traverse City, Christine Davis of Kentwood, Brian and Paula Swanson of Panama City, Fla., Brandy Swanson and fiancé Dan of Grand Rapids, and Michael, Josh and Alisa Swanson of Midleville; great-nieces and nephews, Ashley, Eric, Huston, Karleigh, Kaylee, Hannah, Michael, Leah, Nathan, Dakota, Katie and Ben; great-niece and nephew, Isabelle and Chase.

Guy was preceded in death by his wife, Patricia Swanson; parents, Edward and Lauretta (Stutzman) Swanson; sister, Roberta Wegner; great-niece, Samantha Davis.

Visitation with the family will be from 2-4 p.m. Tuesday, May 26, at the Community Reformed Church in Charlevoix with a Celebration of Life service immediately following at the church. Burial will take place at 11 a.m., Friday, June 12, in the Barnard Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, please make financial contributions to: Front Porch Ministries: Wish List Fund, 9235 Main, Ellsworth, MI 49729.

Please sign Guy's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Visitation will be from 6-8 p.m. Sunday, June 7, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix where the funeral will be at 1 p.m. Monday, June 8.

Martha Wagbo Farms and Educational Center announces trial program

EAST JORDAN — The Martha Wagbo Farm and Education Center in East Jordan has started an experimental community potluck and program known as The Median Group. The first meeting will be on Saturday, May 30.

The Median Group will share a potluck dinner at 6 p.m., followed by a discussion which will last approximately 45 minutes. Interested parties are asked to bring a dish to pass, if they are able. Donations are accepted.

The Median Group is a meeting together as a group without agenda or hierarchy. This form of gathering may seem quite common, but despite its simple design, it is radically different in character. In general, the group assumes a role or expects a task to be accomplished when they meet. Even among friends, gatherings are typically based on an experience to be shared or a task to be accomplished. In other words, the focus is usually external to the people involved.

In the Median Group, the focus is dictated solely by the participant. During the meeting each of the participants has an opportunity to talk; although, there is no obligation to speak at all. The group may be composed of people that do not know each other or do not know each other well.

For more information, call (231) 536-0333, email at info@wagbo.com or see Wagbo Farms on Facebook to RSVP.

Rhonna Tania Egger, 69

Beloved wife, mother, meme, sister and friend, Rhonna Tania Egger, 69, of Torch Lake passed away Monday, May 25, 2015, at Munson Hospice House in Traverse City.

She was born Aug. 21, 1945, in Wevelgem, Belgium, to Andre and Wilma (Wallays) Bisschop. In 1948, the family moved to Winnipeg, Manitoba, before coming to the United States and settling in Fraser in 1953. Rhonna was a graduate of Fraser Public Schools in 1963.

She married the love of her life, Werner Egger, on May 31, 1969. They moved to Northern Michigan in 1973 and lived on Old Dixie Highway in Atwood for more than 35 years.

She was a dedicated volunteer and selflessly donated hundreds of hours of time to the Ellsworth Community Schools. She served on the board of education, coached cheerleading, chaired fundraisers, chaperoned events and was a presence in many a classroom.

Once her daughters were off to college, Rhonna found pleasure in spending her days as manager of the Rocking Horse Toy Company in Charlevoix. Rhonna, was a meticulous housekeeper who also enjoyed reading, cooking, working crossword puzzles and playing cards. She especially loved spending time with her family and at a moment's notice would show you pictures of her beloved grandchildren.

She is survived by her husband, Werner of Torch Lake; daughters, Tania A. Egger (Ronald) Harris, and Nicole M. Egger (Jon) Supernaw, all of Traverse City; grandchilddren, Philipp and Claudia Harris; brother, Ronny (Carol) Bisschop of Barrington, Ill.; brother-in-law, Reinhard (Shelley) Egger of McKinney, Texas; mother-in-law, Maria Egger; and numerous nephews, nieces and cousins.

She was preceded in death by her parents and father-in-law, Philipp Egger.

Visitation will be from 5-7 p.m. Friday, May 29, at the Winchester Funeral Home in Charlevoix. A memorial service will follow at 7 p.m. Cremation will take place following the service. Because of road construction, please enter the funeral home from Clinton Street using the First Merit Bank rear entrance.

Memorial contributions may be made to Munson Hospice House, 1105 Sixth St., Traverse City, MI 49684.

Notable Michigan author to visit Boyne District Library

BOYNE CITY — Boyne District Library today announced that Stephen Terry — author of "Michigan Agricultural College Campus Life 1900-1925: A Postcard Tour" — will pay a visit to the library at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, June 2, for an evening of storytelling, book signing and question-and-answer time with guests.

Terry is visiting the Boyne District Library as part of the Library of Michigan's 2015 "Michigan Notable Authors Tour." This year, 20 authors, whose engaging works were chosen as 2015 Michigan Notable Books selections, will visit nearly 50 libraries throughout the state.

"It's a literary treat to

"Michigan is home to some of the best stories and storytellers found anywhere in the country. An author of Terry's caliber here, in our library, will make it an evening to remember."

Michigan Notable Books is designed to promote reading and raise awareness of Michigan's literary heritage. The program annually selects 20 of the most outstanding books published in that year. These titles are reflective of Michigan's diverse ethnic, historical, literary and cultural experience.

"This year's Michigan Notable Books delve into wonderfully diverse topics and offer something of interest for just about everyone," said State Librarian Randy Riley. Registration opens for inaugural Paddle Antrim Festival kayak event

BELLAIRE—Paddle Antrim announced that registration is now open for the Inaugural Paddle Antrim Festival kayak event that will promote water purity for the streams, lakes and rivers of Antrim County.

The event will be on Sept. 18 and 19. This two-day, 40-mile kayak paddle through moat of Antrim County's Chain of Lakes, from Ellsworth to Elk Rapids, is a one-of-a-kind experience.

The first day meanders 16 peaceful miles through many small lakes from Ellsworth to Bellaire. The second day is a more challenging 27-mile paddle from Bellaire through the Lower Chain of Lakes including the picturesque Torch Lake to Elk Rapids. As a non-competitive event, paddlers are encouraged to choose their own adventure. Early registration for the two days will be $100 and one-day registration for $65 per day will begin June 1.

"We are very excited about the level of enthusiasm we have received from the local communities, sponsors, and paddlers for this unique paddling event," said Donna Jerdee, Paddle Antrim executive director. "We appreciate all of our sponsors and want to especially thank our main sponsor, Short's Brewing Company, for all their support as we carry on a tradition they began with their Short's to Short's paddle. We look forward to celebrating these pristine waters and enjoying a wonderful paddle and local hospitality."

Local communities are hosting great events as well that weekend for everyone to enjoy. Ellsworth will kick off the festival Friday and Saturday mornings with breakfast, while paddlers and visitors can stop in Central Lake's Thurston Park Friday afternoon. Bellaire welcomes all for Friday night festivities. Saturday along the route the Dockside Restaurant, Alden and Torch River welcome kayakers as well. The festival will conclude with a wonderful party for everyone in downtown Elk Rapids on Saturday night.

The passenger of the vehicle, Brandon Jacob, 16, of Rosky, was located approximately four hours after the crash walking along Boyne City-East Jordan Road near Pearsall Road. He was transported to and later released from McLaren Northern Michigan hospital with minor injuries, Schneider said.

According to the release, deputies and the East Jordan Fire Department conducted a three-hour search of the area. Then the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office conducted an extensive search of the area with the assistance of the Michigan State Police helicopter, three K-9 units, members of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office Marine Division, Boyne City Fire Department, as well as the Northern Michigan Mutual Aid Dive Team.

Schneider offered his thanks to all the agencies, and all the concerned citizens of Charlevoix County, who assisted the sheriff's office in searching for Jesse.

for each other with some friendly competition," Muladore said.

STRIVE uses an active mentoring system to help raise their grades and provide motivation. The participants, who are chosen for the program in their junior year, meet weekly with a mentor provided by the Rotary Club. Mentors are typically Rotary members who have volunteered to take on a student.

"It's not difficult to be a mentor because the student wants to get ahead as much as we want to see them succeed," said Rotarian Kirby Dipert.

For 17-year-old Violet Brannon, STRIVE provided the opportunity and tools to improve her organizational skills.

"My mentor really helped me stay on track and not fall behind," Brannon said. "Our meetings were productive and he really showed an interest in my grades and my college goals."

Each year the student who improves the most receives either $1,000 for a college of their choice, or their first year tuition paid for, if they attend North Central Michigan College in Petoskey, the runner up receives $750, and the others each get $500 scholarships.

This year's first place recipient is 17-year-old Sam Stewart, who is going to North Central Michigan College to study criminal justice. For Stewart, STRIVE provided the extra help to improve his grades so he could advance his career goals.

"Ever since I was in the 7th grade I knew criminal justice was my plan, but I struggled academically," Stewart said. "Not all students get the best grades, but programs like STRIVE give you the tools to be a better student. My mentor helped me with study skills and gave me the encouragement to reach my goal."

Suzanne Klinger, principal of Charlevoix Middle/

High School, said pairing students with role models from the community gives the teens a whole new perspective on the future, which can help them be a better job candidate after college.

"Mentors can expose these kids to different types of careers," Klinger said. "They do a great job making the connection with the kids and that really keeps students in the program on task for completing school and applying for colleges."

"The Main Street concept moves us to more of a working board," Barron said. "I think with new people, especially people who have been involved with Main Street, would be an asset to the DDA."

The public also would have the opportunity to weigh in on a board expansion during a public hearing, because it would require a change in a city ordinance, said Annie Doyle, Charlevoix Community Economic Development director. "It would be 60 to 90 days before this could go into the place because of city policy," Doyle said.

Doyle also informed board members about the baseline and visioning assessment with Michigan Main Street representatives from Lansing May 13-15.

"There were 19 meetings involving approximately 145 people throughout the community during those three days," Doyle said. "A lot of good information came out of the meetings and we should receive a recommendation from them sometime in June."

The meetings included people from a combined 55 various organizations and institutions including financial, commerce, retail, restaurants, property owners, civic service, community health, arts and education, Doyle said.

"Many Charlevoix stakeholders took part in the discussions," Doyle said. "I believe the information will provide Charlevoix with some real reachable goals for our future in Main Street during the next five years."

Life begins in a garden

Growing delicious vegetables

Improving the quality of your garden soil will guarantee a better harvest.

Would you like to eat some deliciously fresh vegetables this summer, grown in your own garden? Now's the time to get to work. In April, or as soon as the soil is no longer waterlogged, roll up your sleeves and get out your shovel and garden fork.

Preparing the soil is a crucial step. Loosen the soil to aerate it and carefully remove any weeds. If you want to produce big, beautiful vegetables, be sure to add compost and organic fertilizer, such as a seaweed fertilizer or bone meal. One thing is sure: improving the quality of the soil in your garden will guarantee a better harvest.

To sow seeds or plant seedlings? It's your decision, but if you choose plants you'll have to wait until all danger of ground frost has passed before starting your vegetable garden, or use a cold frame to protect them. If you decide to sow seeds directly outdoors, you'll find lots of seeds that thrive in cool weather at your garden centre. But beware: seeds have to be sown at the right moment according to the hardiness zone you live in. Here again, you should only sow your seeds when all risk of ground frost is passed.

If your patience is being put to the test, why not start your seeds indoors? During April you can start preparing your garden with all kinds of seeds: tomatoes, peppers, cauliflower, broccoli, and the list goes on.

For a garden brimming with vegetables, be sure to water and weed throughout the summer months. If you get busy now, you can look forward to crunching into your very first carrot in only a few short weeks!

Moon sets fourth school record as Charlevoix cruises in regular-season finale

JAMES GENSERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgenserblum@petoskeynews.com

CENTRAL LAKE — Senior Nate Moon added another school record to his already impressive list as the Rayders topped Central Lake 11-1 in its regular season finale on Tuesday.

Moon struck out six of the 10 batters he faced and gave up one hit in three innings to earn the 24th win of his career, a school record.

The senior also holds the records for hits with 139, RBIs with 118, and stolen bases with 85, and is second to teammate Noah Certa in runs with 25.

"Nate was very sharp, he gave up a bloop single to the very first batter and then nothing else rest of the way," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "That was good to see headed into districts."

Sophomore Christian Matye hit two doubles and drove in four runs for the Rayders. Moon added two hits and three RBIs, and Will Telgenhof and Austin Putman each added an RBI single.

Jordan Adkins pitched an inning of relief for the Rayders, striking out one and walking one.

Charlevoix finishes the regular season with 26 wins, second only to their 27 wins in 2013, and will open district play Saturday at 10 a.m. in Mancelona against arch rival Boyne City.

The Ramblers knocked the Rayders out of the district last season, and the two teams split earlier in the year.

Rayders celebrate senior night with sweep, claim share of LMC title

CHARLEVOIX — In its final appearance at home this season on Friday, the Charlevoix baseball team honored its eight seniors with a doubleheader sweep of Traverse City Christian, and also got to celebrate its second Lake Michigan Conference title in three seasons thanks to an assist from a conference foe.

With Kalkaska splitting with league-leading TC St. Francis in both teams' final conference doubleheader on Friday, Charlevoix shared the LMC title with the Gladiators with an 11-3 record in the league to add another league title to their 2013 solo win.

And on the field, the Rayders had a good night as well, pounding out 28 hits and 31 runs to sweep the visiting Sabres, 12-5 and 19-4.

In Game 1, Charlevoix scored seven runs in the first two innings to support starter Noah Certa, who picked up his first win in his first varsity start on the mound.

Will Telgenhof went 4-for-4 with a double at the plate for the Rayders, and Nate Moon went 3-for-4 with two doubles and three RBIs.

Devin Largent finished with two hits and drove in four runs, Adam Michaud and KeNen Borths each chipped in an RBI single, and Certa added a double while striking out four and walking three in four innings of work.

Michaud finished the game, striking out three in two innings of relief.

In Game 2, the Rayder bats went to work again, scoring 18 runs in the first three innings of a mercy rule game.

Michaud went 3-for-3 with three RBIs, and Borths chipped in three hits and three RBIs as well.

Telgenhof added two hits and two RBIs, Christian Matye chipped in a two-run single, and Hunter Cox and Alex Kleiber each finished with an RBI single as well.

Borths got the win on the mound, striking out seven and walking one in four innings of work.

"This group has really come together and accomplished the first of their goals — a league championship," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "After a five and seven start, they are finishing the regular season very strong."

Rayders, Red Devils split doubleheader

EAST JORDAN — Both the Charlevoix and East Jordan baseball teams were looking for quality competition in the final week of the season to prepare themselves for district play next week.

So, why not take on each other? That thought led to the two conference rivals facing off in a nonconference doubleheader on Thursday in East Jordan, and the result was the same as their first meeting this season — a competitive split.

Rayder seniors reflect on memories, accomplishments

JAMES GENSERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — Four years ago, when Noah Certa, Nate Moon and Will Telgenhof first made the cut for the varsity baseball team at Charlevoix, the trio knew they had a chance to have a good four year run.

None of them suspected they would be quite this good, however.

Combined, the four teams the three seniors have played on have gone school record 94-40 overall, and delivered three 20-win seasons, two conference titles and the program's first district title in 25 years in 2013.

Along the way, all three have earned all-conference, all-region and all-state honors, and have also combined to rewrite several pages of Charlevoix's record books, with Moon breaking four school records, Certa breaking one, and all three are all over the top 10 all time lists in nearly every category.

"We'd been good throughout little league and junior league, so we kind of thought we'd be able to have a good run (when we got on the varsity)," Telgenhof said. "We never thought it'd be anything like this, though."

The key to the group's success has been its unity. The three four-year starters, together with fellow seniors KeNen Borths, Devin Largent,

Noah Jeakle medals as Charlevoix moves on in Division 3 golf districts

JAMES GENSERBLUM

TRAVERSE CITY — Now that the MHSAA tournament has arrived, the stakes are higher, and a bad day could end a season.

Both the Charlevoix boys golf team and Boyne City's Griffin Powers, however, are no strangers to performing under pressure, and both did what they had to do to advance at Wednesday's Division 3 boys golf regional at Elmbrook Golf Club in Traverse City.

The Rayders shot a 337 to take fourth overall, a stroke behind third-place Cheboygan, to earn one of the six regional qualifying berths.

Manistee won the district with a round of 309, and Houghton Lake shot a 325 to finish second.

Charlevoix's Noah Jeakle tied for medalist honors with Matt Simmons of Manistee, shooting an even-par 72 to lead the Rayders on the day.

Tanner Drost carded an 87 to finish 20th for Charlevoix, and Matt Good and Ryan Joy each shot an 89 to round out the Rayders' scoring golfers.

Montana Thompson shot a 93 as well for Charlevoix.

Boyne City shot a 372 to finish ninth, 21 strokes behind Elk Rapids in the race for the final regional qualifying spot, but the Ramblers will still be represented at the regional by sophomore Griffin Powers, who carded an 81 to finish ninth overall and second out of six individual qualifiers.

Rayders' season ends in district-opening loss

LELAND — Even though the Charlevoix girls soccer team had spent most of the season ranked first in the state in Division 4, the Rayders knew that getting past fifth-ranked Leland on the road in the district opener would be a tough task.

And on Tuesday, the upset-minded Comets proved they had what it took to best the Rayders, seizing a first-half lead and holding on for the 2-1 win to bring Charlevoix's season to a close.

The Rayders started strong, controlling the first 25 minutes of play and generating a few scoring chances that they were unable to cash in on, but an injury to all-region defender Olivia Storm changed the complexion of the game midway through the period.

Sophomore Beth Veenstra filled in admirably for Storm, but Leland was able to seize the momentum, and cashed it in quickly.

The Comets' Libby Munoz scored in the 26th minute to give Leland the lead, then struck again seven minutes later with a goal that gave Leland a 2-0 advantage.

The Rayders tried to fight their way back, and were able to close the gap on an Ellie Way goal with under two minutes to play in the first half.

Despite that late goal, Charlevoix was unable to come any closer to Leland's lead in the second half, as the Comets turned aside several chances at an equalizer and expertly kept the Rayders from getting on the board.

Charlevoix keeper Gloria Greene made 11 saves on the night to give the Rayders a chance late, but ultimately time would expire before the Charlevoix could find the goal it needed to tie the match.

"We knew going into the game that we would have to finish well to win," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We just couldn't find the back of the net and Leland did."

"I'm proud of our girls as they played a hard fought game and never gave up. It's disappointing to Charlevoix wraps up its season at 16-4 overall, and with a perfect 12-0 record in the LMC and the conference title.

The Rayders lose a strong senior class that included three all-stars in Way, Greene and Leah Davis, and an all-region player in Storm, as well as exchange student Oda Polkedal.

However, 16 players return for Charlevoix next season, including all-stater Kylee Scholten and strong freshmen performers in Rachel and Natalie Nesburg and Abbey Scholten, meaning the Rayders should be set up for another strong campaign in 2016.

Charlevoix wraps up perfect LMC campaign with win over Grayling GRAYLING — A perfect ending.

The Charlevoix girls' soccer team already had their Lake Michigan Conference title in hand before their regular season ending matchup with Grayling, but still had a chance to put a bit of icing on the cake.

They did just that, capping a perfect 12-0 season in the LMC with a 3-0 win over Grayling on the road.

"I was pleased with how well

Charlevoix's Kylee Scholten scored two of the Rayders' three goals in a win over Grayling on Thursday, May 21 to help Charlevoix finish undefeated in LMC play.

we were able to move the ball tonight. Grayling is a much improved team," Charlevoix coach Pete Scholten said. "We could have finished better but I was pleased with the quality chances that we were able to generate."

Kylee Scholten got the chances going early in the first half, tossing in the ball on a throw-in that would be called a hand ball in the box on the Vikings.

Charlevoix was awarded a penalty kick, which senior Ellie Way would get a chance at with 20:27 in the first.

Way converted to make it 1-0, then Kelsey Engstrom would setup Scholten, who sent a screamer into the back of the net at the 6:57 mark.

In a giving mood, Engstrom then found Scholten again, who would send a shot into the upper 90 of the Vikings net, just over a minute before the half.

The 3-0 halftime score would be all the scoring on the game for the Rayders, but it would be all they would need with a defense holding the Vikings at bay.

"Our defense did a great job limiting their opportunities. Beth Veenstra played a strong game in defense coming up with some key saves," said Scholten. "Grace Lee did a great job tonight in the midfield."

Keeper Gloria Greene earned the shutout recording four saves on the night.

Spencer Stewart and Adam and Andrew Michaud have stuck together through thick and thin, and have reaped the benefits of that support throughout the four year run, Moon said.

"We're just a band of brothers who've played together from kindergarten to today," Moon said. "We've always had each other's backs and that's been the biggest thing."

Certa also credited veteran leadership from the classes before them that helped the group grow and improve on their journey.

"We had some great veteran leaders at the top when we were sophomores who set the tone and helped to pass it on to us," Certa said. "Everything we've done the last two years has been trying to keep that going, and I think we've done that."

"That's the most exciting part, is we've been able to keep that alive and hopefully pass it on as well."

When asked for their favorite moment of the four-year run so far, all three players agreed the highlight was the 2013 district title they won when they were sophomores.

"That was just a special year," Moon said. "A great group and to only have two losses, that's just really special."

Certa said the historical impact of the moment was what stood out to him.

"That's probably the highlight of my whole athletic career here," Certa said. "To do something that hasn't been done in 25 years, that was kind of the big moment for all of us."

For Telgenhof, what made the moment special was the tough road to get there.

"I think we were down four runs in the last inning of the first game in districts, and we fought back to win it and then win it all," Telgenhof said. "That was an awesome moment, because it kind of showed what we were all about and that made it even sweeter."

Charlevoix's eight-man senior class played its last game at its home field on Friday, sweeping TC Christian.

While the Rayder seniors will never play on home field again, their season isn't over, as Charlevoix opens district play at 10 a.m. Saturday in Mancelona against Boyne City.

It won't be easy, but with at least one more game left in their careers, Charlevoix's eight seniors are hoping to add even more special memories.

"There's no sadness here, even though we've played our last game at home," Moon said. "There's just gratitude and excitement; gratitude for being able to be a part of this community and this team, and excitement at what we've still got ahead of us."

"We're all looking forward to it."

"It was nice to play these guys tonight," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said.

"We had a cancellation and East Jordan had an opening so they invited us over."

"We have never played a conference team in a nonconference game before, but I think it gives both teams some good competition just the week before districts."

The Rayders took the opener 4-0 on the back of another dominant performance on the mound from Nate Moon, who finished the regular season 8-5 despite a 1-4 start.

Moon went all six innings, striking out five batters, walking none and giving up four hits in the shutout.

"It was nice to see Nate have such a good pitching performance in game one," Telgenhof said. "East Jordan had pretty good success against him when we played earlier."

Christian Matye led the Rayders with a double in Game 1. Austin Putman chipped in two hits and Moon added an RBI single.

In the nightcap, East Jordan used a five-run third inning to take the lead, but the Rayders rallied with three runs in the top of the sixth to tie the game.

In the bottom of the inning, David Isham got a single to get on base, then pinch-runner Ryan Lavanway advanced to third base on a bunt and a throwing error before Colin Shepard drove him in with a walk-off single to score the winning run.

Moon went 4-for-4 with a double and three RBIs to lead Charlevoix in Game 2, and Spencer Stewart finished 3-for-3 as well.

Noah Certa hit two doubles for the Rayders, and one drove in a run, while Hunter Cox added a triple.

Cox took the loss, striking out one, walking two, and giving up 11 hits in five and two-thirds innings of work.

JAMES GENSTERBLUM/COURIER

Charlevoix senior Devin Largent rounds third and heads for home during the Rayders' doubleheader sweep of TC Christian on Friday.

New city manager on the job July 7

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Newly hired city manager Mark Heydlauff said he does not have a real formula for success, but believes in working hard, involving the community in local government and giving his staff a free hand. Heydlauff, 29, named to the Charlevoix post in May, will begin his job on Monday, July 27. "I'm impressed with the community," Heydlauff said. "The city has a lot of amenities to offer its residents, which can be used to attract people to the

for. "Living in the city is the best way to experience my community," Heydlauff said. "It's much harder to empathize with your residents if you do not live in the area. I'm really looking forward to getting started."

Heydlauff, who has found a place to live within the city, said it is important to him to live in the community he works same area as they do."

Heydlauff, a native of Sturgis, said he became involved in public service from his internship experience with the city of Sturgis, while in high school. His first week on the job as an intern gave him a crash course in public relations after some strong storms moved through area.

"I was placed on phone detail and handled many calls from the community during that time," Heydlauff said. "That was a good experience."

Heydlauff spent three summers in Sturgis as an intern until leaving for college.

"The city staff were real informative and helped me work in all departments of the city," he said. "I really got to understand the importance of each department's job."

He has a master's degree in public administration from Western Michigan University as well as a bachelor's degree in political science and economics from Taylor University. In 2010, Heydlauff accepted an offer to be the Bronson city manager, a position he held before accepting the job in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix High graduates 82 in the Class of 2015

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — After a dreary start to the weekend, the sun came out and brightly shined down on the Charlevoix High School class of 2015 on Sunday during their graduation day.

Charlevoix had 82 graduates dressed in maroon caps and gowns enter the high school gymnasium for its 127th annual commencement exercises on May 31.

Interim superintendent Tom Stobie welcomed students, staff and families to celebrate the culmination of another school year. Though the world is far different from when he graduated there always will be the need for young graduates to make a difference in the world.

"You are graduating today, partly because of those who came before you ... it is graduates just like you that looked across our great continent and built railroads, highways, schools and universities that helped fuel the most prosperous economy in the world," Stobie said. "Now, that's your charge, as graduates. The U.S. is still a land of infinite possibilities and it's there to seize if you're willing to do it."

Student speakers were Allie Hodges and Alexandra Schwein, who gave the senior scholar address

5 students graduate from Northwest Academy in '15

MALACHI BARRETT
 (269) 338-9374 • MBarrett@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Surrounded by friends and family, five students graduated from Northwest Academy on Friday, May 29, at Castle Farms.

"While graduation is about the accomplishment of each of our graduates, it's also appropriate to note that it takes the work and dedication of many people over the course of a long time to reach this goal," said school director Phoebe Gohs. "This is a transition from the accomplishment of this goal to the next. This graduation is the foundation from which our graduates will build their adult lives."

Salutatorian Mikalya Miller addressed her fellow students, delivering a message of self-confidence and hard work to the assembled crowd. Mikalya, daughter of Bill and Carrie Miller, plans to attend

Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City for two years before transferring to either Saginaw Valley State University or Central Michigan University to pursue a career in recreational therapy.

"I actually didn't plan on being here today because I heard the salutatorian had to give a speech and I didn't want to listen to some nerd," Mikalya joked. "Then two weeks ago I was informed by Mrs. Gohs that I was selected, which was a bit of a shock; I had always thought I was so cool."

Mikalya said she was honored to accept the title, but was among a class of individuals full of potential. She also shared some advice with the crowd, starting by sharing her own hardships on the road to graduation.

"You are responsible for your own happiness," Mikalya said. "I went through a tough time, but I

City considers the costs of infrastructure improvements

LONNIE ALLEN
 (231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — It's the question Charlevoix City Council members discussed for nearly one hour at their meeting on June 1: What is the city willing to spend to improve its aging infrastructure — 1.5 million, $6 million or $20 million?

"I want to express these are very rough costs estimates for any future projects," said Pat Elliott, Department of Public Works superintendent. "Typically for a plan we are discussing involves planning from engineers and more research. All of these cost estimates are based on average costs from past projects."

— Option one — spending $1.2 million would replace approximately 12-blocks of aging water mains, but that would be it.

— Option two — spending $6 million would replace the same 12-blocks of aging water mains, but include upgrades to the storm water, sewer lines, streets and curb and gutters.

— Option three — spending $20 million is a draft plan put together nine years ago to completely rework the entire city's infrastructure. Some of those projects have been completed since the plan was drafted.

The emphasis on rebuilding the city's aging core infrastructure of water mains, sewers, streets and electric became top priority after another bitterly cold winter that has overextended budget resources and work crews for Charlevoix's Department of Public Works.

"As every one is aware we have had issues with our water distribution system the past two winters," Elliott said. "Our issues have to deal with very old 4-inch cast iron

Kids take leisurely cruise around Lake Charlevoix

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — Kindergarten and first-grade students from Charlevoix Elementary School were treated to a tour of Lake Charlevoix aboard the Keweenaw Star on Thursday, May 28.

Ranging from ages 5 to 8, the field trip began at the Charlevoix Farmers Market where the youths were able to shop and speak to local vendors about the products they sell. After touring the local market, about 60 children were welcomed aboard the Keweenaw Star where they enjoyed a mid-morning snack before venturing out and about on the open-air deck to take in the sights of Lake Charlevoix.

"This trip was to get our local kids out on the beautiful waters of Lake Charlevoix," said Craig Funkey, business co-owner. "A lot of local children don't have the opportunity to see the lake from a boat and we wanted to give them that experience."

Volunteers take to their knees to complete 'Operation Petunia'

Louise Allen
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Residents came together and took to their knees on May 28, to plant petunias between the sidewalks and curbs along the five-mile stretch of U.S. 31 in Charlevoix.

As in years past, senior citizens, elementary, middle and high school students, along with business officials in suits and entire families grabbed trowels or spoons and looked for a block that needed an extra hand.

"The flowers look nice and I'm having fun planting," said 8-year-old volunteer Dana Brown.

"Operation Petunia" saw about 1,000 people turn out to help complete the task. With the exception of a core group of "block captains," none was recruited or assigned a job.

Sue Campbell a 28-year block captain said the event really brings the people of Charlevoix together.

"We all work together to get the petunias planted," Campbell said. "Everyone seems to be having a good time and the kids from St. Mary's School are a big help on our block."

Campbell and her crew of volunteers began planting about 4 p.m. on the block in front of St. Mary's school. Together they diligently worked, planting petunias moving north to complete the task at Huribut Street, Campbell said.

"From the School to Remax, we got it done," Campbell said with a smile. "The kids were the biggest helpers."

For Alice and Keith Sherwood, who moved to the area about seven years ago, the annual petunia planting ritual is one of the many things they love about living in Charlevoix.

"When we first moved here and heard about this we felt it was something we wanted to be part of," said Alice Sherwood. "It's a great idea and a wonderful community event that we are so glad to be part of each year."

After the flowers on their block are done, they adjourn to East Park for a hot dog picnic.

"We got our ticket and are headed to the park to enjoy some food and music," said 11-year-old River Pease.

Officials encourage use of weather radios

Editor:

On April 16, citizens, businesses, schools and government agencies across the state conducted a voluntary statewide tornado drill during Michigan's Severe Weather Awareness Week. I would like to thank everyone who participated in the drill and took action to prepare for this year's severe weather season.

While the drill was successful in raising awareness, it brought to light a couple of misunderstandings about the use of outdoor warning sirens — specifically the belief that outdoor warning sirens are coordinated statewide and that outdoor warning sirens are the only alerting system for tornadoes and other severe weather events.

In Michigan, outdoor warning sirens are independently controlled by local officials in townships, villages, cities and counties, varying community by community to meet local needs. It's also important to understand that outdoor warning sirens are designed to be heard when you are outside, which means you may not hear the siren when you are indoors.

To be better prepared and protected at home, work or school, it is recommended that all Michigan citizens have a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Weather Radio to receive breaking severe weather alerts.

Weather radios silently monitor broadcasts 24 hours a day, seven days a week until there is a weather emergency, at which time the radio will emit an alarm to alert you to potential danger. A weather radio can be purchased at most electronic, hardware and big box stores for approximately $30.

To ensure you are prepared for severe weather, I encourage everyone to learn how outdoor warning sirens are used within their communities and to plan ahead before the next emergency or disaster strikes.

Sincerely,

Chris A. Kelenske,
Capt. Deputy State Director of Emergency Management and Homeland Security

Memorial Day Parade planning committee: Thank you to everyone involved with events

Editor:

We would like to give a heartfelt thank you to all who came out in the rain to the Charlevoix Memorial Day parade and program.

We greatly appreciate the following organizations for their participation in making a success of this special day: the Coast Guard, the American Legion and its Women's Auxiliary, the VFW, the Charlevoix area military families as well as the Rayder Marching Band.

We also want to express our gratitude to the city police and fire departments along with the township fire department, the Street Legends Car Club, Friends of the Library, Charlevoix City Band members and the Boy and Girl Scouts. Community Food Pantry thankful for Stamp Out Hunger food drive

Editor:

Recently the U.S. Postal Workers in Charlevoix conducted their annual "Stamp Out Hunger" food drive. We were happy to be the recipients of that collection.

This time of year we do not see many large food collections such as we do at holiday times. Then we are blessed with many collections; this time of year, not so much.

This collection is always a large one, and we look forward to it as it enables us to restock our shelves and offer a bigger variety of choices to our clients.

So thank you to the postal workers and to Kelly Morris who chaired this event. Nine drivers brought food to our pantry, and we know that added hours and much additional work to their day. Thank you, Kelly, and drivers and all the generous people who left food to be collected at their mailboxes. Thank you for all of your added effort and time.

Very truly yours,

I took the time and visited the Boyne City Farmers Market, which takes place from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. every Wednesday and Saturday in the Veterans Memorial Park off Lake Street in Boyne City. Vendors of all kinds of delicious edibles and non-edibles bring their items to the market for sale to the general public. I believe farmers markets are an essential part of living in Northern Michigan. Many farms bring organic vegetables and non-hormone meat to the consumer making a healthier meal for your family. What I like most about this is you get the opportunity to talk to the farmer that is growing and raising the products themselves, giving you firsthand information without trying to read through cryptic labels with ingredients even a thesaurus or dictionary would have issues explaining what they are.

There is much more at the market than produce and meats. A person can find yummy cookies, cakes, pies and gluten free products that taste like heaven from area bakers. The market also is a place for crafters to sell their products. Did I hear you say HONEY? Oh yes, there is even a honey vendor selling the sweet nectar of the busy bee.

Walking through the market on a windy, rainy day with the brave vendors, enduring the elements, selling the products, I would have expected a grumpy bunch. But instead, their spirits were high and not a single frown greeted me, only smiles and each vendor more than eager to answer any question I could throw at them when I inquired about their products.

My first stop was the Cook Family Farm, which has a large assortment of beef, poultry, pork, cheese and eggs. I am very partial to the spicy beef sticks and sharp white cheddar cheese. Talking to Waneta Cook she explained to me the products are not GMO, have no MSG and are completely organic; her family has been GMO free for the last 6 years and they plan to remain this way for as long as they stay in business. Cook and husband, Tom, have 12 children and everyone pitches in all the way down to the youngest toddler.

Next, I moved on to Big Medicine Ranch. They had already sold out of their produce but offered me a much needed beverage to take my mind off the weather. Jennifer Zawistowski and husband, Thomas work the ranch and grow many vegetables, grinding their own coffee bean blends and selling them at the market. It was delicious coffee, and Jennifer serves it up with a smile.

On to Bear Creek Organic Farm, where I conversed with Anne Bates, who not only works on the farm with husband Brian, she is a professor at Northern Michigan University teaching animation, graphic design and more. Wednesday and Saturday she spends her time selling their many veggies, flowers, herbs, seeds and raw honey.

The farmers market experience was very pleasant. I had the opportunity to also look over Rollin Scones Baking Company and its many pastries, cookies, muffins and pies — they also have a line of gluten free products.

Soon, it was time for the vendors to pack up and end the day of selling, so I did not get around to all the booths, but I will the next visit. If you cannot get to Boyne City remember there are farmers markets all around Charlevoix County and here are just a few:

— Charlevoix Farmers Market: Thursday 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

— Boyne City Farmers Market: Wednesday and Saturday 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

— East Jordan Farmers Market: Thursday 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Happy farmers market shopping to you and thank you for supporting your local farmer, baker, crafter and more.

The Weathervane Inn opened for business in July of 1954.

The Weathervane Inn: Earl Young's Masterpiece

Charlevoix builder in stone Earl Young's masterpiece is the world renowned Weathervane Inn next to the bridge. The once four-story metal-sided building and Charlevoix landmark began life in 1885 as the Rifenburg grist mill, then the Charlevoix Roller Mill and finally the Argo Milling Company. Young bought the old mill in 1953, tore it down to Pine River Street level and basement and began the Weathervane, which opened for business in July of 1954. It became the sensation of the north.

He incorporated the mill's large maple support beams, many of them uniquely notched, both as structural elements and décor. The building is more than 140 feet long and 46 feet wide at its widest point. Young's favorite bird was the seagull, so he designed the roof line to resemble the outstretched wings of a gull in flight, best seen from the opposite side of the channel. The 9-ton boulder capstone of the main dining room fireplace was discovered during the digging of a road in Boulder Park in 1928. To Young, its form and lines resembled the highway system of the Lower Peninsula. He knew he had to keep it, but was unsure for what purpose. So he hauled it out of the earth using horses and chains, dragged the huge mass a quarter of a mile into the woods, reburied it, and there it lay for 26 years before he knew exactly where it was destined to go.

These images are the final in a series of four featuring Earl Young's work. A new film documentary on Young, "The Wizard of Boulder Park," will hold its world premiere at 8 p.m. on Monday, June 8, at Charlevoix Cinema III, 107 Antrim St. A gala reception at the Weathervane in Young's old office area, screening at the theater and panel discussion afterward are available for $125 per person as a fundraiser for the Charlevoix Historical Society. For more information and reservations call (231) 547-0373. General admission screening tickets are on sale at the Cinema III for $15 or by calling (231) 547-2661 during business hours. All ticket proceeds go toward support of the Historical Society.

BUSINESS

Gallery gives visitors a touch of Europe

BY ANNE KELLY
Special to the Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Visitors to The North Seas Gallery in downtown Charlevoix, can take a virtual trip to Europe ... no passport required.

Located on the corner of Clinton and Bridge streets, the gallery has the ambiance of a museum and the charm of an antique store. In fact, it is a little of both.

"I can't tell you how many people stop in for the first time and say, 'I didn't realize that all this was here,'" said owner Rex McCarthy.

McCarthy and his wife, Lenka along with their son, Tim, manage the seasonal business in the former Charlevoix County State Bank building that they have preserved and enhanced by, among other things, adding a mezzanine.

"We preserved the original floor, the vault and the safety deposit boxes," McCarthy said. "The marble from the teller cage was utilized on the front steps."

The McCarthys initially opened their business in 1990 in the Mason's building on Mason Street. In the summer of 1994, the gallery moved to the Wharfside building adjacent to the band shell in East Park. Nine years ago, the city of Charlevoix bought that building to expand the park and North Seas Gallery moved to their present location on Bridge Street.

Patrons of fine arts and visitors drawn in by the window displays of paintings, bronze sculptures and fine glass, will be cordially welcomed by the family including "Sooty," the resident Scottie pooch. The McCarthys take pride in their inventory and are knowledgeable about the world of antiques. It is obvious from the outset that they love to share their enthusiasm and will spend time, like docents at an exhibition, with each customer. Each winter, they travel to Holland to Lenka's home town in Maastricht, where they base their annual excursions, searching out new and interesting pieces for the gallery. They attend flea markets and auctions and follow leads which appear in antique trade magazines. They gather furniture, objects of art, paintings and curios that they feel are gallery-worthy and saleable to their patrons. Over the years, they have accumulated a discerning clientele that periodically makes return visits to buy additional pieces for their homes or collections. But the McCarthys are adamant about the fact that art is for everyone, and should not be intimidating. As a result, they take care to stock pieces in a variety of price ranges.

"We have made some wonderful friends through buying and selling our pieces," he said.

They encourage browsing and are happy to answer any questions customers may have about their inventory.

"We are especially proud of the tile motif located over the gallery door," McCarthy said. "It was found in an old barn in Holland and depicts a peasant sower. The tiles are originally from a grocery store in Amsterdam which was demolished after World War II."

These are the kind of treasures that are the fruit of the hunt for the McCarthys. The antique addiction began early on for McCarthy, when he was hooked on collecting baseball cards. Rex and Lenka met in Holland in 1970 when he was stationed there in the service. After they were married, they went to flea markets just for fun. Soon they began studying up on antiques and read antique trader magazines. They noticed that many of their finds at the flea markets around the Netherlands were pieces that they had seen during their shopping sprees.

"I got the bug," McCarthy said. "I started going to the library and studied up on antiques."

One thing led to another and on a whim the couple decided to advertise 10 vases that they had found, in a trade magazine. "They all sold," he said. "Then we advertised and sold 50 pieces, and then more ... we were encouraged that the market was so good." We started attending auctions at Sotheby's and Christie's in Amsterdam. We were able to buy pieces that we could never afford today. At that time, the few attendees at an auction were antique dealers. It was before the Internet and before these prestigious auction houses realized that their real market was selling to the rich and famous collectors through their agents."

Their purchases over the winter will arrive soon: It has been shipped to the East Coast from Rotterdam and when it arrives via rail to Detroit and finally by truck to Charlevoix, it will be "like Christmas," the McCarthy's said of opening crates and rediscovering their newly acquired art. One of the most anticipated arrivals will be a collection of several paintings by a German artist Hugo Moehl.

The McCarthys, curious to learn more about the artist they had discovered on the Internet, followed a circuitous path to the discovery and acquisition of 44 of his paintings. They were assisted by the Secretary of Art and Culture in Moehl's home town of Wittlich, Germany. They learned that Moehl, a man of considerable means, sold his castle and willed his artwork to the city when he realized that upon his death he would have no heirs to whom he could bequeath his possessions. His unique paintings range in subject matter from pastoral landscapes to abstract designs. The North Seas Gallery will be hosting an exhibition of Moehl's paintings in the mezzanine of the gallery this summer.

The gallery also does art appraisals, restoration and cleaning of older paintings and frames. What started out many years ago as a hobby for the McCarthys has become a passion for art and a successful business.

Newborns at Charlevoix Area Hospital to receive a special gift

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix resident Margaret M. Myers-Culver made a generous, creative gift to the next 200 babies to be born at Charlevoix Area Hospital — a very special illustrated book for each of them.

The children's book, "Wish" is authored and illustrated by Matthew Cordell. It is a touching story about an elephant family who struggles with unforeseen hurdles and miraculously gets their deepest wish.

"I've always wanted to do something like this," Myers-Culver said. "You can never start too early with literacy. Reading is essential and books are tactile — great for kids!"

She read the book last winter and wrote a review of this heartwarming story for her blog. She has long been a fan of Matthew Cordell's work and felt that putting these books in the hands of newborns would be a great celebration of new life, and one that seemed a perfect fit for her creative personality.

New mother Samantha Place and baby Norman of Boyne City receive the first book from Margaret Myers-Culver.

Myers-Culver contacted the hospital and spoke with Lyn Jenks, CEO, to ask if she could donate the books. She also wanted to know about how many babies were born in the course of a year and a couple of friends individually wrapped each and every book in crisp white gift wrap with bright yellow ribbons.

When asked why Myers-Culver came up with the idea for her donation, she explained that she wanted to do something very special in memory of her mother who was an elementary school librarian who adored books. Agatha Marie Fires Myers, a former patient at Charlevoix Area Hospital, lived to be 94 years old and books were always a big part of her life. She firmly believed that the more books that surround a child, the better reader he or she will become. And like her mother, Myers-Culver believes that it's never too soon to begin.

Registration opens for inaugural Paddle Antrim Festival kayak event

BELLAIRE — Paddle Antrim announced that registration is now open for the inaugural Paddle Antrim Festival kayak event that will promote water purity for the streams, lakes and rivers of Antrim County.

The event will be on Sept. 18 and 19. This two-day, 40-mile kayak paddle through most of Antrim County's Chain of Lakes, from Ellsworth to Elk Rapids, is a one-of-a-kind experience.

The first day meanders 16 peaceful miles through many small lakes from Ellsworth to Bellaire. The second day is a more challenging 27-mile paddle from Bellaire through the Lower Chain of Lakes including the picturesque Torch Lake to Elk Rapids. As a non-competitive event, paddlers are encouraged to choose their own adventure. Early registration for the two days will be $100 and one-day registration for $65 per day will begin June 1.

"We are very excited about the level of enthusiasm we have received from the local communities, sponsors, and paddlers for this unique paddling event," said Deana Jerdee, Paddle Antrim executive director. "We appreciate all of our sponsors and want to especially thank our main sponsor, Short's Brewing Company, for all their support as we carry on a tradition they began with their Short's to Short's paddle. We look forward to celebrating these pristine waters and enjoying a wonderful paddle and local hospitality."

Local communities are hosting great events as well that weekend for everyone to enjoy. Ellsworth will kick off the festival Friday and Saturday mornings with breakfast, while paddlers and visitors can stop in Central Lake's Thurston Park Friday afternoon.

Bellaire welcomes all for Friday night festivities. Saturday along the route the Dockside Restaurant, Alden and Torch River welcome kayakers as well. The festival will conclude with a wonderful party for everyone in downtown Elk Rapids on Saturday night.

For registration or additional information, go online paddleantrim.com, email info@paddleantrim.com or call (231) 492-0171.

Paddle Antrim is a

501(c) 3 non-profit organization created to support efforts to maintain water quality in the rivers, lakes, and streams in Antrim County Michigan. We support investments in water trail infrastructures that facilitate public access to the waterways in Antrim County. We educate the public and promote public awareness of the waterways in Antrim County and the need to preserve and protect these natural resources.

Charlevoix Circle of the Arts hosts adventure artists

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Circle of the Arts will host a pair of exploring Northwestern Michigan artists. The duo will be on hand with a discussion and power point presentation 6:30-7:30 p.m. on Wednesday, June 10.

For more than a year, Kaye Krapohl and photographer Ken Scott explored the perimeter of Leelanau Peninsula rising at 3 a.m., battling negative 30 degree temperatures and facing 20-plus mile per hour winds for a journey that challenged them on multiple levels; balancing the boundaries of each other's artistic space, equipment and Mother Nature's unpredictability — resulted in surprisingly diverse interpretations of each section by the artists.

For more than a year, Kaye Krapohl and photographer Ken Scott explored the perimeter of Leelanau Peninsula.

Light dominates Krapohl's subject matter. Known for her powerful water/landscapes that capture the moody, volatile and peaceful essence of the region's seasonal beauty and light. Some describe her work as something you don't just view, you feel it. The weather, the light, the wetness of an approaching storm. You are on that river, that snowy slope or about to bite into a slice of apple.

An avid outdoor photographer in Northwest Michigan, Ken Scott focuses primarily on capturing the beauty of his home, Leelanau County. Most recently Scott gained national attention for his new book, "Ice Caves of Leelanau," which features some of the images captured during the first few legs of shoreline hike.

Their year-long trek will result in several joint exhibits throughout the region. Krapohl and Scott will be sharing this adventure with a presentation of the images and video created from their hike during the Artist Adventure Lecture Series.

Learn more about Krapohl's art at krapohlfinearts.com or online at krapohlfinearts.com and learn more about Scott at kenscottphotography.com or follow their adventure at Ken Scott Photography on Facebook.

took control and made changes in my life. After your graduation things aren't going to get easier. All of it is temporary, nothing terrible lasts forever so hang in there."

Noah Worgess was awarded a $500 scholarship from the Rainbow Thrift Shop for his academic achievement at Northwest Academy. Son of Brad Worgess and Carol Zipp, Noah plans to attend NMU and major in Wild Land Firefighting, complementing his volunteer work with the Charlevoix Fire Department.

After graduation, Noah plans to move to Florida to take a job with their Division of Forestry.

Daniel Scott, son of Joe Scott, is also headed to NMU for Wild Land Firefighting.

Two graduates will dedicate their lives to serving in the Armed Forces.

Desmond Hunter, son of Kerrie Hunter, will be joining the United States Army after graduation. Desmond participated in student-led clubs such as the Chess Club and Dungeons and Dragons Club.

Eli Schmidt, son of Courtney and Marge Schmidt, plans to join the U.S. Marine Corps and will travel to the San Diego Marine Corps Recruit Depot in the fall.

"I am blessed to have a son like Eli," Courtney said. "I am so proud of the path he has chosen."

pipe. Those pipes have exhausted their lifespan and we are faced with the challenge to improve our system to prevent another year like the last two."

Though actual costs for repairs from this year's winter and spring have yet to be tallied, Elliott estimates that the costs will surpass last year's repairs, which totaled about $500,000. Elliott anticipates the problems to persist into the future if the city does not address the issue of the aging water system.

"These issues will remain until we remove, replace and upgrade the materials currently in the ground," he said.

He also explained that because the pipes are so old that the build-up inside the pipes is restricting the flow of water, which also affects the city's fire service.

"We really don't have a 4-inch pipe flow, we've got maybe a 2-inch pipe depending on how much physical build up is on the inside," Elliott said. "The 4-inch pipe in this condition also is not optimal for fire protection throughout the city."

Elliott suggested that the concept $6 million plan would be the best recommendation if city council chooses to go that route, but he would need more time to work with engineers and city staff to put together a comprehensive plan with actual costs.

City council appeared to agree with Elliott on fixing all of the infrastructure issues in the same 12-block section.

"I think we should do the sewer and water all at once," said Mayor Gabe Campbell. "It does not make sense to just do parts of it and go back later to do another part."

Treasurer Kelly McGinn has done some preliminary numbers with the city's budget and told council using the current infrastructure and road funds could complete this project without asking for another millage.

*Using those funds already coming in for those projects we could very well complete this without going out for another increase from the public," McGinn said. "We still do not know the exact numbers, but we could pay for this."

Council member Bill Supernaw asked if that was the recommendation.

"It's still too early to make a recommendation," McGinn said. "We should do something because we are spending a lot of money fixing broken pipes."

Council member Shirley Gibson believes the residents of Charlevoix want the city to do something about the aging infrastructure.

"I don't believe our residents will object with an immediate plan to address our infrastructure," Gibson said. "The city has neglected these projects in the past and now we need to play catch up. It is time to get this done."

MANAGER

He replaces Rob Strabel, who resigned in February to become city manager of Petoskey. Heydlauff will be paid $84,000 in salary, including approximately 21 percent of his annual salary into a directed retirement plan plus, professional development allowances.

Heydlauff said he isn't bringing any agenda of his own to the Charlevoix manager's job. The first order of business he said is to meet with city council members and residents to assess the community's needs. As for his leadership position in the city, Heydlauff said community involvement in the decision-making process is a priority, as is giving his staff the latitude to solve the city's problems.

"Each department head brings their own expertise," Heydlauff said. "Pat Elliott wouldn't want me out in a plow truck nor would the electric people want out stringing wires. My goal is to take the expertise that each department has and go in the direction that is right for Charlevoix."

He said he will handle the details of city so that the city council is free to concentrate on policy. He suggested that although Charlevoix may have its share of disagreements, they aren't impossible.

"There isn't a place I've found where you don't have disagreements within the community," Heydlauff said. "It shows me this community is engaged, which is a good thing because the people care about their city."

GRADUATES

where they spoke about how each student's path will not be the same as another.

"For some that could be becoming a missionary or starting their own business and for others, it could be becoming a master chef or creating the world's first hover car," Schwein said.

"Let's leave our comfort zones so we can become the exceptional people we've been billed to be. Charlevoix has given us an amazing foundation, now we've got to go out in the world and build upon that."

Hodges said she hoped the Charlevoix Class of 2015 would remember what they have learned while attending school here.

"May we go out and achieve great things," Hodges said. "No matter how big, or how small we will all impact someone or something if we have the confidence to try."

Commencement speaker Luther Kurtz shared some of his life experiences to the Charlevoix High School class of 2015. His address encouraged seniors to never give up on their dreams and to find the way to make them come true.

"Twenty years ago I was sitting where you are today wondering what I was going to do," Kurtz said. "I had a different path than most of my fellow graduates, but I later learned that you do not have to be defined by what other people think is important, by your grades in high school, whether you business works or not ... you can define yourselves any way you want to."

As part of that definition, Kurtz encouraged students to keep dreaming about what they would like to do in this life, what they want to become and what kind of person they want to be. He challenged students to start working toward developing the courage to believe enough in themselves to fulfill their dreams.

"Every one of you is going to face challenges while you're achieving your goals whether you go to college now, later or never," Kurtz said. "As you walk out these doors with the amazing foundation given to you by the staff and teachers at the Charlevoix High School find a way to believe your dreams are possible. I guarantee you they are rooting for you to succeed in your dreams and goals."

Momentum runs out for Charlevoix In district final loss to Mancelona

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 438-9343
jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

MANCELONA — Momentum can be a double-edged sword in all sports, and baseball is no exception.

Charlevoix had plenty of the coveted but intangible quality during a 21-4 stretch heading into the district title game Monday at Mancelona against the host Ironmen, but the Rayders' run came to an abrupt halt against another hungry and streaking team in a 4-2 loss.

The Ironmen rallied from a 2-0 deficit with three two-out runs in the fifth and sixth innings, with Brandon Dingman driving in the go-ahead run on a single in the sixth inning.

Mancelona would add a crucial insurance run in the seventh as well, and although the Rayders got the winning run to the plate in the bottom of the inning, they couldn't cash in on runners on first and second to extend the game.

"When they tied it in the fifth, I think we felt like we were still okay with the position we were in," Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof said. "When they tacked on that run in the sixth, it hurt, and that fourth run in the seventh was really critical, because it took away some options for us offensively in the final inning."

"If it was still 3-2, we could deploy a bunt or be more aggressive running the bases, which is our specialty, but down two runs we needed to conserve our outs and that made it a lot tougher to generate offense."

Complicating matters for the Rayders was a Mancelona team that seemed to gain energy and intensity with every hit and every out on defense as the game wore on.

"They really took the momentum away from us, and Mancelona got more up as the game wore on," Telgenhof said. "They're a very good team, fundamentally sound and well-coached, and their pitcher threw a great curveball that we were never really able to figure out."

"I told Mancelona's coach that if that kid could take his curveball, bottle it and sell it, he'd be rich, because it's one of the best we've seen."

Charlevoix got the lead in the third inning, when Noah Certa hit a single that scored Alex Kleiber and KeNen Borths. Certa finished with two of the Rayders' five hits in the outing to lead Charlevoix offensively.

Borths took the loss for the Rayders in relief of Hunter Cox, and Nate Moon also pitched two innings.

All together, the Rayder pitchers struck out four, walked five and gave up four runs on six hits.

Charlevoix's season-ending loss came right on the heels of one of the Rayders' biggest wins of the season, an 8-3 victory over rival Boyne City in the semifinal.

The Rayders broke a scoreless tie through four innings with three runs in the fifth, starting with Borths reaching home from third on a balk call.

Will Telgenhof followed that run with an RBI double on the next at-bat, then scored on a throwing error to help the Rayders take a 3-0 lead.

Charlevoix tacked on two more runs in the fifth when Christian Matye doubled to score Austin Putman, then made it to home plate himself on another Boyne City throwing error.

"We talk all about the time about how important the little things are today, and you saw that with the balk call," Boyne City coach Mark Pontoni said. "My players weren't happy about that, and by the time they'd shaken it off we'd given up two more runs."

"We lost our focus and our composure, and that's just not Boyne baseball."

The Ramblers pulled their way back into the game in the bottom of the sixth, when senior Max Cuper hit a three-run home run to cut the lead to two, but the Rayders were able to score three runs in the top of the seventh to blunt Boyne City's comeback attempt.

Down five, Boyne City loaded the bases with Cuper up to bat, but Moon, the Charlevoix ace, was able to strike him out to seal the 8-3 victory.

"When Cuper hit the home run, what a moment for us," Pontoni said. "When that ball went over the fence, I thought that this was the turning point, and we were going to win the game."

Charlevoix's Christian Matye (1) moves to cut off Boyne City's Dalton Gardner as Gardner attempts to steal second base during the Rayders' 8-3 win over the Ramblers in the district semifinal on Monday in Mancelona.

"Credit Nate Moon, he's a tough pitcher and he did a great job in that last inning, and we once again just threw the ball away to give some runs back in the top of the seventh. You can't do that when you're behind and expect to pull it out."

Moon struck out six, walked three and gave up three runs on seven hits in the complete game victory while adding a double at the plate, Matye finished with two doubles, Putman and Certa chipped in a single and a double, and Will Telgenhof added a double as well.

"I know it's not going to matter to anyone on the bus after the championship game, but I was really proud of the way we played in the first game," coach Telgenhof said. "Other than the home run, Nate was in control for the entire game, and I was really happy with the way we came back with three runs after the home run."

"I thought we were focused and played well the entire day; things just didn't go our way in the championship."

Mancelona reached the final by beating East Jordan 10-0 in the other semifinal.

The loss in the finals means that Charlevoix must bid farewell to a large class of seniors that played big roles in the most successful four-year stretch in school history at 95-41 overall, one that included two Lake Michigan Conference titles and a district title in 2013.

The Rayders (27-12) graduate eight, including three four-year players in Certa, Telgenhof and Moon and starters Borths and Devin Largent.

Contributors Adam and Andrew Michaud and Spencer Stewart also move on for the Rayders.

"Not too long ago, baseball was an afterthought at Charlevoix," coach Telgenhof said. "These guys are part of a run that has set high standards for this program and turned Charlevoix into a baseball school, and I think that's something to be proud of."

Moon departs with school records in career wins (25), hits (140), RBIs (119) and stolen bases (86), while teammate Certa holds the career record in runs scored at 129.

This year's seniors will be tough to replace, but the Rayders should remain in contention next year thanks to a strong group of juniors and sophomores, including pitcher Hunter Cox and lineup linchpins Austin Putman, Brad Klinger and Christian Matye.

Charlevoix's Noah Certa slides into home plate during the Rayders' 8-3 win over Boyne City in the district semifinal on Monday in Mancelona.

Six track and field athletes earn all-state honors at D3 State Final

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 438-9343
jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

COMSTOCK PARK — The Charlevoix track and field program brought a successful season to a close at the Division 3 state final Saturday in Comstock Park, taking home several medals in the process.

Six Charlevoix athletes earned all-state honors at Saturday's final, starting with senior Amber Way, who finished second behind East Jordan's Kayla Keane in the girls 3,200 run.

Despite being sidelined with injuries for most of her senior track season, Way, the 2014 Division 3 state champion in the 3,200 run, battled back to return to the state final and ran a respectable 10:57.53 to earn runner-up honors.

That time was especially impressive given the lack of training and mileage Way, who is committed to run for Michigan State in the fall, had under her belt entering the race because of the time she missed from injuries.

Charlevoix's boys team also had two relays earn all-state honors. The Rayders' 1,600 relay team of Jared McLean, Kevin Pearl, Micah Peebles, and Nick Plude overcame a low seeding that kept them out of the fast heat by running a 3:29.13 against the clock in a slower heat to take runner-up honors in the race.

McLean, Peebles, and Plude also teamed up with Parker Elowsky to earn all-state honors in the 800 relay, taking sixth overall (1:32.26).

The trio of McLean, Peebles and Plude that earned all-state honors on both relays were also a part of a sixth-place 800 relay with Benjamin Pataki at last year's Division 3 state final, making this the second straight year those three earned all-state honors, and the fourth straight year for Plude, who was also a part of a 3,200 relay that finished fifth in 2013.

Plude also finished ninth in the 800 run (1:57.91) for Charlevoix, Sam Hovie took 13th in the pole vault (12-0), and Bryan Noirot finished 19th in the long jump (19-1.25).

Charlevoix's boys 3,200 relay team finished 23rd overall (8:36.26), while the girls 3,200 relay squad took 10th (10:05.82).

Battling through injuries all season, Charlevoix senior Amber Way finished her track and field career with one more all-state honor, taking second in the 3,200 run at the Division 3 state final Saturday in Comstock Park.

Charlevoix's Micah Peebles (left) and Jared McLean were on two all-state relays for the Rayders at Saturday's Division 3 track and field state final in Comstock Park, running on the runner-up 1,600 relay and the sixth-place 800 relay.

Egg prices on the rise

Avian flu causing shortage that's impacting local businesses, retailers

MALACHIE BARRETT
(269) 339-8374 • mbarrett@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Instead of losing the yolk, it may be better to cut eggs out of the diet entirely. Historic outbreaks of avian influenza have caused the price of poultry-related products to increase drastically, putting a burden on local restaurants. A majority of the business at Judy's Family Restaurant in Charlevoix comes from their breakfast and brunch menu. "It's summertime, that's where we make our money so we raise our prices anyway," said owner Sonja Etnarowski. "We haven't increased prices due to (the price increase) and we probably won't. We'll just take a little bit of a loss through it all." Sherry Bender, owner of the Charlevoix Flapjack Family Restaurant, said she worries what the current situation will do for her business. She plans to raise menu prices in the next several weeks. "It will be a real disaster, people are used to paying a certain amount for their eggs and now I have to charge them more money," Bender said. Paul Weaver, owner of The Bistro In Petoskey, says he pays twice as much for a case of 15 dozen eggs than what he was able to get from his distributor two weeks ago, going from around $18 to $42 per case. Liquid eggs, products that destroy the avian flu virus in the pasteurization process, can't even be delivered, Weaver said, because his distributor can't guarantee their availability. "It eats my profit and in the food business, especially with a liquor license, you run a thin margin," Weaver said. The latest strain of avian influenza has infected more than 38 million hens, turkeys and fryers at farms in 20 states. Michigan recorded its first case of the virus in three, free-ranging Canadian-goslings collected in Sterling Heights. The Department of Agriculture and Rural Development canceled all live exhibitions of poultry and waterfowl in the state last week. Gordon Food Services and

Film screening

A memorable evening for guests

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — More than 400 people filled the three auditoriums at the Charlevoix Cinema III on Monday to see the documentary "The Wizard of Boulder Park." So many people showed up that the theater held another showing at 9:30 p.m. "We just couldn't turn anyone away," said owner Mary Kurtz. The documentary focused on the life and works of Earl Young, a self-taught builder who created 31 of the world's most unique homes and structures in Charlevoix using glacial boulders culled from the Northern Michigan landscape. Produced and directed by three-time Emmy-award-winning documentary filmmakers Brian and Anne Belanger of Bon Ami filmworks, the film presented authentic stories and perspectives of Earl Young's work from the viewpoint of historians, architects, current homeowners, friends and family members. For Lowell and Sharon Blossom, who live in the Virginia Olsen home, granddaughter of Earl Young, the documentary was very well done.

Repairs not an immediate priority

CHARLEVOIX — Repairs to the Robert Bridge Memorial Park building that houses three businesses in Charlevoix's Marina district are not an immediate priority for the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority/ Main Street board and city officials. Charlevoix Department of Public Works superintendent Pat Elliott said his evaluation of the building found one problem that needs to be addressed immediately. "The only item I found that should be addressed sooner than later is the peeling wallpaper near the base of the two pillars adjacent the entry doors," Elliott said. "There may be a small moisture problem in these areas."

Weathervane exhibit highlights Earl Young legacy

CHARLEVOIX — The story of Earl A. Young comes to life one photo at a time in an exhibit on display in Young's former office inside the Weathervane Restaurant. "The Earl Young Legacy" exhibit highlights the unique works of Young from when he arrives in Charlevoix to building his iconic stone houses. "The exhibit tells his story — a true story," said Jennifer Harsha-Carroll, great-niece of Irene Harsha, wife of Young. "From the beginning to end, the exhibit shares Young's story." The exhibit is the result of a culmination of events that started when Harsha-Carroll, and David Miles, co-chair of Charlevoix Historical Society's Harsha House Museum, were discussing the release of "The Wizard of Boulder Park," a documentary film, which premiered on Monday, June 8, at the Cinema III, in Charlevoix. Local middle schools learn about water conservation

(269) 339-8374 mbarrett@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Roughly 350 students from various middle schools in Charlevoix County learned about water science on Lake Charlevoix with hands-on demonstrations sponsored by the Lake Charlevoix Association, Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council and Beaver Island Boat Company. The students participated in seven stations that educated on topics ranging from invasive species to testing lake water quality and the role of watersheds. "We want to, through education, teach and inspire the next generation to be good protectors of the Lake Charlevoix Watershed," said Tip of the Mitt Water Resource Specialist Dan Myers. Students were ferried to the middle of Lake Charlevoix by the Beaver Island Boat Company where they floated and cycled through the stations staffed by volunteers.

Fifth, sixth and seventh graders from Charlevoix, Boyne City, Boyne Falls, Concord Academy Boyne, St. Mary's School and Northwest Academy participated on May 19 and 20. East Jordan usually participates, but was unable to attend this year.

The demonstrations tackled a wide variety of water conservation issues.

Using a watershed model, students learned what a watershed is and how land use activities impact water quality in Lake Charlevoix.

"When they are on the boat, (students) learn what they can do to curb pollution and problems with invasive species," Myers said. "We have a plastic landscape and asked kids where they would find various pollutants represented by hot chocolate or Gatorade. The kids covered the landscape and they make it rain by using a spray bottle to simulate a storm. Then they could watch as a mixture of all water mixed and flowed into streams and lakes in the model."

Among other activities, students collected water samples to learn about the pH scale and why neutral pH is important for healthy aquatic ecosystems.

Students also learned what ground water is, how it moves, what threatens it and how keeping it clean helps Lake Charlevoix.

Tip of the Mitt provides educational outreach opportunities throughout the year. Students from five high schools presented watershed research projects on Saturday, June 6, in the North Central Michigan College Library Conference Room.

The high school students participated in five sessions since February teaching them about watershed pollution, chemical testing, how to identify macro invertebrates used to detect contamination, and how to monitor stream locations.

"Each school was assigned to a local watershed to monitor a stream and on Saturday we are holding the academy summit," said Tip of the Mitt member Mackenzie Dix. "This is the culminating event where they present research and tell the story of their watershed. They talk about the history of the area and make some suggestions about how to improve the water quality."

The program is in its first year. Dix said the plan is to have 12 schools involved by fall 2016.

"We noticed that there was a lack of education for practical skills to look at water quality monitoring (in high schools)," Dix said. "The goal was to work to educate students who are interested in practical science and expose them to what we are doing at Tip of the Mitt."

Charlevoix Township approves contract for Venetian Festival

MALACH BARRETT
(269) 339-8374 mbarrett@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Highlighting economic benefits provided by the Charlevoix Venetian Festival, the Charlevoix Township Board of Commissioners unanimously approved a $7,500 contract to help cover event expenses.

Venetian Games President Dan Barron appealed to the board for the contract, stating it was extremely helpful in making the eight-day festival possible. Barron cited the cost of closing Bridge Street for the festival finale nights in downtown Charlevoix, a move regarded as a successful feature to the 2014 festival, as one of the larger expenses. Charlevoix City council and Venetian Festival organizers paid about $5,650 to rent state-required traffic signs last year.

"Charlevoix Township has been so generous to support the Venetian Festival for years," Barron said. "Things get more expensive over time and we raise more money every year. We're trying to make (the festival) the best we can for people locally."

Charlevoix Township's previous contract was a three-year agreement to distribute $7,000 in support, which Barron said has been beneficial for planning purposes. Barron said community members made more than $200,000 in private donations this year.

"We have not quantified (the economic benefits) but it is enormous for our businesses and over 100,000 people attend the events," Barron said. "It's an enormous sense of community pride that a small town can put this on, it is a unifying thing for our community."

Township Supervisor Chuck Center touched on the success of the festival in the past, stating that residents from both the city and township benefit from dollars spent during the event. He said the contract was an "investment" in that success.

The board also approved a motion to apply for a $10,000 grant for the Lake to Lake Multi-Use Trail. The joint grant will provide $10,000 from the city and township each. The trail connects the Charlevoix trail to the Little Traverse Wheelway in Petoskey. Further development of the trail also is planned.

Plans for a dog park were discussed, though no action items were passed. Center said the board was uneasy approving the park in May after Brian Thurston presented the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality's concerns about contamination issues with well water at the proposed location near the township fire department south of Charlevoix.

Conceptual drawings created by Performance Engineers Inc. were presented to officials at the April meeting, which placed the approximate size for the park at 28,000 square feet. DEQ officials suggested having protections around the wells and the tower, which trustee Nancy Rejewski said is in the process of receiving bids.

Center said the board is considering moving the park to three acres of land at the corner of Walker and Martin Road, space proposed for the site of a new fire station.

Charlevoix Township resident John Haggard expressed concerns over the cost of developing the land, specifically possible tree removal.

Treasurer Theda Williams delivered her report to the board, stating that the general fund $1.17 million at the end of May.

LETTERS to the editor

More Kids should try 'Young Americans'

Dear Editor:
I believe more kids should join and try the Young Americans. I have chosen the Young Americans as my topic so more people will like dancing and trying new things. The Young Americans are important to me because they are an awesome group of people and are a good example to many people — mostly kids.

Every time I do a Young American workshop/camp there are more than 100 kids there. I knew that they would be a great example in my life. The Young Americans should be important to others because they could be a great role model for your child in their lifetime. As you are doing a camp or workshop you can make new friends and have fellowship. The Young Americans should also be important to others because you learn how to sing and dance. You also can have fun if you try. They also help you get out of your comfort zone and get out there a little more, and try new things.

You should agree with trying the Young Americans because they can really help your child from being lazy and mean, to active and happy. I have had experience from when I did camps and workshops. I have changed from the inside. It will be a blast, sign up NOW while you have the chance for summer camps.

Sincerely,
Kyri Titus, Charlevoix Elementary School fifth-grade student

Poppies, poppies everywhere

As the story goes, the head groundskeeper of a famous British estate — think

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

Downton Abbey — was complemented on the beautiful and expansive lawn. When asked how such uniform beauty was accomplished, he is reported to have said, "You plant good grass and then roll it and mow it for 400 years." I have neither the time or the aesthetic for such a process.

My lawn is not used as a croquet court, nor a golf green. It has no grazing sheep. It is merely to be looked at. That being the case, some three-dimensional features are important. They could be weeds or they could be almost anything else.

Some years ago I purchased a few seeds of what was billed as an Arctic Poppy. I planted them in the corner of the yard and they have thrived. They have 3-inch, peach-colored blossoms and produce enormous quantities of seed. They are perennial. They almost dominate my back yard. I cannot mow them down each spring. I can only mow places where they have not yet started to grow, and such places are fewer each year. I confess to spreading some of the seed around each late summer, but the plants do that by themselves as well.

That part of the back yard looks a little patchy. But last week the first peachy bloom opened, and a few days later there were a half-dozen companion blooms. Within another week there will be fifty blooms showing even though they last for only one day each.

The poppies have not yet made it the front yard, but there is a European Primrose that is accomplishing the same take-over. Each year there are more plants, and they too are perennial. I look forward to not mowing that part of the lawn. Maybe I will just declare it a flowerbed and not worry about it anymore. Both of those beautiful flowers could be called a weed if my definition of lawn were stricter.

One of my yard's wild flowers is actually called a lawn and golf course weed by Ed Voss in Michigan flora volumes. The English daisy, or in Latin, Bellis perennis is also spreading in my lawn. And even years from now when some more diligent mower might own this property and mow more thoroughly, the tiny daisy plants will still be here. They tolerate mowing very well, and have been in Michigan lawns since 1896.

Any one of my lawn flowers could be considered an alien and even invasive plant, but we need not worry about them. They came to beautify Michigan not invade her.

Social Security has a zero-tolerance Policy

VONDA VANTIL
Social Security Public Affairs Specialist

Social Security has a zero-tolerance policy for fraud.

In tandem with local law enforcement, we pursue criminals who cheat the system by collecting benefits that they're not owed. This might be as subtle as someone intentionally failing to report income and resources or that they live with their spouse, which can result in incorrect payments. Fraud might take the form of someone claiming to be disabled when, in reality, they continue to work. These examples are why we also rely on you — the American public — to report fraud when you see it.

While we can't prevent every instance of fraud any more than the most effective law enforcement agency can prevent all crime, we aggressively investigate and pursue prosecution of those who try to cheat and steal from the system. Our message to those who would defraud Social Security is clear: We will find you; we will prosecute you; we will seek the maximum punishment allowable under the law; and we will fight to restore the money you've stolen from the American people.

We impose stiff penalties to discourage people from committing fraud. We monitor cases closely, and we have sophisticated tools to help us predict where and when fraud may occur so we can catch it early — often before it happens.

Social Security takes fraud seriously, and so should you. In the same way that you might keep a keen eye out for suspicious activity that might harm our nation, we encourage you to keep an eye out for potential Social Security fraud. Some of our most vulnerable citizens — the elderly, disabled children and war veterans, as well as the chronically ill — are counting on you. If you suspect someone is committing Social Security fraud, report it online at oig.ssa.gov/report or call the Social Security Fraud Hotline at (800) 269-0271.

CHARLEVOIX
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

This photo comes from one of 184 glass plate negatives, once in the possession of the Charlevoix Courier, that were recently donated to the Charlevoix Historical Society. It shows the railroad siding that branched off from the main tracks and led to the east side of the freight depot that stood on a site close to the far end of today's Depot Beach parking lot. The original wooden sidewalk, seen here, was later replaced by brick. At night, the water tower used to stand almost beside the train depot and tracks. But when The Inn hotel was opened by the railroad on the terrace above at the end of East Dixon in 1898, the company did not want its hotel guests to descend the staircase from the terrace to the depot grounds only to run into an ungainly water tower that blocked the view of Lake Charlevoix. So they moved the tower and its pump house several yards northwest and out of the way. In order to supply water to steam trains, a thin pillar was installed beside the tracks, seen just to the left of the depot's bay window, to which water was pumped to, up through, and out of a long spigot that was swung over a locomotive's water tank. Behind the pillar, at the end of the tracks, can be seen the open railroad bridge on the upper channel, not taken out until 1983. The depot is now in the possession of the Charlevoix Historical Society, and is on the National Register of Historic Places.

Sheriff's Office seeks contributions for new canine

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office is actively seeking contributions for its K9 program. The previous police dog, Brek, passed away in December and a replacement has yet to be found.

Sheriff Don Schneider stated that the cost for a police dog is in the neighborhood of $15,000.

"Police dogs perform many tasks for the sheriff's office," Schneider said. "They help with criminal investigations, but most importantly, they are invaluable when looking for lost or missing persons."

For those not familiar with the Police K9 program, the amount of training for certification that a police dog must endure is brutal. Those that are certified possess a unique skill set that allows the K9 program to accomplish their mission without distraction, under any condition.

The K9 unit is partially self-sustaining and must rely on contributions and fundraisers to continue. For more information on how you can help the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office K9 program, contact Schneider at (231) 547-4461 or email at schneiderd@charlevoix-county.org.

Stanley P. Kellogg Award winning storyteller to give first-person account of his life and work CHARLEVOIX — Battle Creek storyteller, Dick Strader, will be in Charlevoix to deliver a presentation on the life and work of his late father-in-law, noted sculptor and Petoskey native, Stanley P. Kellogg. Strader will speak from 6:30-7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Aug. 20, at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, 109 Clinton St., in Charlevoix.

Stanley Price Kellogg became impressed with a statue of Abraham Lincoln created for the Petoskey Winter Carnival Ice throne in 1931. It challenged him to create "King Winter" an ice throne depicting the aurora borealis in 1933 for that year's winter carnival. It was 14 feet high and there were 5-foot polar bears on either side of the steps leading up to the throne. The ice was taken from Little Traverse Bay.

Kellogg was widely known for his artistic work for more than 40 years in Northern Michigan. He developed a material known as Kellostone from which he created fish, especially trout, that looked so real many thought they were mounted fish. He also created thousands of pieces of what he called sculptured pottery, many of which have become collectors' items today. Kellogg was most famous for his one-of-a-kind personalized pottery on which he painted people's names or pictures of cottages. These became favorite gifts for weddings or anniversary celebrations.

Kellogg is also remembered for his portraits, fountains and yard sculpture. The large ceramic horse that resides in the reference room of the Petoskey Public Library once stood in front of the Kellogg studio on Charlevoix Avenue. Works of bronze now grace a stone outside of the Carnegie building in downtown Petoskey and a position at the Interlochen Academy for the Arts. Kellogg also created portraits of other famous people such as John F. Kennedy, J.C. Penney and Charles Mott.

Strader's first person account complements the Stanley Kellogg exhibit that is housed on the lower level gallery at The Charlevoix Circle of the Arts from Aug. 11 to Sept. 30.

Strader, a member of the National Storytelling Network, served for several years on the board of directors for the Northlands Storytelling Network. He received the prestigious NSN Midwest division Oracle Award in 2003 for his contributions to the greater storytelling community.

Charlevoix Little Leaguers to learn from pros at clinic

MALACH BARRETT
(269) 339-8374 mbarrett@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Little leaguers can hone their skills alongside former Major League Baseball players from 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Sunday, June 28, at Shanahan Field, 12491 Waller Road in Charlevoix.

The free clinic for boys and girls ages 6-17 features six former professionals, including four players on Detroit Tigers. Erin Nickel, Charlevoix Little League information officer, said athletes are encouraged to dress as if they are playing in a game. Water and bats will be provided, however a glove is required.

"The kids love it, they really look forward to it and the timing is great this year because the kids will be in baseball mode," Nickel said.

Participants will cycle through stations run by an MLB alumnus that covers fundamental skills including batting, fielding, pitching and base-running. The clinic is followed by autographs and a free lunch.

Former New York Yankees Pitcher Dennis Rasmussen started the clinic three years ago after moving to Charlevoix to run the Dairy Grille on Bridge Street. The 13-year MLB alumnus was heavily involved with the Major League Baseball Players Alumni Association and wanted to bring an event to his community.

"I wanted to give back and help the kids learn how to be a big league ball player and everything that goes along with it," Rasmussen said. "We were kids at one point with a dream so we want to extend that dream to the kids and show them that they can make it. At a minimum they get a chance to improve their skills and have some fun."

He said the best part of the clinic is the life advice kids gain from the former pros.

"At the end of all the guys talk about life skills and tell the kids to keep dreaming and having fun, and the importance of education," Rasmussen said. "The message that we all heard and believe in wholeheartedly is that sports will teach you a lot of lessons like what it means to be a part of a team and work together."

Players include former Detroit Tiger Darrell Evans, Jon Warden, Roger Mason and Dave Gumpert, as well as member of the '96 World Series Champion New York Yankees team Scott Kamieniecki and former Milwaukee Braves Catcher Bruce Look. Evans and Warden both helped win World Series Championships for Detroit.

The event has grown each year, Nickel said. Organizers encourage athletes from all over the state to participate. "We want kids to come from all over, this is likely the only clinic like this in Michigan," she said.

A reception will take place 6-9 p.m. Sunday, June 28, in the Lange Center at Bay Harbor Yacht Club where participants can meet the MLB alumni and participate in silent and live auctions.

Reception tickets cost $50 per person and can be purchased at the Dairy Grille on 1111 Bridge St. in Charlevoix, through the Bay Harbor Foundation or by mailing checks payable to the Charlevoix Little League P.O. Box 587, Charlevoix, MI 49720.

Charlevoix Library's book group discusses "Shotgun Lovesongs"

CHARLEVOIX — BookTalkers, the Charlevoix Public Library's book discussion group, is reading "Shotgun Lovesongs" by Nickolas Butler, and will host a discussion at 6 p.m. on Monday, June 15, in the Armstrong Conference Room.

It's a place like hundreds of others, but for four boyhood friends — all born and raised in a small Wisconsin town — it is home. One of them never left, still working the family farm, but the others felt the need to move on. One trades commodities, another took to the rodeo circuit. One of them hit it big as a rock star. And then there's Beth, a woman who has meant something special in each of their lives. This debut novel by Butler evokes a specific time and place, yet movingly describes the universal human condition.

BookTalkers is a group of readers who love to read different books that may challenge or delight. They gather monthly for lively discussions. Looking ahead, BookTalkers will discuss "The Martian" by Andy Weir on July 20 and "Not My Father's Son" by actor and writer Alan Cumming on Aug. 17. The BookTalkers meet at 6 p.m. on the third Monday of each month. New members are welcome.

For discussion questions, visit charlevoixlibrary.org/books-movies-music/book-discussions. For more information, call (231) 237-7340 and ask for Beth.

Library hosting program on supplements, how they interact with prescriptions

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Library offers the upcoming program, "Vitamins, Supplements and Medicines Oh My!" at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, June 16. Librarian Susan Kroll will explain what happens when we use vitamins and supplements to improve our life,

Many of these "complementary medicines" interact with prescription medicines we are taking and food we are eating. It is important to know what these interactions are and how to avoid them. She will share resources and information that will help people make sound decisions. After the presentation, participants will have the opportunity to receive personalized information.

Kroll is a former medical librarian at Ohio State University and currently works at the Charlevoix Public Library. She has presented several programs in Charlevoix on how to find and use reliable medical information.

The library is located at 220 W. Clinton St., in downtown Charlevoix. For more information about this or other library events, visit charlevoixlibrary.org.

American Red Cross urges summer blood donations

CHARLEVOIX — There are 100 days of summer, and the American Red Cross urges eligible donors to choose their day to give blood and help ensure a sufficient blood supply.

Summer is a difficult time to collect enough blood to meet patient needs. Nearly 90 percent of donors surveyed this past spring said they plan to take a vacation during summer months, potentially making them less available to give. In addition, many schools that host blood drives are out of session in the summer. But the need for blood donations is constant. Every two seconds someone in the U.S. needs blood.

Donors of all blood types — especially those with types O negative, A negative and B negative — are needed. The Red Cross must collect 15,000 blood donations every day to meet the needs of patients at approximately 2,600 hospitals and transfusion centers nationwide.

To make an appointment to give blood, download the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit redcrossblood.org or call (800) 733-2767.

Current blood donor events for Charlevoix are:

— Boyne Falls, from noon to 5:45 p.m. on Friday, June 19, at Boyne Falls School, 01662 S. M-75.

— Boyne City from noon to 5:45 p.m. on Monday, June 22, at St. Matthew Catholic Church, 1303 Boyne Ave.

Local woman finds balance in reflexology

LONGIE ALLEN
(231) 547-4558 - allen@chcz.com

CHARLEVOIX — She never expected to fall in love with overall wellness, but Kim Cox's journey began by seeking help for stress related health issues that led her to a career in reflexology.

"About once a month I would get massage therapy to relieve stress," Cox said. "The therapist did some reflexology on me. I felt so much relief. I got a real good sense of overall well-being and wanted to learn more."

There is evidence of some form of foot and hand therapy being practiced in China as long ago as 4,000 B.C. and also at the same time in Egypt. The North American tribes of Indians are known to have practiced a form of foot therapy for hundreds of years, according to the National Institute of Reflexology.

Reflexology is a type of natural alternative therapy given to the feet that helps improve the function and balance of the body, Cox said.

"We have more than 7,000 nerves in the feet," she said. "Scientifically these nerves connect to everything within the body. Foot reflexology is literally speaking to those organs, legs, joints all of that, from the feet."

Cox found that reflexology was the best thing to relieve her stress and decided to spread the love by reaching out to area residents suffering from medical conditions, depression or old-fashioned stress by offering an alternative therapy focused on relaxation. She hosts her services in a private room inside Well Being Day Spa, at 108 Mason St., in downtown Charlevoix.

"It's nice to practice in the town I live in," Cox said. "It's all about wellness and it's the very best thing for relieving stress."

Cox received her diploma for reflexology from Sterling Heights Center for Healing Arts, where she learned about all the different body systems and practiced the different healing techniques on people while attending school. She also uses essential oils and 12 carrier oils for her therapy sessions.

Cox uses this form of therapy to work with pressure points, too, and is a Young Living Oils distributor. By blending the oils together for specific medical conditions and using them to stimulate nerve endings in the feet, Cox claims she can help correct imbalances in the body.

"Basically when I work on somebody's hands and feet it helps body initiate its own healing mechanism," Cox said. "You just don't know how much better you will feel until you have it done."

Several studies funded by the National Cancer Institute and the National Institutes of Health indicate that reflexology may reduce pain and psychological symptoms, such as anxiety and depression, and enhance relaxation and sleep. Studies also show that reflexology may have benefits in palliative care of people with cancer, according to lead author Gwen Wyatt, a professor in the College of Nursing at Michigan State University.

Reflexologists claim that reflexology also can treat a wide variety of medical conditions, such as asthma, diabetes and cancer. However, scientific evidence is lacking to support these claims, but Cox is convinced on its healing powers.

"It does work because I had it done to me and it helped," Cox said. "This is one of the most popular methods for alternative relaxation."

Her hours are Monday through Friday 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m. to noon, by appointment. It cost $30 for each half hour session and $50 for 50-minute session.

CHAMBER REPORT

Alison Hubbard

column for the Charlevoix Courier and look forward to keeping residents informed about what we do in Charlevoix County. The Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is a nonprofit organization with more than 440 business and individual members, and growing strong. Our mission is to support commerce and provide leadership to enhance the quality of life.

The chamber's role in the community is to provide marketing resources, economic development services and chamber of commerce benefits to businesses and nonprofits in the Charlevoix Area. Collectively, these efforts provide numerous benefits to organizations — from advocacy to programming, and from networking to economic development.

We have been busy preparing for our summer programming and assisting the city in the implementation of the Main Street Program. As I head into my second season on the job, I am excited for the summer and the opportunities that lie ahead.

Charlevoix merchants will be celebrating the arrival of the summer season on Monday, June 22, from 5 to 9 p.m. at our fourth annual Merchant Open House. Participating shops and restaurants will extend a warm welcome to all by offering great deals, prize drawings, specials, snacks, activities, refreshments and more. Enjoy musical entertainment on the sidewalks during the event. Post event, please join us for the first free movie in East Park. "Paddington" rated PG, bring your blankets, chairs and snacks for a fun-filled night.

Next up is our Summer Art Show, Saturday, June 27, and Sunday, June 28, in East Park. The Summer Art Show, features 90 vendors with a mix of fine art and fine crafts displayed on the shores of Round Lake. The Up North Vocal Institute will perform a free concert from 6:30-8:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 27, in the Odmark Pavilion in East Park. So after you enjoy the art show, be sure to stick around for a beautiful, classical vocal performance!

As for advocacy, the House and the Senate has passed the 2015-16 budget, and it is on its way to the governor's desk. The chamber alliance did well this year with our advocacy efforts relative to our budget priorities. The Northern Michigan Chamber Alliance for which the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce is a partner, is based on the premise that many legislative issues impact Northern Michigan's Upper and Northern Lower region in similar ways. These issues should be addressed regionally to maximize the political influence of this 14-county chamber alliance and its more than 6,500 members. The alliance is comprised of the Alpena Area Chamber of Commerce, Benzie County Chamber of Commerce, Cadillac Area Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, Gaylord Area Chamber of Commerce, The Lake Superior Community Partnership, Petoskey Regional Chamber of Commerce, and Traverse City Area Chamber of Commerce. The alliance has identified legislative areas that should be monitored and advocated to elected officials on the local, state, and federal levels.

Lastly, I look forward to sharing in a future article how the chamber will work with the Main Street program to assist in the revitalization of our downtown through community participation in economic development and historic preservation. The challenges presented by our seasonality are very real to our business community and the overall economic health of our community. Creating a "year-round" economy and closing the gap between the winter and summer seasons remain a top goal for our chamber.

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

The Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company and Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce held the new brew pub's ribbon cutting ceremony on Wednesday, June 10. The brewery opened for business on June 1 and was a co-sponsor of the second annual Charlevoix Craft Beer festival on June 5 and 6. The pub features a pub menu, indoor/outdoor dining and a variety of craft beers on tap along with live entertainment on different nights of the week.

Chew receives Kiwanis Club's Distinguished Service Award

CHARLEVOIX — At the June 9 Charlevoix Kiwanis Club meeting, the club successfully surprised Mary Ann Chew with its Distinguished Service Award. The recognition was first established five years ago, under the guidance of Ed Buday, to bestow favor on an individual who gave freely of their time enriching the youth of Charlevoix.

It's interesting to note that Chew began her Charlevoix teaching career as a fourth grade teacher in the same building which now is home to the Charlevoix Public Library. She has given back to the community her love of reading, art and dedication to hard work, officials said.

Throughout her 30 years of teaching fourth grade she continued to remain involved with major decisions that affected staff and students alike. She was the first K-12 Curriculum Chairperson, shortly after taking on the chair position for the Charlevoix Schools Enrichment Foundation. She continues to remain involved with the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair, the Charlevoix Library Board and Friends of the Library. Past students of Mary Ann reflected on her creative classroom projects and her ability to make each of them feel special.

for the Summer Book Sale that garners up to $5,000. A sale of gently used books throughout the year brings in an additional $14,000. Next month will be her last term on the Library board of trustees. She is looking forward to continuing to help with the Friends of the Library and its books sales. The Kiwanis Club of Charlevoix applauds all she has done and was pleased to surprise her with this award.

Ellsworth to have annual Pig Roast

ELLSWORTH — Ellsworth will again hold its annual Pig Roast/Ellebration in the downtown area between the school and the park with the actual roast itself in the community pavilion. This year's event is scheduled for June 19-20.

Friday evening events will include a 50s drive-in and a water slide. Saturday festivities include a 5K run, a hometown parade, a meal, the annual horse pull and archery events, lots of free games and activities for children and more. Also this year is a motorcycle tour, a basketball shoot-out, special teens' activities and a reunion event for Ellsworth alumni who graduated in the 60s.

For more information, see the Facebook page, "Ellsworth Pig Roast" for details.

Charlevoix Circle of Arts presents encaustic workshops

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix's Circle of Arts will host two days of encaustic workshops Saturday and Sunday, June 13-14, with visual artist Candace Law at 109 Clinton St., in Charlevoix.

"Encaustic is an ancient form of painting involving hot beeswax and pigment," said Rebecca Grotfelty, manager of the Circle of Arts. "The medium is growing in popularity among artists and collectors because of its unique characteristics as an art form. We're pleased to welcome Candace back to the Charlevoix area again this year and to have the opportunity to present her popular workshops."

The workshop will be from 1-4 p.m. on Saturday, and will include a brief history of encaustic, discussion of equipment and materials, a demonstration of painting and studio time with individual instruction. From noon to 3 p.m. on Sunday the workshop is a continuation of the former session with application of more advanced techniques. The cost is $90 for each workshop. Purchase for both is $165, which includes all fees and materials.

"This is an opportunity to experiment with the materials and tools of this versatile medium," said Law. "The workshop is intended for artists at every level who are curious about encaustic."

Interested artists can register in person at Circle of Arts or by phone at (231) 547-3554. Space in the workshops are limited and early registration is encouraged.

ries and perspectives of Earl Young's work from the viewpoint of historians, architects, current homeowners, friends and family members. After this one-time initial presentation, "The Wizard of Boulder Park" will be broadcast by Central Michigan University Public Television, to be followed by other PBS affiliates in Michigan.

Carroll who remembered the exhibit, "The Life and Works of Earl Young, Charlevoix's Master Builder in Stone," at the Harsha House Museum in 2009, believes Young's legacy needed to be displayed again somewhere in Charlevoix.

Miles and Harsha-Carroll spoke with Weatherlane managers and owners about placing the exhibit in the space that formerly housed Young's office space.

"When we came down the stairs and entered into this room it was obvious to us this was the place to tell his story," Harsha-Carroll said. "When we met with Weatherlane officials and outlined our idea. They gave us the go-ahead."

Young agreed to sell the Weatherlane with a life lease from the new owners to his office in the basement. Though to Young's family and friends it would "always be Earl Young's Weatherlane."

"We also were able to include Weatherlane history," Harsha-Carroll said. "It's a huge piece of Charlevoix history. There are three parts of this exhibit that are original to the Weatherlane and Young's office."

Young conceived the Weatherlane back in 1944 or 1945, 10 years before he owned the property and placed the first stone. He created it from a dream and a life-long love of boulders, the majestic flight of sea gulls and the waves on Lake Michigan, Miles said.

"We're hoping we can use this space for the long-term," Miles said. "We're hoping it is a win-win for the Weatherlane and us, because these photos will go back into storage without a place to display them. We want this exhibit out so people can know the legacy of Earl Young."

The Young legacy draws people from all over the world to see his unique house that some call mushroom or hobbit houses.

"He left this town an astonishing legacy," Miles said. "When you have people coming from all over the world to see his houses, you know you've got something special."

Young was born March 31, 1889, and died May 24, 1975. In 1900, his family moved to Charlevoix from Mancelona, and in 1908, he went to the University of Michigan School of Architecture for a year before leaving after disagreeing with the classic curriculum. He returned to Charlevoix and went into the realty and insurance business.

Young married Irene in 1915, and after their first two children were born looked to build a larger home. This was the first of his constructions, at 304 Park Ave.

From there he went on to build about 30 structures over a 55-year span, notably the houses of Boulder Park, the Park Avenue group and the Weatherlane, whose main fireplace features an 18,260 pound stone Young discovered while building his Boulder Park cottage subdivision on Lake Michigan in 1928.

The stone is an almost perfect map of Lower Michigan, including bold pink veins marking highway routes.

"Earl had kept the stone for nearly 30 years in the woods where he hid it until he needed it," Miles said.

The exhibit will run through the summer and is free and open to Weatherlane guests and the public. Weatherlane officials ask that people coming to view the exhibit check in with an employee before going downstairs to view the exhibit.

"The Weatherlane has a lot of events in the lower level," Miles said. "Checking in before coming down the stairway will prevent interruption to those private events. We want this to be a positive experience for everyone."

the film," Sharon said.

Lowell feels as a homeowner it is good to preserve the look of the home, but does not want to be labeled as a historic home.

"We're going to take care of the house, but we don't want anyone to tell us what we can do," he said. "We're going to take care of the house and keep it looking good ourselves."

Maureen Bickersteth who also attended the world premiere showing of the documentary film with husband Tom, was impressed with all the information.

"It was really fun for me," she said. "I've seen the houses and looked at them, but I had no clue about what was really going on behind the man who built them. It was a wonderful film."

Tom was impressed with the information that came out about Young's wife and her role in Earl's dream.

"(Irene's) influence on the homes was terrific to hear about," Tom said. "I think the film is going to be a very big thing for Charlevoix."

Before the film screening a large crowd attended the pre-screening gala at Stafford's Weatherlane Restaurant where they enjoyed cocktails and a light meal and got to meet brother and sister filmmakers Brian and Anne Belanger.

"We hope people who view the film will see the significance these homes bring to the area," Anne said. "They have huge historic value and are an integral part of the Northern Michigan landscape."

EGGS

Spico were named by local business owners as their primary source of eggs. Neither company was available for contact.

While some business owners are preparing to absorb the increased cost, others like Weaver will have to adjust their menu to stay profitable.

Eric Simard, general manager of The Original Pancake House, said he has seen a similar increase in egg prices, noting that liquid eggs are becoming notably scarce. Although his restaurant does not have chicken meat on its menu, Simard said eggs are a major component of his business.

"(The price increase) cut into our margins," Simard said. "We use eggs in almost everything. It's in all the batter we use for pancakes and everything."

Reports by Umer Barry, a national market research firm specializing in segments of the food industry, state that the average wholesale price of a dozen large eggs in the Midwest is a record-high $2.62. The price has risen 120 percent from $1.19 a dozen on May 5, when the prices began their rapid rise.

Randy Pesciotta, vice president of Umer Barry's egg department, said these "unprecedented" figures are all-time records being set in a season that usually has low retail demand for eggs. "If this happened in November of December, this market would have been completely out of control," he said.

The 38 million infected birds represents a 12 percent cut of the egg production, Pesciotta said. Even worse, the losses came swiftly over the course of only a few weeks.

"When you take a 12 percent reduction of anything it will tighten the supply," Pesciotta said. "It's a long-lasting, long-term problem and it won't go away tomorrow. There's going to be peaks and valleys and the market will ebb and flow, but to fix the problem, to repopulate all of the birds, will take several years."

Prices rose every day since May 5 until this week, but Pesciotta said it is tough to tell if the market is finding equilibrium. Umer Barry does not project future market trends.

"It's not that you'll go to the supermarket and won't find any eggs, you'll just pay more for them," he said.

Elliott said maintenance calls on city staff at the Department of Public Works and Waste Water Treatment Plant, unless the work is beyond the skillset of those employees. Since the last DDA meeting in May, Elliott has completed a walk-through of the building and created a list of items, that include replacing ceiling tiles as needed, strip and seal tile in the common areas along with yearly maintenance of the heating and cooling system.

"These other items are upgrades, like installing new toilets, hand dryers and sinks and mirror replacement," Elliott said.

Upgrades to the building will fall on the DDA/Main Street board as they have in the past, Elliott said.

"The DDA usually will budget for these upgrades as they have in previous instances," Elliott said. "City staff also has completed some miscellaneous work with the DDA on the building."

The businesses — Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company, Keweenaw Excursions and the Beaver Island Boat Company — feel their landlord has not taken the repair request seriously. Each year, nearly 40,000 people use the ferry to travel to Beaver Island, said Margo Marks, president of Beaver Island Boat Company.

"This building has problems," Marks said. "We can never get the heating and cooling system to work correctly for us. It's an ongoing issue, where we have to call the city down to make adjustments."

The bathroom facilities are another area of the building that tenants would like to see improvements.

"Most of the time we hear from customers that the bathrooms look dirty," Marks said. "It's not that they are dirty, but the condition of the sinks and toilets make them look dirty. It's been an ongoing issue that has got little support to be fixed."

Annie Doyle, Charlevoix Community Economic Development director made the DDA/Main Street board aware of the issues during its regular meeting in May. Doyle showed photos of different areas inside the building that gave the impression of a building badly in need of repair.

Doyle was made aware of the problems when she met with local businesses during an assessment of the downtown area after beginning her job earlier this year. Because Doyle is still relatively new to her position in Charlevoix she wanted to be clear who is responsible for the maintenance of building before giving the okay to make improvements.

"I brought the condition of the building to the board because I was hoping for clarity on exactly who was responsible for particular building maintenance," Doyle said.

The reason Doyle is seeking clarity is because each stakeholder in the building is responsible for some type of maintenance. Each tenant also has provisions in their lease agreements with the DDA that requires them to assist in some of the costs to repair and maintain their spaces.

"It is obvious there is overlap of who does what between the city, DDA and tenants," Doyle said. "I just wanted clarity because there are some maintenance needs that have fallen through the cracks."

During public comment at the DDA meeting in May, Charlevoix City Council member Bill Supernaw was in the audience and told the DDA they need to do something immediately to address the issues at the Bridge Park building.

"You need to spend the money and get those problems fixed," Supernaw said. "There is no reason a building that sees thousands of people passing through it each summer should be in that condition. It's disgusting."

The Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company has taken on responsibility of cleaning the bathrooms, but owners also believe it is necessary to upgrade the facility.

"We are willing to work with the DDA on these issues, but it is obvious these facilities are in need of improvements," said Phil Parr, co-owner and manager of Bridge Street Tap Room and the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company.

Leaky windows present another issue, which Marks said have been replaced in the past, though that has not fixed the problem.

"The windows are a 14-year ongoing issue here," Marks said. "They have tried many things in the past, but it seems they cannot figure what causes the leaks and moisture build-up."

Kraig Funkey, co-owner of Keweenaw Excursions said the building appears not to be a priority for the DDA.

"We've been telling them for years about some of the conditions here," Funkey said. "They have done some work, but there still are problems that need to be addressed."

Though the DDA has recently worked with city officials to repaint the exterior of the building, the outer condition remains overlooked, with missing tiles, poor window glazing and paint-chipped railings line the sidewalks and grass around the park.

"It is obvious the exterior cosmetics are neglected," Parr said.

Each of the tenants said they are more than willing to pay for their responsibilities, but they want to see more action from the DDA. Rent from the tenants goes into the DDA coffers, but the DDA has budgeted only $1,000 for maintenance projects, which has some questioning priorities of the DDA.

"This building is showing its age," Parr said. "City officials have been very helpful and we enjoy the working relationship with them, but it is time for the DDA to put money toward the building and make the upgrades and repairs."

Noah Certa becomes second Rayder baseball player selected to play in All-Star Game

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — On May 22, the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association began contacting the state's best baseball players by cell phone to let them know they'd been selected to play in the MHSBCA's annual all-star game at Comerica Park.

For Charlevoix's Noah Certa, there was just one problem: he wasn't available to answer his phone.

The senior and two-time Division 3 all-state player was too busy playing baseball.

"They called me right in the middle of our senior night game against Traverse City Christian, so I was out in the field," Certa said. "It wasn't until after the game that I was able to go through my messages and find out that I'd been selected."

Certa spent a lot of time on the baseball field working on his craft over the last four years on the way to becoming the second player in Charlevoix history to be selected for the MHSBCA's annual East/West all-star game, scheduled for Wednesday, June 17, at Comerica Park in Detroit.

Chris Waha was the first Rayder to play in the game, in 2007, and went on to play at Grand Rapids Community College, New Mexico Highlands and Wayne State University over the course of his college career.

Despite a strong career, including setting the Charlevoix school record for runs in a season (45) and a career (126), finishing top five all-time in hits and stolen bases and striking out just 26 times in 453 plate appearances, Certa said he was blindsided by the honor.

"It was a complete surprise to me," Certa said. "Only the best of the best get selected for this game, and I didn't really think I had a shot given how many really good players there are across the state."

"It's a huge honor to be able to do something like this."

While Certa wasn't expecting to make it on the team, in Charlevoix coach Allen Telgenhof's eyes it's an honor well-deserved for a hitter who batted .360 and drove in 19 runs as the Rayders' leadoff hitter this season.

"Noah is the player that is most dedicated to the craft of hitting that I've coached," Telgenhof said. "He is a perfectionist and has worked and worked on his swing to get it to the point where it is at today."

"Not only does Noah very rarely strike out but he very rarely even swings and misses."

Telgenhof added that Certa's intangibles are as impressive as his raw stats.

"From a coaching standpoint, he is such a pleasure to coach," Telgenhof said. "He is the ultimate team player; someone who doesn't care about personal goals or achievements but is really all about the team."

Certa is one of 42 players from across the state to participate in this game, and one of only three from Northern Michigan, along with Petoskey's Jordan Swiss and Alpena's Chris Mordzynski.

Along with a spot in the game, Certa also will participate in the all-star banquet held the night before, get a tour of the Major League park where the Detroit Tigers play, and several other perks over the course of the two-day event.

But perhaps most importantly for Certa, it's a chance to compete against and learn from an elite group of players that includes 27 athletes who are moving on to play for Division I colleges next year, including several bound for Big Ten schools including Michigan, Michigan State and Indiana.

"Just getting a chance to be around the best and play with and against high-caliber players is a great opportunity," Certa said. "I'm sure I'm going to learn a lot from the experience, and I'm hoping to see where I stand against guys on that level."

Certa himself is college-bound, heading to Calvin College in Grand Rapids in the fall to study business and journalism and to play college baseball for the Knights as well.

The senior said he's also looking forward to the opportunity to take the field in the same ballpark where the Detroit Tigers play their home games.

"There's a lot of people who play baseball, and only a few of them ever get to step on a major league field and play in a game," Certa said. "It's definitely something special and I'm really hoping to enjoy the moment and take it all in."

The game is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. on June 17. Tickets for the event at $10 and spectators can purchase them at Comerica Park on the day of the game.

One of the most prolific hitters ever to wear a Rayder uniform, Noah Certa will represent his school and Northern Michigan in the MHSBCA East/West All-Star Game on June 17 at Comerica Park in Detroit.

Charlevoix baseball coach Telgenhof steps aside after historic run

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — When asked what his goals were when he took over the program, Charlevoix baseball coach Allen Telgenhof jokes that he hoped to raise expectations for the Rayders to the point where he was fired for not winning enough.

Telgenhof didn't quite get to that point during his tenure, but there's no denying that as he steps away from the program, he's leaving it in a very different place from where he started.

The coach is retiring on the heels of a school-record four year run where the Rayders went 97-41, won two conference titles and a district title in 2013.

Telgenhof said that it was the right time for him to step aside for several reasons, both because his own son, Will, and a decorated class was moving on, and also to give Charlevoix a fresh perspective at the helm.

Telgenhof

"It's something I've been thinking about for a while, that if there was a good chance of getting a solid replacement, someone younger and with some different ideas, that now would be a good time to turn the program over to someone else,"

Telgenhof said. "I coached this most recent group of seniors and my own son, Will, all the way from little league ball through high school and I thought this would be a good group to go out with."

When Telgenhof took over the program, Charlevoix was mired near the bottom of the standings in the Lake Michigan Conference, having fallen on hard times after a good run of success in the eighties.

Telgenhof vividly remembers days spent wandering the hallways of Charlevoix High School attempting to recruit kids to join the program just so the Rayders could field a junior varsity team.

This season, Charlevoix had 34 kids split between the two programs, with good-sized classes feeding into the program from the community's youth leagues every season.

"If there's one thing I'm proudest of, beyond the wins and losses and the records, it's that we were able to build a baseball culture here in Charlevoix," Telgenhof said. "When I first got here, we had talented kids, and kids who worked hard, but ultimately baseball to them was just something to do in-between football and basketball season."

"On our last few teams, we've had guys who really love the game, who've grown up in the game and made it their primary sport. We've even had several guys go on to college and play baseball, whether it's as a part of a college team or in club sports or intramurals, to keep that passion alive. As a guy who really enjoys the game of baseball myself, it's been exciting to see that growth and to be a part of it."

Whoever the Rayders settle on for their next coach, he's stepping in to a good situation, Telgenhof said.

Despite losing eight seniors, there are talented classes in each of the next three grades coming up, and the culture that has been built at Charlevoix remains intact.

"We've got a great internal support system here at Charlevoix, from the athletic office to the assistant coaches and JV coaches, to the parents and community members that help run our youth leagues and make everything work," Telgenhof said. "As long as we can maintain that support, I think it's going to be a great coaching job."

As for his successor, Telgenhof hopes he brings the passion for working with kids required for the job.

"As a coach, I've never been the greatest x's-and-o's guy," Telgenhof said. "I've tried my best to bring in assistants and other coaches to help fill that gap."

"But ultimately, I think this job isn't about wins and losses as much as it is about connecting with kids, teaching the game of baseball and instilling that love and passion for it that can last a lifetime. This job isn't about glory, it's about the players, and as long as the next guy focuses on doing right by them and making it about them, I think he's going to be very successful."

Lancers earn Northern Lakes trophies for athletic achievements, sportsmanship

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

ELLSWORTH — A year of athletic accomplishments culminated in two achievements to celebrate for Ellsworth Community Schools on Tuesday, June 2.

The Lancers earned both the inaugural All Sports Trophy and the Sportsmanship award from the Northern Lakes Conference for their achievements on the field of play.

The All Sports Trophy is a new award presented to the Northern Lakes school whose fall, winter and spring athletics teams achieve the highest combined winning percentage against Northern Lakes Conference foes.

Ellsworth captured the award with strong finishes in nearly every sport, including the conference title in boys cross country.

On top of that award, the Lancers also won the Sportsmanship Award, given to the school that achieves the highest average rating for sportsmanship across all sports as judged by the league's coaches.

The maximum possible score that can be given for sportsmanship is a 3, and Ellsworth earned a 2.998 average, meaning the Lancers came very close to a perfect score.

"We are very honored to have won the very first Northern Lakes Conference All Sports Trophy," Ellsworth athletic director Brian Certa said in a press release. "However, we feel it's even more important that we were recognized with the Sportsmanship Award."

"As a school and a district we pride ourselves on the behavior, discipline, and compassion displayed by all of our students."

Ellsworth will keep both the All Sports Trophy and the Sportsmanship Banner for the upcoming 2015/16 school year, and hopes to hold on to both trophies for the foreseeable future.

"It's our goal to keep both of these awards in Ellsworth on an annual basis," Certa said.

City OKs move to volunteer fire dept.

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix City Council approved a request from Charlevoix Police and Fire Chief Gerard Doan to switch from a full-time fire department to one where firefighters are paid per call so money can be shifted to pay EMS providers proper wages.

The move allows city officials to redirect money toward emergency medical services, which Doan said is a growing need in the community.

"Keeping and maintaining our emergency medical service presence is a priority," Doan said. "Switching from a full-time fire department to volunteer will help the city afford to do this."

Currently the department has 19 total firefighters but only one is full-time, after two other full-time firefighters accepted work elsewhere earlier this month.

"Technically, this has been a volunteer organization," Doan said. "The only thing that's changing is the person in-house. We still will respond to a fire call."

The transition from a full-time fire department to volunteer paid per call will go into effect in August.

Barry Wood, of Evellne Township, is concerned about the fire department change.

Parking meter fines reduced

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix City Council approved a resolution to roll back parking ticket fines from $15 to $10 after hearing complaints from the public.

"With the new fines in place, I have been getting more calls than previous years," said Charlevoix Police and Fire Chief Gerard Doan.

The meter fines were raised to $15 at the end of the 2014/15 fiscal year, as a way to raise more revenue, Doan said to council members.

City council members unanimously approved the meter fine increase during the spring budget meetings, but on Monday each city council member except Shirley Gibson voted to bring it back to $10.

"We as a council approved this increase," Gibson said. "We did this to stop people from parking all day on Bridget Street. We did this because our business owners wanted to see more parking turn over."

Doan also has received more calls this year from business owners who heard from upset customers about the fine increase.

Big numbers, even bigger fish at event

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Passionate anglers young, old and in between came to Charlevoix last weekend to take part in the 31st annual Charlevoix Area Trout Tournament.

This year, 430 people registered for the trout tournament and hit the lake, despite the rain on Friday.

"The weather isn't stopping the fish from biting," said Dean Mikulski, tournament director. "We're seeing salmon, trout and walleye. It's a great weekend to be out fishing."

The one of the kind event in Charlevoix is designed to promote sports fishing in the area and has a strong following, Mikulski said.

"It's a cool event for every fishing level," he said. "We have people of every fishing skill participate. The event is meant to be fun for the entire family."

Road project could see delay into July

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — City officials expect reconstruction on State Street to be complete before Venetian Festival.

Charlevoix Department of Public Works superintendent Pat Elliott said there were some unforeseen circumstances that slowed the project.

"Weather and the location of utilities caused the delay for completion by a few days," Elliott said. "Our hope was to be finished by June 30, but most likely it will be July 6."

The city's $1.2 million facelift and street replacement of State Street between Hurlhut and Clinton streets was partially funded with a $580,000 Surface Transportation grant from the Michigan Department of Transportation.

The plan calls for storm water, sewer and waterline upgrades along with widening and repaving of State Street. Crews also will install curb, gutter and pedestrian ramps in various locations, along with realigning the intersection of State Street at Antrim Street.

There may be some costs reductions once the project is complete, but the city did have to make about $12,000 increase for storm sewer additions, Elliott said.

"I do expect to see some costs reductions on wit other portions of the project once we are completed," Elliott said. "When it is all done costs to the city should be about the same."

Traffic will continue to be detoured during construction, but the contractor is required to maintain access to residences and businesses. Elliott said the community feedback has been positive, so far.

"A project of this size is expected to create some inconvenience to residents, but everything has been very

Cathy Silberhorn leaves classroom after 32 years

AMBER KELLY
Special to the Courier

CHARLEVOIX — A teacher for 32 years teaching third grade in the same classroom, retiring Charlevoix Elementary School's Cathy Silberhorn, never lost her enthusiasm for her profession in all those years. She leaves behind in her wake, a legacy of emerging adults and already successful adults that she once nurtured as 8- and 9-year-old children.

Nurturing is the key word according to parents and colleagues.

"It was an honor to teach with Cathy," said team teacher Julie McLean. "As a young teacher, I was in awe of her and how she would take the curriculum and make it come to life... every day was full of fun and laughter. I learned to teach beyond the curriculum. She truly cared for each and every child. If there was a child in need she made sure that that need was filled..."

"One parent, Julie Christiansen, knows that Silberhorn has had a lasting influence on, and was a source of inspiration for her two boys, Brian and T.J."

"She was an exceptional teacher who made the students work but also allowed them to have fun," Christiansen said.

T.J. Christiansen who now works in Durham, N.C. for a company that specializes in engraving, sent his former teacher a retirement plaque shaped like an apple and engraved with the words "One Last Apple for the Teacher, Cathy Silberhorn... 1983-2015."

"I always wanted the kids to be treated fairly, to be well adjusted, happy and excited to come to school to learn," Silberhorn said. "... a teacher's main accomplishment should be providing children with a lifetime love of learning."

Cathy Silberhorn

Silberhorn was an advocate for teaching beyond the standardized tests. She is disappointed by the fact that they are becoming the primary measure of student achievement.

Two of her favorite quotes on this subject are:

"Sometimes the most brilliant and intelligent students do not shine in standardized tests because they do not have standardized minds." (Diane Ravitch) and "All children have gifts; some open them at different times." (Patricia Polacco).

"There are several qualities that I believe can't be measured by most tests," Silberhorn maintains. "Persistence, curiosity, enthusiasm, courage, leadership, creativity, resourcefulness, self-discipline, sense of wonder, big-picture-thinking, compassion for others, reliability, motivation, humor, empathy, humility and resilience, to name a few."

Principal Doug Drenth, joined other administrators who had the pleasure of working with Silberhorn in recognizing her spirit and accomplishments as a teacher.

"I think she always emphasized character. Her students always came first. Cathy is a good example of what a teacher should be," he said.

Both Drenth and former elementary principals Dick Swenor and Vane Smith thank Silberhorn for being a good teacher and friend during their administrative years and especially for "making them laugh just about every day," something that they thought was invaluable for a principal.

Silberhorn's light-hearted manner made her students comfortable in the classroom and open to textbook knowledge and the broader instruction of all life's lessons. She is grateful for the opportunity to have worked with "the most dedicated and devoted teachers in Northern Michigan," and for the support staff, parents and volunteers and administrators that she has worked with over the years. Silberhorn looks forward to spending more quality time with her husband, Bill, her kids, grandkids, brother and 87-year-old mother.

"I can" statements are the current target words in educational strategic planning for children. As Silberhorn steps down, she targets her own plan for the future, with "I can."

"I can thank all the children that I've had for making my job the most fulfilling one in the world," Silberhorn said. "I can say that I will miss the kids. And I can say that I'm ready to begin a new chapter of my life."

25 athletes take part in "iTri" Triathlon

AMBER KELLY
Special to the Courier

CHARLEVOIX — The third annual "iTri" Triathlon for students K-12 took place at 8:30 a.m. on Saturday, June 13, with the cheering support of families and friends who came out to encourage the 25 young athletes who participated.

Sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Community Pool, the "iTri" — iSwim, iBike, iRun — featured all three components and challenged the kids to complete the non-competitive race at their own pace, in three categories of ability: beginners sporting blue swim caps, intermediate in yellow and advanced, in red. Participants from Charlevoix, Boyne City, Walloon Lake and Petoskey were primarily members of the Sting Rays, the Charlevoix Area Pool's swim team, or members of the pool, though all area kids, regardless of skill level were invited to the event, according to Jean Musilek, community relations manager and organizer of the event.

To prepare the athletes for the event, Musilek enlisted the help of 2015 graduate of Charlevoix High School, Ali Schwein, a triathlete and accomplished swimmer. The emphasis on the training program preceding the race was to work on endurance and the health and safety aspects of this sport.

"We had volunteers spread out on 8 miles of courses and around the pool to cheer, direct, keep safe and attend to any needs the kids might have during the event," Musilek said. "It takes courage to just place a toe over the edge of the pool deck as you wait for the starter to signal your turn to enter the water. Most adults will live in the safety of the sidelines, with awe and admiration in their eyes as they watch these kids bravely confront the fears that often hold us back."

The first leg of the triathlon took place in the pool in three heats. Each swimmer chose his/her own strokes — butterfly, breast, free style or back — to complete the number of laps assigned to their level, with beginners at three lengths, intermediates at six lengths and advanced at 16 lengths.

Next, came the biking component. Kids dried off, put on their T-shirts, laced up their tennis shoes and grabbed their bikes riding down the pool driveway and onto the bike trail. Again, according to age or ability, the course followed the bike trail in designated increments of 1 mile, 3 1/2, and 5 1/2 miles.

Finally, kids returned their bikes in the pool parking lot and ran to complete the last challenge, running the opposite direction along the bike path toward town until it joined the Country Club path where they lapped around and back to the pool in courses marked at 1/2 mile, 1.25 miles and 2 miles.

All participants received medals and snacks at the conclusion of the triathlon and swapped trail stories. Everyone sported a big smile, proud of their accomplishment.

"I am excited to once again experience their challenge, witness their self-growth and watch self-belief become unshakable," Musilek said.

On Friday, June 12, the streets of Boyne City filled with patrons, history seekers, tourist, locals and people having a great time in the warmth of the evening. I know because my lovely wife and I took a stroll downtown.

We started with the Wolverine Dilworth Hotel formerly the Wolverine Hotel in 1912 now being restored by Bob Grove. As we walked around the first floor — the only floor we were able to access — you could see and smell history. Bob Grove is taking on quite a job restoring this hotel and he has his work cut out for him. As we entered, we came to the front desk still intact. I felt like I was in the past wanting to ring the bell at the front desk to see the ghost of a man handing me keys to my room, snapping his fingers at the bell hop to take my bags saying "follow me sir, I will show you to your room."

Looking around we found ourselves in the dining area, and there I bumped into the founder of Boyne City, John Miller. No, it was not the spirit of Mr. Miller, but a young man named Kevin Hautz dressed in period clothing of the early 1900s. He proceeded to tell me, in a very good Irish accent, how Boyne City began. How he, John Miller, and wife, Harriet Miller, stepped foot on the northern shores of Lake Charlevoix and it reminded them of their homeland, Ireland. It is known now as Boyne City.

After this great performance we decided to move on to other sites such as three Model A Town Sedans, by the Ford Motor Company, 1930, 1932, 1934 complete with four suicide doors. Suicide doors opened in the opposite direction — If you have seen an old gangster movie you would understand. These cars made my night as my mother owned one of the largest upholstery shops in Alaska, she had the pleasure of re-upholstering the interior of many of the same sedans. I was raised around the trade and remember every vehicle.

We strolled through history that evening taking in all that we could. Music filled the air from almost every corner; as we walked the sound would change from one band to the next giving us a variety of musical sound.

We ended our night with a cone ice cream, yes of course at Kilwin's. I had to indulge my palate with my first ever scoop of Traverse City Cherry, my taste buds were thankful and jumping with joy as I ate every spoonful. The night was well worth the stroll through Boyne City experiencing another summer event, the city put on a fantastic affair.

LETTERS to the editor

Charlevoix needs more family friendly activities downtown

Dear Editor:

I think that there should be more activities in downtown East Park. Right now, there are just a few things that families can do. They can play in the fountains, look at trout in the ponds, listen to bands occasionally and maybe play Frisbee or something of your choice. That's about it.

I think it would attract lots more people if there were more family friendly activities downtown. Just think about it, a family is waiting for a band to start.

They could play a game of basketball, soccer or giant chess if we had the things to do so. If there was a soccer field, you could gather all of your friends and play a game. You would lose track of time because you're having so much fun and soon the band would be begin. How fun would that be?

It also would be good if there was a basketball court or maybe two, if there's room. If you didn't like soccer, then you could play basketball with your friends and/or family. If you didn't know how to play chess, maybe you could find someone who does and have them teach you. What if you don't like any of these options? Then, there should be an area where you can play Frisbee with your dog, practice your cartwheels or whatever. I think we should really take this idea into consideration and I think it would benefit the park in many ways.

Sincerely,
Olivin Volkmer,
Charlevoix fifth-grader

Parking fines not welcoming to visitors

Editor:

I've been summering in Charlevoix for 45 years. I love it here. But on Thursday, June 11, I drove into town to visit the farmers market. I couldn't find any change in my purse, so I parked and ran across the street, bought $44 worth of vegetables, bagels and muffins. I was back in my car in six minutes only to find a meter violation ticket.

I am required to pay $15 within 24 hours, or $30 is after 24 hours. Now I ask you, is this anyway to treat people?

Wouldn't it be sensible to forgive meter violations — particularly on Thursday mornings when there is less parking available?

Isn't $15 excessive? Does the meter guy hide and then jump out the minute you leave your car? It would seem that he does that.

Tourism is the lifeblood of Charlevoix. I strongly believe in shopping locally, but this over priced meter violation amount only encourages me to go to big box stores with their free parking or Petoskey where I've seen meter matts put money into meters for parkers.

The Downtown Development Authority should address this situation. There are more empty stores in downtown Charlevoix this summer than in the past. Could this be the reason?

Why not allow 15 minutes of free parking before issuing a violation? I'm disappointed in this town.

Sincerely,
Barbara Claggett,
Charlevoix

Public affairs specialist for Social Security Administration

On July 30, 1965, President Lyndon B. Johnson signed Medicare into law with these words: "No longer will older Americans be denied the healing miracle of modern medicine. No longer will illness crush and destroy the savings that they have so carefully put away over a lifetime."

For 50 years, the Medicare program has provided essential health care services for millions of people who are age 65 or older, disabled, or have debilitating diseases. Without Medicare, many people would not be able to pay for hospital care, doctor's visits, medical tests, preventive services or prescription drugs.

Your Medicare card is the most important piece of identification you own as a Medicare beneficiary since medical providers will request it when you seek their services. If you need to replace a lost, stolen, or damaged Medicare card, you can do it online with a my Social Security account at socialsecurity.gov/myaccount. Requesting a replacement card through my Social Security is safe, convenient and easy. Going online saves you a trip to your local Social Security office or unproductive time on the phone. Request your replacement Medicare card the easy and convenient way — online — and you'll get it in the same amount of time as you would if you applied in an office or over the phone — in about 30 days.

For more information about Medicare, visit medicare.gov. As Medicare celebrates 50 years, Social Security commemorates 80 years. Learn more about Social Security's 80th anniversary at socialsecurity.gov/80thanniversary.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY
bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

In the 1930s and well into the 1940s, downtown Bridge Street enjoyed several grocery stores including a Kroger's where the Taffy Barrel and Elements are today. Two of the most prominent were rival brothers Martin Block, shown here, and Milton Block at the Mason Street corner, later to become Neff Bros. where East Park is today.

Martin Block prided himself on the almost machine-like precision of his impressive window displays, with canned goods and fruit laid out in impeccable rows and files. The interior was likewise kept in immaculate condition. In the window are advertised the specials of the week, including coffee for 24 and 29 cents a pound, tuna for 18 cents a tin, sardines a dime and dog food packets 3 for 23 cents. Many businesses have since come and gone in this location. Today it houses the water recreation rental store in front and the Bridge Street Tap Room in the rear where the meat department used to be.

Mr. Block placed a sign over the meat display case: "Our beef is so tender we wonder how the cow ever walked." When the current channel bridge was being installed a block away in 1947-1949, there were days when the pounding was so severe and constant that customers had to call in their orders for delivery because no one was allowed inside while it was going on. The construction impacts made the tin cans fly off the shelves, through the air and onto the floor.

Charlevoix veteran goes on one last mission

Lonnie Allen
(231) 547-6558 • allen@schurz.com

BIG RAPIDS — Early on June 2, while most of Charlevoix slept, 62 aging veterans gathered on the campus of Ferris State University preparing for a field trip to remember.

Charlevoix resident Gus Schmidt was part of this band of graying warriors, who experienced the patriotism, pomp and circumstance of a military ceremony from volunteers who worked tirelessly to salute their special guests.

Instead of marching off to war these veterans were celebrated on one last mission with Mid-Michigan Honor Flight. A Michigan nonprofit organization that is part of the Honor Flight network, which aims to fly all surviving World War II veterans, like Schmidt, to the national memorial built in their honor — free of charge.

"It's amazing how volunteers put this all together for us veterans," Schmidt said. "The whole thing is like clockwork and done very well."

When the plane arrived in Washington D.C. and taxied to the gate, the fire department at Ronald Reagan International Airport gave veterans a water cannon salute. As veterans exited the plane they were greeted with a roar from a crowd of people, young and old, cheering and clapping their hands as the men and women made their way to the tour buses.

"The people had their hands extended to us and thanking us for our service," Schmidt said. "It was a big welcome when we got there."

Supporting the veterans on their one-day trip in and around Washington, D.C. was a dedicated group of "guardians" that were responsible for catering to the veteran's every need. Guardians pay $500 to travel with veterans to the nation's capital.

Larry Levensgood (left) and Gus Schmidt traveled to Washington, D.C., on June 2, with Mid-Michigan Honor Flight. The Honor Flight network is a organization which aims to fly all surviving World War II veterans, such as Schmidt, to the national memorial built in their honor — free of charge.

Wheelchairs, the veteran's safety and the overall experience that the veteran had on the trip are all things that the guardians were tasked with handling throughout the day. Larry Levensgood, of Charlevoix, was Schmidt's guardian for the flight and tour around the nation's capital.

"The respect that everyone has for everyone that served is really fascinating," Levensgood said. "Young children would come up and shake Gus's hand and thank him for his service."

Levensgood, who assisted the 91-year-old Schmidt, was struck by the gravity of the situation that unfolded around him at each of the memorials, for Levensgood the trip, as a guardian was a "life changing" event.

"It is life changing to hear from these guys,"

Levensgood said. "I am so impressed with these guys. They truly are America's Greatest Generation."

The veterans who have taken the last three honor flights all have one thing in common — humility.

"They'll never brag about themselves," said Mid-Michigan Honor Flight Hub Director Patricia Donegan. "They're heroes to us, but to them they just did what they felt was right."

In addition to the guardians on the trip being prompt, courteous and ready to help, the overall organization and respectful nature of the Mid-Michigan Honor Flight organization was something Schmidt recognized.

"It was a great experience," Schmidt said. "I've never been treated so nicely by a bunch of people."

When the veterans arrived home to Grand Rapids later that evening the veterans quickly disembarked on one last ceremony.

Along the way, thousands of community members waved, held up signs, and even hugged and kissed veterans as they walked by and were pushed by a guardian to the hanger.

"Everything went off smoothly," Schmidt said. "They really showed us veterans what our last mission was all about, I was very impressed with the whole thing."

It costs approximately $110,000 to send a plane and take care of all the transportation, meals, permitting, and memorabilia for each trip, and fundraising from schools, corporations, businesses, organizations and private individuals is how the organization pays for the flights. Mid-Michigan Honor Flight receives no funds from any government entity, Donegan said.

"It is a 100 percent volunteer organization," she said.

Kathleen Flinn

Michigan notable author Kathleen Flinn to visit Charlevoix

CHARLEVOIX — Michigan Notable author Kathleen Flinn — author of "Burnt Toast Makes You Sing Good" and other books — will pay a special visit to the Charlevoix Public Library at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, June 23, for an evening of storytelling, book signing and question-and-answer time with guests.

Flinn is visiting the Charlevoix Public Library as part of the Library of Michigan's 2015 "Michigan Notable Authors Tour." This year, 17 authors whose engaging works were chosen as 2015 Michigan Notable Books selections will visit nearly 50 libraries throughout the state.

"It's a literary treat to have Kathleen Flinn in our community, sharing her captivating work with our friends and neighbors in such an open, accessible way," said Linda Adams, director of the Charlevoix Public Library.

"Michigan is home to some of the best stories and storytellers found anywhere in the country. An author of Kathleen Flinn's caliber here, in our library, will make it an evening to remember."

Michigan Notable Books is designed to promote reading and raise awareness of Michigan's literary heritage. The program annually selects 20 of the most outstanding books published in that year — titles that are reflective of Michigan's diverse ethnic, historical, literary and cultural experience.

"This year's Michigan Notable Books delve into wonderfully diverse topics and offer something of interest for just about everyone," said State Librarian Randy Riley. "The tour offers the opportunity for book enthusiasts in many corners of the state to join in the conversation about what constitutes 'great writing' and to hear from some of the Great Lakes region's most beloved authors."

Kathleen Flinn is a storyteller, cook and teacher who has been a writer for more than 25 years in print and online. Her writing has appeared in more than three dozen publications worldwide and her books have been featured in File, People, Good Housekeeping, Wall Street Journal, Christian Science Monitor, CBS This Morning and numerous National Public Radio programs including "Talk of the Nation." She is author and host of the website cookeatless.com. Her third book, which was named a Michigan Notable Book by the Library of Michigan, is "Burnt Toast Makes You Sing Good: A Story of Food & Love" from an American Midwest Family, a multi-generational memoir with recipes about her culinary heritage growing up in Michigan. Flinn serves on the board of directors for the International Association of Culinary Professionals. She divides her time between Seattle and Anna Maria Island, Fla., with husband, Mike, and their trusty rescue dog, Maddy.

The 2015 Michigan Notable Books program and tour are made possible thanks to the support of the Library of Michigan, the Library of Michigan Foundation, Michigan Department of Education, the Michigan Humanities Council, Meijer, and the Michigan Center for the Book.

Representatives receive Beaver Island tours

CHARLEVOIX — More than 35 Charlevoix area business representatives traveled to Beaver Island on June 9, sponsored by the Beaver Island Boat Company.

"So many Charlevoix residents and businesses have lived here their whole lives, but never visited Beaver Island," said Margo Marks, president of BIBCO. "We wanted them to experience Beaver Island so they can recommend a trip to their friends, family and customers."

The day started at 8 a.m. as everyone boarded the Emerald Isle ferry. It was a foggy morning as they departed at 8:30 a.m. but the fog lifted just as the boat started to travel along Beaver Island and dock at the north end in Paradise Bay.

Each representative was given a tour of Beaver Island, which included a history of the downtown buildings and the self-proclaimed kingdom. Beaver Island Boat Company offers a 1.5 hour tour and 3 hour tour daily for visitors to Beaver Island. The Beaver Island restaurants, including Dalwhinnie, Shamrock and Stoney Acre Grill, all offered discounted or free lunches to the group.

"The ferry ride to the island was smooth and very pleasant," said Pat Brewer of Char-Em United Way. "Everyone we met was friendly and shared knowledge of the island's treasures and must-see locations. We were pleasantly surprised by the history of the island and the natural beauty. I learned so much from our tour guide and at the three museums I visited. I found a few treasures at local shops to bring back with me, too."

After a full day on Beaver Island, the group came together to discuss their favorite stops and memories they made. Charlevoix State Bank sponsored pizza and salad for the way home, a perfect ending to a great day, organizers said.

Raven Hill Discovery Center to be in national Amateur Radio Field Day

EAST JORDAN — Members of the Raven Hill Discovery Center Amateur Radio Club along with Top of Michigan Amateur Radio Club will participate in the national Amateur Radio Field Day exercise the last weekend in June.

From 9 a.m.-4 p.m. on Saturday, June 27, and again on Sunday, June 28, the public is invited to come to Raven Hill and learn about amateur or ham radio. Field Day encourages amateur radio operators to set up temporary ham radio stations in public locations to demonstrate ham radio's ability to work reliably under any conditions from almost any location and create an independent communications network, important in case of a communications outage.

For more than 100 years, amateur radio has allowed people from all walks of life to advance science, experiment with electronics and communications techniques, as well as provide a free public service to their communities during a disaster, all without needing a cell phone or the Internet. Ham radio functions completely independent of the Internet or cellphone infrastructure, but can interface with computers, tablets or smartphones and can be set up almost anywhere.

According to Sean Kutzko of the American

Radio Relay League, the national association for amateur radio, "hams can literally throw a wire in a tree for an antenna, connect it to a battery-powered transmitter and communicate halfway around the world in minutes."

That makes amateur radio unique. In 2014, more than 45,000 people from thousands of locations participated in Field Day. The two-day event at Raven Hill is open to the public and all are encouraged to attend and interact with the club.

For more information about Field Day, visit arrrl.org/what-is-ham-radio or call John Clements at (989) 448-8141 or by email at john@kc9on.com.

Award-winning Ellsworth program ends the school year positively ELLSWORTH — On Wednesday, June 3, Ellsworth Community School Middle/High School held the fifth annual Lancer Leap Showcase.

Lancer Leap is a four-week project-based term that takes place in May, and is made possible by shortening each semester by two weeks.

"Lancer Leap provides two unique and innovative opportunities for us as a district," said Ellsworth superintendent, Aaron Gaffney. "It allows us to offer hands-on elective opportunities for our students that cannot be accomplished within a traditional curriculum. It also provides remediation options to students whose achievement scores are not at grade level, or to allow students who have failed courses the opportunity to recover credits without needing to repeat classes."

This year's Lancer Leap elective classes included: Mythology, Statistics, Drama, Dance, Origami, Advanced Robotics, Viticulture, Ancient Egypt, Zentangle, Silent Film, Watercolor Painting, Mythbusters, Forensic Science, Construction Technology, Life Sports, Advanced Science, Jazz Band, Stained Glass and Yearbook.

"The curricular goals and objectives of Lancer Leap can be summarized in four C's: Communication, Creativity, Critical Thinking, and Collaboration," Gaffney said. "Thanks to our wonderfully talented and flexible teaching staff we are able to challenge and inspire our students in ways that are not always possible in other districts."

In 2013, the Michigan Association of School Administrators recognized Lancer Leap by awarding it their prestigious Winner's Circle award for innovative programming.

Each year the Lancer Leap project term culminates in a community showcase event. Many classes have projects and displays assembled for parents and community to view, while others put on live performances. This year's live events included jazz band and dance performances, a student produced silent film, a badminton match between teachers and students, and a production of the musical/play "High School Musical."

"One of the best aspects of our Lancer Leap program is the joy it brings to students," Gaffney said. "It's a fantastic way to end the year, everyone leaves for the summer in such an upbeat and positive frame of mind."

It truly represents our motto as a school district: Small school relationships... Big school opportunities."

Charlevoix kitchen designer recognized for award-winning design

BY SEAN MILLER
Special to the Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix resident and kitchen designer Liz Firebaugh was recently recognized in the annual Detroit Home Design Awards. Her award winning kitchen is a product of her expertise and innovative ideas that bring her kitchens to life.

When designing kitchens, one of her favorite colors to work with is white.

"We see white in high fashion, interior design, product design, and even architecture. White retains its classic timeless look and can adapt to any size or style. A white kitchen complemented by wood tones can have a cozy feel," said Firebaugh.

With more than 30 years experience in interior and kitchen design, Firebaugh never intended to make a career out of it. Firebaugh originally was into marketing and graduated from the University of Northern Colorado with a bachelor's degree in business management and marketing.

When she was younger she would babysit for her sister. During the time she spent in her sister's newly built home she overheard conversations between the house builders and her sister, realizing she knew more than the people building it.

Her listening ear to those conversations built her interest in design and she hit the ground running. She got training and soon landed a job as a designer.

Now, with more than 2,000 kitchens designed for clients, Firebaugh has enjoyed a lifetime dedicated to building beautiful kitchens. Some of her designs have been featured in magazines such as Better Homes & Gardens, Cabin Life, and Midwest Living. She now owns Signature Kitchens right outside of Bay Harbor.

When building a new home, Firebaugh thinks it is crucial to work with a kitchen designer to get the perfect kitchen to complement your home. Designers work with their clients and get to know what they want through conversations, magazine clippings, drawings, pictures and the client's wants and must-haves.

"The decisions I make are based not only on decorative style, but on the client's lifestyle," she said. "I'll take into account a wealth of details about the client to present them with a kitchen design they'll be sure to love."

Aside from the recognition, Firebaugh is happy to recently have won the Detroit Home Design Award. Placing in third place this year, this is another milestone and award to add to her collection. Her most prestigious award is the Pinnacle Award in 2005, the National Kitchen & Bath Association's highest industry award. This award nationally recognizes her work in kitchen design.

Firebaugh's passion for kitchen design and appreciation for her clients keeps her going and gives her inspiration to keep creating award winning kitchens.

"It's all about having a plan, thinking beyond the kitchen walls, and choosing a palette of tone and texture that sets the desired mood," explains Firebaugh about the award-winning kitchen. "Even a modest footprint and dual design challenges can yield high style and function."

Couple's invention plunges them into new diving board venture

RYAN BENTLEY

CHARLEVOIX — For Corey and Anne Schaub, a makeshift invention meant to entertain their children has evolved into a full-time business focus.

While visiting Anne's parents, Al and Joy Hettig, at Six Mile Lake near East Jordan in summer 2012, the Northern Michigan natives sought a way to keep their kids occupied without digital devices close at hand.

The Hettigs' pontoon boat wasn't capable of speeds that the youngsters would find exciting, but Anne believed that adding a diving board to it might pique their interest. She asked Corey to tackle the project, and he spent about 20 minutes in her father's workshop following through.

The result, which the couple now refer to as the "redneck diving board," was constructed mainly with wood and duct tape, and used a basketball to provide spring action.

"We put it on the boat, and the kids had a blast all weekend long, and we of course jumped off too," Anne said.

During the family's five-hour car trip back to their then-home in Fort Wayne, Ind., Anne researched to see if any boat-mounted diving boards were available commercially. She found none. A product-development idea began to take root, one that Anne and Corey began devoting time to alongside their full-time jobs.

Corey, whose work background includes stints in sales and design of extruded aluminum products and as a service manager for boats and recreational products, focused on the project's engineering aspects. His wife, who has a business management degree and worked in non-profit marketing in recent years, tackled marketing plans for the new diving board. Corey's sons, Austin and Avery — now 15 and 17, respectively — offered input along the way, too.

"There were many designs and prototypes that we went through," Anne said. "It was truly a family project."

Along the way, one key challenge was finding a way to manage the downward forces generated by a diver jumping off the end of the board, which can cause significant up-and-down jarring of the boat.

"This design contains all of that," Corey said.

The Schaub's diving board makes use of a progressive-rate urethane spring, a type used elsewhere in stamping equipment, to cancel the force from the jumping.

By fall 2013, the Schaub's were ready to seek out a manufacturer for the LilliPad diving board (named for their daughter, Lillian, now 3), and the product was ready for customers the following spring.

Now living in Traverse City, Corey and Anne are making LilliPad their full-time work pursuit. Just shy of 800 LilliPad boards were sold in the product's first year on the market, Corey noted.

With mostly aluminum construction, the diving boards list for $1,295 to $1,395, depending on mounting provisions. Surface and under-floor mount types are offered. The board can accommodate divers weighing up to 250 pounds, and instructions specify that water depth should be 15 feet or more for diving.

"We have close to 100 dealers across the country and in Canada," Corey said, adding that one French retailer carries the diving board as well.

LilliPad Diving Boards recently announced a partnership allowing its product to be offered as an option on Michigan-built Avalon and Tahoe pontoon boats. The Schaub's also see opportunity in the houseboat industry, as well as with owners of power boats and sailboats that offer a flat area for installation. The diving board earned an Innovation Award in the watersport equipment category at the Miami International Boat Show earlier this year in Florida.

LilliPad currently has warehousing in Indiana, which the Schaub's would like to bring to Northern Michigan if the venture's success continues.

To achieve a workable cost structure, the Schaub's have relied on overseas manufacturing — in China, to be specific — for the diving boards so far. But if business volume continues to grow, they're hopeful that U.S. assembly could be a more cost-effective option for LilliPad in the future.

Charlevoix County updates Land Use Plan

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Planning Commission is in the process of updating the 2009 County Future Land Use Plan. This plan serves as a guide for county and local government officials as they make decisions regarding land use and development.

As part of this process, the Planning Commission is conducting a survey to determine if the land use goals in the 2009 plan are still important to citizens in the county today. The survey includes questions about land use, economic growth, development patterns and related topics. The results of this survey will help determine the future direction of Charlevoix County. The public is invited to take a few moments to complete the survey, which is posted on the county website at charlevoixcounty.org.

The survey will be open until 5 p.m. Friday,

July 31. Paper copies of the survey are also available at the Charlevoix County GIS and Planning Department, County Building — lower level, 301 State St., Charlevoix, MI 49720. Office hours are 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

"We just renewed a contract with the city for fire coverage and that was based on a 24-hour manned station," Wood said. "I don't think this is a good thing for the city."

Wood's other concern was about the increase of insurance rates to homeowners. ISO collects information on municipal fire-protection efforts in communities throughout the United States. In each of those communities, ISO analyzes the relevant data using a Fire Suppression Rating Schedule, which then assigns the community a Public Protection Classification from 1-10. The lower the number, the higher rates will be.

"We don't know what the effect will be at this time," Doan said. "It will take time to get this figured out. The main thing people should know is they have fire protection."

Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Dan Thorp also said he has looked into the insurance rates without a clear answer.

"There are so many factors to this," Thorp said. "It all depends on who you talk to and no one answer is the same."

Thorp told city council members that his department is willing to work with the city to help out during this time of transition, which has been a desire of council for the past few months.

"I think it is great that we can develop working relationships with Charlevoix Township," said council member Shirley Gibson. "Costs are too high to not have agreements with our neighbors. It's time to put the past behind us and move forward together for a better Charlevoix."

Fewer fire calls and more EMS calls received by the city contributed to the decision, Doan said.

In 2014, there were 832 EMS runs and only 107 fire runs.

"The higher EMS runs could be because of our aging population in the area," Doan said. "Obviously there is an increase to the visitor population, which also helps raise those numbers."

In order to retain the emergency medical service workers they have to be paid more money, officials said. Wages largely were based on the number of calls on each shift. If there were no calls, the base pay was just $6.66 for a 12-hour shift.

The numbers appear to show this is the right direction for the city, said council member Bill Supernaw.

"There isn't the money to make this work for EMS and Fire, something had to be done," Supernaw said.

Charlevoix EMS serves the city, Charlevoix Township, Hayes Township, Marion Township, Norwood Township, and a portion of Eveline Township while the fire department serves the city of Charlevoix and a portion of Eveline Township.

The final goal of the transition will be to establish a department of public safety in Charlevoix, Doan said.

"We need to have a department where each of people is trained in EMS, police and fire," Doan said. "Our goal is in the future is that all new people coming in the department will be cross-trained."

ROAST

Construction, Porter Creek Fish House and Stone-house Bread.

A wide variety of free events for children will take place in the park including rock climb, bungee jumping, dunk tank and traditional games alongside a Pine Lake Winds concert at noon.

The Ellsworth High School class of 1965 is having its reunion at 6 p.m. in the EHS gym, however all graduates of the 60s are invited to come play themed games and reconnect.

For current EHS members, new events were added this year.

"We had heard there was not enough for teens to do, so this year we added two major events for them," Spearing said. "The roast has a very festive atmosphere, it's family-friendly and for people of all ages. The littiest and oldest in the family all can come."

At 3 p.m. a "Tough Mudder" style race starts for free next to the park. From 8-11 p.m. Banks Township Hall is hosting a teen dance.

From 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Historic Trolley Tours run down through the downtown, sponsored by the Banks Township Historical Society. Participants can compete in a 3-point shoot out for various age classes from 12:30-3 p.m. or in archery for prizes from 1:30-3 p.m. in Ellsworth Community Park.

Most events are offered at no cost for the participants. For a full list of events, go to facebook.com/Eliebration positive," Elliott said.

There also will be a new retaining wall built along State Street south of Antirum Street.

Crews have completed much of the underground infrastructure on the north end of town and have begun grading. The work is slower also because of the depth crews have to go to complete the upgrades.

"When crews have to dig 20-feet below the surface that is an extreme amount of soil to move," Elliott said. "That work takes time and moves a bit slower."

PARKING

"I don't think many people were aware we had increased the fines this year," Doan said.

Local business man Tim Fore said parking meters and fines discourage people from shopping in downtown.

"We want to make downtown Charlevoix welcoming to shoppers," Fore said. "Our aggressive parking fines do not do that."

Fore gave council members a chart about metered parking in 10 cities along U.S. 31

"Only three cities have metered parking," Fore said. "We are the highest with our fines and we wonder why we have empty store fronts."

Gibson did not agree with Fore's comparison of Charlevoix to other lake shore cities.

"We are not other cities," Gibson said. "Our parking meters are not the cause of empty stores in downtown. A two-hour parking meter is good for downtown. If you need more time park in our free lots."

Council member Luther Kurtz believes the $15 fine does prevent people from parking all day on Bridge Street.

"The idea of the fine is to keep parking available throughout the day on Bridge Street," Kurtz said. "We offer three lots within a block of downtown that offer free parking. Each lot is a short walk to our downtown businesses."

Kurtz did agree with lowering the fines back to $10, but hopes the city will look at a possible warning ticket like Petoskey.

"If we can issue a warning the first time that would be helpful," Kurtz said.

The complaint from residents that council member Bill Supernaw said he is hearing about is the $15 meter fine increases to $30 if not paid in 24 hours. "Potentially that can happen," Doan said. "That is an incentive to get them to pay the ticket, we have given residents a short grace period to pay without the fine doubling if they contact us."

Expired meter fines are $10, but if they are not paid in a 24-hour period the customer could still pay $30, Doan said.

"The resolution was to lower the fine it did not address anything else," Doan said.

Local health officials caution: Think before you ink

CHARLEVOIX - The Health Department of Northwest Michigan reminds residents to think before you ink.

The health department encourages potential tattoo and piercing clients to do their research on body art facilities. Only licensed facilities — those inspected and approved by health department sanitarians — may legally perform tattooing, branding or body piercings.

It is extremely important that individuals use reputable, licensed artists for their body art, said Scott Kendzierski, director of environmental health at the health department.

"Unlicensed operations put people at serious risk of contracting unwanted and potentially life-altering, blood borne diseases or infections," Kendzierski said. "Many unlicensed 'artists' have not apprenticed under a technician or been properly trained, which can result in a range of issues from poor artistry to infection and disfigurement."

The inspection process ensures that tattooists and piercers are in compliance with state regulation. For example, inspectors will review the facility's records for training documentation, equipment sterilization records, and signed parental consent forms. Inspections also evaluate cleaning and sterilization practices, cross-contamination prevention procedures, sharps procedures, expiration dates of inks and sterilized equipment and the use of approved products and materials. Such requirements aim to decrease the risk of transmission of blood borne diseases such as hepatitis B, hepatitis C, and human immunodeficiency virus (HIV).

Michigan law states that individuals shall not tattoo, brand or perform body piercing unless they operate out of a licensed facility. Not only do unlicensed body artists break the law, but they may risk the health of their clients by not following appropriate infection control protocols.

"There are many unlicensed people tattooing and piercing that do not have the proper training, equipment, or environment to conduct procedures safely," Kendzierski said. "Body modification — whether a tattoo or piercing — is a medical procedure and should be done under controlled conditions with the highest level of client education and assurance."

Troop 11, assisted a multitude of children from all over the area fish for trout in East Park's trout pond.

"The kids' enjoy this each year," said Christopher Snabes, assistant scoutmaster. "We go from having no one to a large group of kids all at once."

This year, 5 year-old Iris Chulick, of Charlevoix, took home the grand prize of a 4-hour chartered fishing trip aboard Ward Brothers Boat Inc., in Charlevoix.

"She caught the winning fish real early this year," Snabes said. "It was just a little after 10 a.m. We had just opened the kids fishing."

Kent Seymour, trout tournament president said this year's tournament was successful.

"There was 120 boats out fishing this year," Seymour said. "We are seeing a lot of families watching the fish weigh-ins and enjoying the park. It's a great time."

Seymour said that they were seeing a lot of walleye being brought in on Saturday.

"We added the walleye category a few years back when brown trout numbers were declining," Seymour said. "Having walleye as an option gives our smaller boat people a chance to participate in the tournament. It's a great category for a grandparent and their grandchildren to participate in or whoever. It's about families having fun together."

More than 100 different cash prize were awarded on Sunday and the first place winners each walked away with $1,000 and their fish mounted by Jeff Lutz, of Lasting Memories Taxidermy. Largest fish caught on each day received $100.

Winners of each category are:

— Ryan Matuzak, Walleye, 7.03 pounds

— Denny Mousseau, Salmon, 13.42 pounds

— Jarod Reibel, Brown Trout, 6.60 pounds

— Matthew Murray, Steelhead, 8.24 pounds

— Ken Klintworth, Lake Trout, 17.26 pounds

Port prize is the biggest fish each day winners are:

— Friday, Ken Klintworth, Lake Trout 17.26 pounds

— Saturday, Eric Art, Salmon, 13.38 pounds

— Sunday, Keith Wilson, Salmon, 12.80 pounds

Marathon set to draw nearly 2,000 runners

CHRISTOPHER LUN
(231) 437-4343 • christopherlun@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Marathon is famous as a destination for runners across the country, and even around the globe.

And few events draw more visitors to a single day to the small lake-side community than the Charlevoix Marathon, now entering its ninth consecutive year.

The marathon, which has steadily grown in size since its inception in 2006, is expected to attract a field of nearly 2,000 runners on Saturday, June 27, bringing competitors and their families to the area in droves.

"We set a record for attendance with last year's race at nearly 2,000 competitors, and we should be right around that number again this year," race director Ron Suffolk said.

"We're prepared right now for 2,000 walkers, and when you bring that many people to the area, it's a huge draw in a lot of ways."

Suffolk attributes the success of the event to two major factors. The first is the area's natural beauty, which makes it an incredibly popular course with competitors.

"We have packet pickup in Bridge Park, and our course is on pavement the entire way out on the bike paths between Charlevoix and Petoskey right alongside Lake Michigan," Suffolk said. "I can't think of a more beautiful course for a road race, and that scenery is definitely a huge draw."

Alongside the course is the quality of the race itself. The Charlevoix Marathon is an officially-designated qualifier for the Boston Marathon, and Suffolk and his family who run the event take that designation with the utmost seriousness.

"My wife Sharon and my son Jeffery are both sticklers for detail, and there's not a lot that gets by them," Suffolk said. "We know how important it is to have a quality race in every aspect, and we spend a lot of time getting feedback and working hard to make the experience better and better every year."

Although Suffolk's family is a big help in putting on the event, he noted that it's the support of the entire community of Charlevoix that's helped to make it a success.

"Everyone in the community, from the city council to hotels and businesses, has really embraced the marathon," Suffolk said. "They've seen the amount of people it can draw here and the financial impact that has on our community, and they work hard marathon runners, and we feel like we have some of the best aid stations around," Suffolk said. "I can't say enough about the job they do, and it's one of the biggest reasons people keep coming back to this race."

This year, the Marathon has pre-registered competitors from 39 states, including Alaska and Hawaii, as well as 36 Canadians and a runner from Turkey, making it a truly competitive and international field.

If a marathon is too daunting a distance, the organizers are also hosting a half-marathon, a 10K and a 5K on the same day to give runners and walkers options.

Runners can register online at charlevoixmarathon.com for any of the four events until midnight, June 23. Cost for the marathon is $95, the half-marathon is $75, the 10K is $55 and the 5K is $35 and includes a race bib, Under Armour T-shirt and other goodies.

Barutt develops love for tennis after joining Charlevoix's varsity program

SABRINA HOSLER
Special to the Courier

The only team Charlevoix sophomore Elizabeth Barutt was passionate about being on was her high school swim team — until she started playing tennis.

It began after her friend, Alana Tinsley, wanted Barutt to be on the tennis team with her. Barutt joined, yet her friend didn't. Despite Tinsley not joining with her, she still stuck with playing tennis.

Even though she's only been playing for one season, and had absolutely no interest in playing tennis before, the sport has really grown on her. Now, Barutt has become much closer with people she hardly even knew before — the other members on her team.

"Tennis has really helped me to gain friends," Barutt said. "The person I'm probably closest with is my doubles partner, Lydia Balyo."

Barutt regrets not joining the team sooner, and said she will definitely continue playing for her last two years of high school.

Her favorite part of the team is that everyone is so welcoming, and everybody is included in activities.

The only problem Barutt has found is that when some of their matches were canceled, they were never rescheduled, which made her sad because she enjoys playing so much.

"...The most important thing I got out of my tennis playing experience was that I learned that sometimes the little things make the biggest difference."

—Elizabeth Barutt

Her favorite game was the second time Charlevoix played against Grayling. Her doubles team won the first match and lost the second, resulting in a third, tiebreaker match. They came out victorious, but it took a long time to defeat them.

Playing tennis has really improved Elizabeth Barutt's life. She went from having only one extra-curricular activity, swimming, to branching out and having another, tennis. She went from never having any interest in tennis, to regularly watching tennis matches on TV and actually joining the tennis team.

"The most important thing I got out of my tennis playing experience was that I learned that sometimes the little things make the biggest difference," Barutt said.

COURTESY

Elizabeth Barutt had no interest in tennis for most of her life, but after joining the Charlevoix girls tennis team this spring the sophomore has developed a passion for the game.

Bergmann: City council hostile toward business

'Hobo convention' comment escalates dispute between council member, Tap Room

LOWME ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Owners of the Bridge Street Tap Room and Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company have had problems with Charlevoix City Council member Jeff Porter in the past, but nothing quite like a recent spate of disputes.

"I am tired of the constant attack on the management team and our business from Dr. Porter," said Round Lake Group LLC owner Rich Bergmann.

Porter called the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company a "hobo convention," because he felt the use of outdoor grill was in violation of city code. Bergmann was upset with Porter and told council he is tired of the harassment.

"The attitude of this city council toward our businesses, which makes a significant contribution to this community is hostile," Bergmann said. "I feel we are being singled out."

Before confronting city council members about the harassment, Bergmann shared static about the economic impact of his business in Charlevoix. He said the two businesses employ 45 young people from Charlevoix all year round, with a local payroll of more than $250,000.

Also, they have made more than $1.5 million in maintenance and improvement costs to the building spaces they occupy.

"We pay our bills and we have made viable use of an area that was bringing no revenue to the city prior to our use," Bergmann said.

Bergmann blames Porter, who represents Ward 1, for the flurry of warnings and city visits. Aaron Ha-CHARLEVOIX — It's been about 100 years since Charlevoix first struck up the band.

Or so they say ...

Some would say claiming a mere century would not give full accolades to the Charlevoix City Band, pointing out that in an article in the former Charlevoix Sentinel reported: "P. P. Winegar, an accomplished musician, was secured to teach the Charlevoix Cornet Band in 1876, and that the village offices responded to the call to defray any expenses for the summer evening edification of a music loving public."

"The band has played in Charlevoix in some form or another since late 1800s," said Charlevoix City Band director Gary Stutzman. "In 1883, on the Fire Bell, CHARLEVOIX — As the Fourth of July approaches, Charlevoix residents are reminded to follow state and local laws regarding the purchase and use of fireworks, as well as to exercise extreme caution.

"We want everyone to know the guidelines we've established are to prevent harm to people and property," said police and fire chief Gerard Doan.

The sights and sounds show people are eager to celebrate America's independence with fireworks. But they are reminded that as of June 4, Charlevoix's fireworks ordinance bans the use of consumer fireworks within the city except for the day of, day before and day after a federal holiday. No use is allowed between the hours of midnight and 8 a.m., with the exception of New Year's Day, when

St. Marys upgrade in final stages before construction

MALACHI BARRETT

CHARLEVOIX — Plans for a $130 million upgrade to the St. Marys Cement Inc. facility in Charlevoix are in the final stages of preparation before beginning demolition work.

Scheduled for completion by May 2017, the project will remediate brownfield conditions at the St. Marys Cement manufacturing plant, demolish and remove existing outdated buildings and equipment, and prepare the site for future expansion. The project could create 10 new long-term jobs, 300 temporary construction jobs over the course of nearly two years, a $130 million investment in expanding its annual cement output from 1.4 million tons to 2 million tons.

"We haven't started anything, we're still in the engineering development stages of the project so we're trying to finalize selection of equipment vendors and that type of stuff," said plant manager Randy Pryor. "We hope to start some of the demolition work in the very near future. Hopefully by the end of the summer we'll be looking at starting at least a portion of the project."

Pryor said substantive work will begin in the next two to three months starting with minor demolition work. Because of the complexity of the project, Pryor said a larger contractor will be needed, though local contracts will be signed to employ county residents.

DDA takes action on bathroom complaints

LOWME ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — Inadequate restrooms facilities are not a new complaint for the three tenants of Robert Bridge Memorial Park building, but it's one they are tired of making.

On Monday, June 19, Rich Bergmann, owner of the Round Lake Group LLC, which co-owns the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company — one of the businesses that rents space in the building from the Downtown Development Authority — told DDA members that something needed to be done.

"It's an issue we feel needs to be taken care of immediately," Bergmann said.

Annie Doyle, director of the authority and the Charlevoix Main Street Program said the board is aware of tenant complaints and is taking steps to correct the problems.

"Rich brought up bathroom maintenance during our meeting and our board is committed to fix the problems," Doyle said.

During the meeting board members passed a recommendation to inform city officials they would like staff to address the problem immediately.

"Whatever it takes to get the restrooms fixed we need to do it now," said member John Kurtz.

Tenant concerns appear to have slipped through the cracks and the authority was not aware of building problems, said authority chairman Dan Barron.

"The DDA is trying to figure this all out," Barron said. "We were not aware of all the specific problems with the building and we also want a nice building. We're committed to a

United Way and Revolution Bike team up to provide 40 bikes for local kids

CHARLEVOIX — Happiness comes on two wheels and that is how it will arrive for more than 40 children in our community.

Several years ago, Chet Morris, owner of Revolution Bike of Charlevoix spearheaded the Bikes for Kids project. Chet wanted to give back to his community, so he contacted Char-Em United Way and asked for help in donating some bikes.

"I wanted to reach out on a local level in a way that gets bikes to kids who otherwise could not afford them," Morris said. "It feels good and benefits all of us by re-using and re-cycling a great product."

Morris said people can bring their used bikes to his shop in downtown Charlevoix so they can refurbish them for the bike program.

This year the bikes will be distributed to children in foster care throughout the two counties.

"We love this project and love helping to spread the joy by getting the bikes to kids who otherwise wouldn't have one this summer," said Lorraine Manary, Executive Director of Char-Em

United Way.

For more information about donating your old bikes call Morris at (231) 237-0900. For more information about Char-Em United Way, call (231) 487-1006.

Charlevoix Public Library receives 3D printers

MALACHI BARRETT

(231) 547-6558 - mbarrett@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Thanks to three students in the Petoskey High School Robotics Team, the Charlevoix Public Library and Petoskey District Library will receive 3D printing technology to be made available to the public soon.

Members of the Paladins Robotics Team Jeremiah Johnson, Jacob Kromm and Max Meyerson wrote and had grants approved by the Leo S. Guthman Fund, a Chicago-based family foundation that provides resources to the arts and various youth programs. The students are currently training Petoskey library staff members how to operate the two $2,500 printers and $800 digital scanner. The printers will open in Charlevoix sometime this summer to patrons who complete a one-to-two-hour training course.

"Myself and the library staff went to Petoskey before we had even ordered the printers," said Technology assistant Roger Gowell. "So we were able to see how the equipment is set up which was beneficial."

Gowell said the library has reached out to Charlevoix High School's robotics team — The Raydemators — to establish a partnership. In the future, The Raydemators could hold training sessions with the public.

Gowell said it will be interesting to see what people can create with the printers and is excited to use them himself.

"You're really only limited by your own imagination," he said.

The printers create a three-dimensional solid object from a digital file by laying down successive layers of material until the entire object is created. Each of these layers can be seen as a thinly sliced horizontal cross-section of the finished object.

Open-source files ranging from toys and puzzles to prostheses and assemble-able machines can be found on the Internet, and the libraries' digital scanners allow objects to be digitized for duplication. It takes around an hour for most projects depending on the size and complexity of the object.

The 3D printers will cost $1 for the first 10 grams of plastic-life filament used to create the object, with additional filament costing 10 cents per gram. Johnson said most objects require under 100 grams of material.

"Anything and everything you want can probably be made on these," Johnson said. "There are some limitations, but for the most part if you want it you can make it. As for demand, I have no idea how much interest will be in these classes. I've had several people in the community approach me interested but we'll have to see."

The technology has been around since 1980s, when it was originally conceived as a faster and more cost-effective method for creating prototypes for product development within industry. Gowell said consumer printing became more popular in libraries now that it has become more affordable and now, 250 libraries across the country have 3D printers according to a 2006 survey by the American Library Association.

"Honestly, I'd like to think 3D printers will be in everyone's homes in the next five years, but realistically they're probably not," Johnson said. "The use for them is growing exponentially. I think if someone is interested in learning a new thing that will be very applicable in industrial and prototyping settings. I think it's a cool thing to learn."

Johnson, son of Petoskey Library Director Val Meyerson and cousin of Max Meyerson, wrote a grant for the robotics team that earned them a printer for use in their 2015 competitive season. This gave the team extensive hands-on experience with the technology.

When she was approached by a donor from the Guthman Fund who wished to provide resources for 3D printing in local libraries, Meyerson turned to her son and the robotics team.

"The idea is to have high school students continue to train the public each year," Meyerson said. "The kids will then teach the younger classes when they graduate and continue the cycle."

Learning about boating in United States Power Squadrons

LORRIE ALLEN

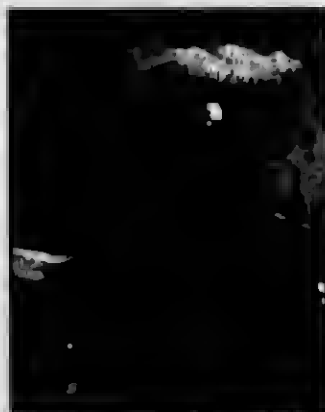

(231) 547-6558 - lallen@schurz.com

"The Members Log" is a monthly series where the Charlevoix Courier will feature a member of the Tip of the Mitt Sail and Power Squadron, which is a chapter of the United States Power Squadron. All the chapters promote boating through education, seamanship and navigation for all vessels small or large sailing and mechanically powered. The series is designed to tell the personal boating stories of each member, share their experiences with the organization and tell the reader the many places members have traveled to with their boats. This month the Courier turns its light to Bill Lovett, the administrative officer for the Tip of the Mitt Sail and Power Squadron.

CHARLEVOIX — Bill Lovett did not know marine laws or even basic boat handling skills before coming to Charlevoix.

"In 1990, my wife, Marilyn, and I bought what would become our retirement home in Charlevoix," Lovett said. "Shortly thereafter, we decided to buy our 200 horsepower i/o boat, and I haven't had any instructions on handling the boat. I called my boat salesman and asked where I could learn the basics of handling the boat and marine regulations."

Since the Lovetts were living in Lansing during the week the salesman informed him about the Lansing chapter of the United States Power Squadron. "I joined the squadron, and started taking their classes," Lovett said. "The seamanship class provides an introduction to boating, including how to handle a boat and marine laws. In the piloting class, I learned how to read and plot a course."

After taking the classes Lovett, and wife, Marilyn, planned a weekend boating cruise out to South Fox Island, from there they would head to the Leland marina for the night, and the next day cruise around the Leelanau Peninsula down to a Traverse City marina.

"With a pencil I laid out the whole course on my marine chart," Lovett said. "We cruised out to South Fox Island, dropped our anchor, and prepared our lunch. When I turned around in the boat, I was shocked when I couldn't see Charlevoix or any mainland. In the piloting class, I learn with the curvature of the earth at the water level you can't see more than 7 miles. The only thing I could see was the cement tower."

With his chart and boat compass they easily cruised over to Leland, he said.

"The next morning I checked my marine radio weather forecast, it reported that we would have clear weather," Lovett said. "We got five miles out of the port and heavy fog came in. This cruise was before GPS, so we reduced our speed and carefully followed the chart, compass, and depth finder, when we saw the North Port Lighthouse we headed east after passing the Leelanau Peninsula, and we headed south and arrived safely in Traverse City."

United States Power Squadron classes helped Lovett experience boating first hand and suggest to people living in Northern Michigan to check out the Tip of the Mitt Sail and Power Squadron.

"One of our upcoming classes is 'Partner in Command,'" Lovett said. "The course is designed to help the spouse take over handling the boat if the captain becomes ill and can not operate the vessel. Please consider joining the Tip of the Mitt Sail and Power Squadron and enjoy a group of people who love, appreciate and have fun with boating."

For further membership information, email Bill Lovett at bllovet914@gmail.com.

The end of garlic mustard

We already know the best solution to the problem of invasive plants. History is our guide.

In the 19th century Prickly Pear Cactus was accidentally introduced into Australia.

EAR TO THE GROUND

Roger Knutson

At first there were only a few plants in one place, but in the course of decades the plant spread over thousands of square miles of grazing land. The grazing sheep were unable to use the plant as food and eventually it prevented grazing on land it had invaded. What to do?

In North America, where Prickly Pear was native its spread was kept in check partly by the voracious efforts of the caterpillar of a moth appropriately named Cactoblastis cactorum. A few moths were transported to Australia and released. Within a few years the plague of Prickly Pear was controlled and to the present time it is not a problem on arid grazing land.

Garlic Mustard is a native of Europe and Asia, and apparently none of its native enemies were imported with it. That is not completely accurate. In Europe and Asia Garlic Mustard is a welcome vegetable. Humna immigrants apparently did not bring a taste for it with them when they arrived in America.

In culinary writings it is described in this way. "It seems custom-made for today's culinary fashion, combining the perfume of garlic and the kick of mustard in a pretty leafy package."

One of its common names in its home territory is sauce-alone.

As part of my effort to control what many consider a pernicious weed, I submit a few easy recipes for its use.

Garlic Mustard Sauce:

— Combine coarsely chopped mustard garlic mustard leaves with olive oil and ground allspice in large skillet. Cook until wilted — about 5 minutes — and serve over fish.

Simple Pasta Sauce:

— 3 cups of chopped garlic mustard leaves

— Chopped onion and red pepper

— Paprika, cumin, turmeric, coriander, paper and salt

— Sauté onions, red pepper in olive oil, add the spices, stir in the garlic mustard leaves and allow to wilt. Serve over cooked tubular pasta or shells.

As can be readily seen, the garlic mustard problem could be solved in Michigan by the original European consumers who migrated here.

I expect garlic mustard to begin showing up in farmer's markets. Its use as the sauce for the charitable spaghetti dinners we make here would be real help and might kill tow birds with one stone. Both by assisting charitable efforts with an inexpensive pasta sauce and eliminating the plant from our fields and forests.

Historically, the Australian solution is sure to help with control efforts as well as increasing our culinary adventures. Step up now and help with control.

Charlevoix Elementary recognizes volunteers, contributors

More petunias please

Editor:
Hi! My name is Maya from Charlevoix Elementary School. I have a few ideas to make Charlevoix even better and more fun than before.

I think that Charlevoix needs some more flowers when we do the petunia planting. It sounds crazy, but I think we should put petunias on the channel. It would be beautiful to boaters and tourists would love it even more. I think there should be boxes to hold them in. I am talking about metal boxes because wood would deteriorate too quickly and would have to be replaced every year. Metal would hold up better and you could easily shade them the same color as the fence. It would also save water. All the excess water would drip back into the lake instead of it drying up on the cement.

The petunias would look quite pretty and also would give more room to plant petunias. As I said before, boaters would love the idea of flowers greeting them as they come in and the Beaver Islander and the Emerald Isle would have a beautiful view, but that does not matter as much. I think that petunias would look beautiful on the pier and I hope other people do too!

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

Charlevoix's historic vessels

The following excerpt is from the Charlevoix Historical Society's new fully illustrated publication "Charlevoix's Historic Vessels," and describes what the Round Lake waterfront — in the photo — and Antrim Street dock in front of Ward Brothers Charters, looked like for over half a century.

"On Oct. 8, 1869, the small schooner Mendota was the first vessel of substantial size to be towed into Round Lake after the straightening of the channel to Lake Michigan had been completed. This milestone opened the floodgates. For more than half a century hundreds of these magnificent boats connected Pine River and Charlevoix to the rest of the world. Round Lake also served as a port in a storm. Many schooners raced here to get out of harm's way when squalls erupted on the big lake with no warning. They would tie up five to six abreast. From a distance, so many schooner masts poking into the sky made the Round Lake waterfront look like the edge of a forest."

A program celebrating this publication will take place at 6:45 p.m. on Monday, June 29, at the East Park band shell. The evening will begin with a chorus singing sea shanties, conducted by Charlevoix music director Gary Stutzman, followed by a brief history of Round Lake presented by Harsha House museum curator David L. Miles, a book signing and conclude with a tour of the sailing schooner Inland Seas which will be anchored at the city marina. The schooner's captain will be aboard to explain how the vessel is rigged and sailed. All of these events are handicapped accessible. Drop-offs for the band shell are at the east end of Antrim Street near Ward Brothers Charters.

Charlevoix Circle of Arts presents armchair theater

CHARLEVOIX — Twelve local actors will read letters written by historic notables including Ben Franklin, Ernest Hemingway, Zelda Fitzgerald, Queen Elizabeth, as well as, notes to Santa at 6:30 p.m. on Sunday, June 28. The letters span twenty centuries. "Letters Of Love" is produced by Armchair Theatre, the performing arts branch of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, 109 Clinton St., in Charlevoix.

The cast includes Tim Cox, Hugh Hansen, Ivey Hudson, Dale Hull, Kay Hull, Pat Immonen, Steve Kantola, Sandy Miles, Yasmin Richmond, Jan Salisbury, Rick Torres and Dick Williams.

"Ever since the cave-man chiseled in stone, man has written letters," said director Ruth Willis. "Nothing is more worthy of our attention than our personal lives and loves. The child's note taped to the refrigerator, the greeting in the mail of encouragement, apology, thanks, is just as much filled with love as letters of romantic passion. Letters contain the back stories of our feelings and actions."

SummerFolk Concert Series opens at the Charlevoix library

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Library is pleased to announce the lineup for the annual SummerFolk Concert Series. The SummerFolk Concerts, take place 6:30-8:30 p.m. on the last Monday of each month. Come celebrate local folk artists with an evening of music.

The featured performer kicks off the evening with a 45 minute concert, that is followed by an open mic session; an opportunity for the public to share talents. Open mic sign-up begins at 6 p.m. the night of the concert, and is limited to five performers. All concerts are free and donations at the door are appreciated.

Claudia Schmidt's powerful vocals will lead the series on June 29. Schmidt is a powerful vocalist and adventurous artist, who combines lively folk, jazz and blues with rich poetry and playful humor. Hailing from Michigan, she knew at a young age that she was destined to be a singer. Performing in numerous choirs throughout her youth, Schmidt soon pursued a professional career while in Chicago, leading her to Wisconsin and Minnesota, where she was a frequent guest on the early days of A Prairie Home Companion. Forty years and 16 albums later, Schmidt continues to perform on the road to her loyal legions of fans across the country. Schmidt mixes folk, jazz, traditional ballads and originals.

and raised on a farm in Lake City. After graduating from Lake City High School, Bernard opted for a postgraduate year at Interlochen Arts Academy where he studied theater, music and poetry. Friends and collaborators have released albums through Earthwork Music Collective, created by Bernard. On July 27, he shares energetic, diverse and creative music.

Joining the summer line-up on Aug. 17, will be the library's own The Librarians with Dwain Martin, Amy Cook, Robin Luce and Jessica Dominic. All four performers work at the library or have worked at a library in the recent past. Dwain is a songwriter in the folk-rock genre with a strong lyrical foundation using a variety of musical styles and instruments. This performance helps raise funds for the folk concert series. Donations at the door are appreciated.

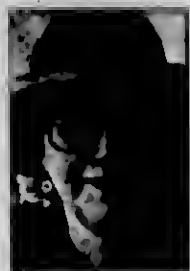

Peter Madcat Ruth is a performer who has such a good time playing music that audiences, ranging from preschoolers to senior citizens, respond enthusiastically to his performances. Madcat's repertoire of styles includes Blues, American Roots Music, Folk, Jazz, and World Music. He performs on Aug. 31.

Rounding out the summer series is Lee Murdock on Sept. 28. This performer has uncovered a boundless body of music and stories in the Great Lakes. His music is grounded in the work song tradition, from the rugged days of lumberjacks and wooden sailing schooners. Murdock comes alongside with ballads of contemporary commerce and revelry in the grand folk style.

For more information about the SummerFolk Concert Series, call Dwain Martin at (231) 547-2651.

BUSINESS

Main Street: Community support is the start

Annie Doyle is the director of the Charlevoix Main Street Program and Downtown Development Authority. This is the first installment of the regularly scheduled series - Main Street.

We Deserve More
The basic idea behind the success of any Main Street Program is that by working together a community can use its collective resources to create economic revitalization.

So, I dare you to think for a moment about what our community has the potential to be. Putting aside doubts and reasons for failure, just let your mind imagine the flush with year-round employment opportunities? How about a downtown with no vacant storefronts (even in the winter)? Do you see a gathering place for families, neighbors and visitors to enjoy activities and cultural events;

MAIN STREET
Annie Doyle

Charlevoix you truly believe would be an amazing place to live, work and play. What do you see? Do you envision a community that is or possibly you imagine a business-friendly destination for residents and visitors to experience unique and vibrant entertainment and recreation? Do you see engaged citizens of all ages coming together to volunteer, socialize and positively impact our community using creativity and imagination? Whatever your specific vision may be, teamwork is the crucial ingredient for success and the good news is this: Charlevoix is already a place with active citizens, effective organizations and dedicated volunteers — think Operation Petunia.

For more than 30 years, the Main Street movement has established an excellent history of transforming the way communities think about the revitalization and management of their downtowns. Cities and towns across the nation have come to see that a prosperous, sustainable community is only as healthy as its core.

The Charlevoix Main Street program is based on a positive force of community volunteers; business/property owners, residents, students, retirees and grass-roots participants all of whom wish to preserve, enhance, and promote our historic downtown as a vibrant destination for residents and visitors to gather, shop, work, and enjoy. In March of this year Charlevoix was awarded the honor to participate in the Michigan Main Street program which offers, to specially chosen communities, five years of intensive technical assistance with a focus on revitalization strategies for their downtown central business district. This program is designed to attract new residents, business investment, economic growth and job creation.

Let's Get Started

About the same time we were accepted into the Main Street Program, I joined the team as director of Charlevoix Main Street — also known as the Downtown Development Authority. I am looking forward to providing regular updates through this column and especially to the resulting community dialogue. We currently have openings on the design, promotions, economic development and organization teams. You can learn more about each team by checking out the descriptions under the Main Street tab at downtowncharlevoix.org; or by contacting me, Annie Doyle, DDA/Main Street director, at (231) 547-3257 or annied@cityofcharlevoix.org.

Together we can be the change we wish to see.

Next Wellness Wednesday set for July 1

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Area Hospital will host the Wellness Wednesday program from 8-11 a.m. on Wednesday, July 1, in classroom B at the hospital, 14700 Lake Shore Drive.

Special recognition goes to Marge McGoff. McGoff is recognized in the U.S. and International for her expertise in floral design as well as being a flower show judge.

Last year she participated in Dublin, where she designed an arrangement for the invitational show.

In prior years, she exhibited at the Chelsea Flower Show in England.

St. Mary becomes MI HEART Safe School

CHARLEVOIX — St. Mary School was named a MI HEART Safe School by the Michigan Departments of Health and Human Services and Education, American Heart Association, Michigan Athletic Association and Michigan Alliance for Prevention of Sudden Cardiac Death of the Young, which recognizes schools that are prepared to respond to cardiac emergencies.

Between 1999 and 2009 in Michigan, there were 3,134 young individuals between 1-39 years of age who died of sudden cardiac death. Of those, 246 were from 5-19 years of age. In its second year, the MI HEART Safe Schools designation is Michigan's commitment to reducing the number of sudden cardiac deaths in our youth. Last year was the first year of the program, and 40 schools were designated in Michigan.

"Sudden cardiac death claims the lives of more than 300 Michigan children and young adults between the ages of 1-39 years of age each year," said Dr. Eden Wells, chief medical executive of Michigan Department of Health and Human Services. "Implementation of CPR and an automated external defibrillator within 3-5 minutes is crucial for increasing the chance of survival. Cardiac arrest is often unexpected and frightening, and I'm pleased to see so many of our schools taking preventative measures to address this health issue."

Public Act 12 of 2014 requires all schools grades K-12 to have a cardiac emergency response plan in place. St. Mary School currently has an existing cardiac emergency response plan and has taken additional steps to be prepared for a cardiac emergency.

In order for a school to receive a MI HEART Safe designation, it must perform at least one cardiac emergency response drill per year; have a written medical emergency response plan and team; have current CPR/AED certification of at least 10 percent of staff; have accessible, properly maintained and inspected AEDs with signs identifying their location; and ensure pre-participation sports screening of all student athletes using the current physical and history form endorsed by the Michigan High School Athletic Association.

Hospice can meet the needs of loved ones with dementia

When dementia patients receive hospice care, they benefit from better pain control, their families report greater satisfaction, and there are fewer hospitalizations related to ineffectual treatments. Families of dementia patients actually rate the value of hospice care as highly as families of patients with other diagnoses, and feel that more of their needs are met in the process.

So, then, why are dementia patients still under-enrolled in hospice programs? In many cases, the patient simply had no advance directive in place. Or, the patient's health insurance provider may not recognize his or her needs for hospice care, if the diagnosis isn't imminently terminal. Families simply may not know that hospice offers resources for loved ones suffering from dementia. Those holding out hopes for a cure may be reluctant to pursue hospice, and physicians may hesitate to recommend hospice, fearing that family members will think they're giving up on their patients. Of course, hospice is not about "giving up"; it's about making a choice to elect comfort care over curative care when the burden of medical treatments outweighs the benefit.

Although many experts characterize Alzheimer's disease and other dementias as terminal illnesses, physicians cannot readily speculate on how much longer a patient with such an illness may live. Patients who do live longer than six months beyond their initial hospice enrollment can sometimes be recertified, and continue to receive hospice services. Not meeting recertification for hospice services just means that the patient has stabilized, is physically comfortable and their quality of life has improved from the hospice care to the point that they do not need the day to day services. They then graduate the program until hospice services are needed again. Hospices are working effectively with challenging Medicaid and Medicare service eligibility standards to enroll dementia patients, but there is still a need to change the certification system to allow for the unpredictable life spans of these patients.

Hospices advocate and provide education about the importance of advance care planning, especially in the early course of a person diagnosed with a dementia illness. By the time a dementia patient may qualify for, or be enrolled in, hospice care, he or she is typically beyond the ability to express end-of-life care preferences. Having an advance care plan in place enables the patient to have the quality of care they want — when they want it — and also alleviates the burden on the family to make difficult decisions during a time of grief.

Quality of life is the cornerstone of hospice care. It is the foundation of our traditions, our philosophy, and our efforts to ensure death can happen with dignity. Hospice caregivers should be fully prepared for the challenges of caring for patients suffering from dementia, and for the needs of their families.

Choosing hospice is not "giving up" — quite the contrary. It's about taking control. You have the ability to choose a hospice that will work with your family physician to understand and meet the unique needs of a loved one with dementia.

Plans being made for the next Mid-Michigan Honor Flight

TRAVERSE CITY — Mid-Michigan Honor Flight is announcing plans for a fall flight, out of Traverse City, on Tuesday, Oct. 13.

"We have worked so hard to make sure we had a second flight this flying season because World War II veterans on our waiting list don't have the luxury of time to wait until next year," said Tricia Donegan, hub director for the Mid-Michigan Honor Flight hub.

Realizing that the average age of those on the waiting list is well into their 90s, it was the hub's focus to find the funding for another flight in 2015. In June 2015, Mid-Michigan Honor Flight was able to take 62 veterans to Washington, D.C. for a free "Tour of Honor," a once-in-a-lifetime experience.

"It takes many, many hands to plan and implement a Tour of Honor. We have had such an outpouring of groups wishing to assist us, and we so appreciate their time and efforts," said Donegan. "The Blue Star Mothers organizations in DeWitt, Meceola and Ionia-Kent-Montcalm have been our 'go to' people to help with registration, meet and greet and the welcome home. They are such an awesome group of women to work with. We support their work, and they support ours."

It gave America the opportunity the say thank you to those Greatest Generation heroes who sacrificed so much, and served their country, said Diane Diehm, hub vice president.

"Every time we fly it feels like these veterans are getting a hug from America," Diehm said. "They belong to America. And Americans come out in a big way, to say thank you."

Mid-Michigan Honor Flight is accepting applications for World War II veterans, Korean veterans and any terminally ill veteran. Their concentration is on getting World War II veterans flying as soon as they can.

Arlene Anderson-Vincent has flown twice now with the hub, once as a guardian and once as a staff member and she knows firsthand the impact this day makes for both guardians and the veterans they escort.

"In three or four years, there won't be any World War II veterans left. It's just a fact," said Anderson-Vincent. "That's why we have to do this, that's why we want to do this. We genuinely care about these men and women and take our responsibilities seriously. When their families entrust us with their care and comfort, we will do everything we can to make this a special day."

gen, one of the co-owners with Bergmann, is running for a seat on city council against Porter in November.

"I'm not trying to make this personal with Jeff," Bergmann said. "I want the city council to know if that kind of behavior is going to go on, then people are going to think twice about making a business investment in Charlevoix."

City officials confirm that Porter has been determined to root out code violators.

"Dr. Porter has called me numerous times about code violations," said Interim City Manager Mike Spencer. "We haven't found any violations, but it has been a pretty persistent complaint process."

Spencer said it is not harassment from the city when the city officials look into a possible code violation.

"We have to investigate every resident complaint," Spencer said. "We need to figure out if the complaint is legitimate. We're just doing our jobs, not harassing businesses."

Porter said he has tried to clamp down on businesses that violate the city code because residents have complained and because allowing the violators to go unchecked would be unfair to businesses that do obey the rules.

"I've never singled out one particular business," he said. "They are constantly doing things that go against the code. The simple solution is for these businesses to comply with city code."

Mayor Gabe Campbell said Porter has a legitimate right to make his complaints known.

"Dr. Porter has some points about what is going around his office," Campbell said. "There is an issue with noise and customers who wander into the park and sidewalks."

Campbell said Bergmann's attack on Porter during a city council meeting was inappropriate and the remarks that council is anti-business are false.

"For Bergmann to say this city is anti-business is an attack on the council,"

Campbell said. "He's got a pretty good deal using city property for his brewing company."

Campbell does not agree that a business should have use of city property.

"They have used quite a bit of public space and I don't agree with it," Campbell said. "I'm not against business, but I disagree using city property for private business use. Council may support it, but I don't."

one of the big schooners that ran the Great Lakes, the Charlevoix Cornet Band played music for the people on their different excursions."

These summer band concerts — usually eight in the season — are a community tradition, which has been in play each summer except for a few breaks during the two World Wars, Spitzman said.

"As far as I can find the band has performed in the city for at least 110 years," he said. "There has been some form of venue throughout the years the band has had access to bring music to this community, until we got out permanent place in East Park."

On Tuesday, June 30, the Charlevoix City Band again will fill Odmark Pavillion — which is named after long-time director C. A. Odmark — with the sounds of 70 different instruments. Music will resound from winds, brass and percussion to entertain the public. The band has been a major draw to East Park each week during the summer for decades, Spitzman said.

"It is a huge undertaking, but it always begins the week of the Fourth of July," Spitzman said. "We have to purchase our own mu-

The history of the band is about as old as its music library joked, long time music librarian and saxophone player Gail Baldrige.

"Over the years they have collected so much music," Baldrige said. "There is so much music we keep rotating it around. There are some favorites we have to play. We have to play to the audience they like certain park music, classics and other hits they look forward to hearing each summer."

Baldrige said that would not be the case if the school did not provide the space to store their music.

"We have a great partnership with our school," Baldrige said. "Some of our music is really old. Over the years music can disappear and pieces get lost. We have an extensive library of music we have purchased over the

The relationship with Charlevoix schools gives students a chance to play in the City Band, Baldrige said.

"It's important to let the kids know who are in school band that they can still play," Baldrige said. "There is life after high school band. We want them to come and sit in with us and play. It's camaraderie with bands. You can go anywhere in your life and be involved in music."

With only enough financial support to cover the director's costs and music costs the band relies on its members to keep the music playing. In fact, many of the band members have been associated with the Charlevoix City Band for a very long time.

"It's not about the money," said Ev Wujcik, who has been part of the band for more than 50 years. "We play because it's our community. We love it."

Wujcik, who plays trumpet, said it's important to remember the City Band's rich tradition with Charlevoix.

"We're unique. There are not many bands like this in Michigan, especially Northern Michigan. We're one of the largest and longest-playing city bands in Michigan," Wujcik said.

With the multiple events happening each week in East Park Wujcik would like to remind the community, leaders about the bands significant contribution to the community throughout the years.

"We should not take the City Band hand for granted," she said. "We have musicians in our community who are very good. Just because we're an old organization doesn't mean we are not significant. Each of us who volunteer to play do it for our love of music, and the people pack the park to hear that music."

Wujcik is right about the band's history. An article in the Charlevoix Courier from 2013 and dating back to the 1970s show photos of a park full of people, facing the bandstand, sitting in their chairs enjoying the City Band, each summer.

"Each Tuesday's performance we see people start to set up their chairs a hour before we perform," Wujcik said. "It's a family tradition to spend the evening in the park listening to the band."

nice building and we're going to make it happen."

City crews also have a $2,000 estimate to replace the air-conditioning unit because the brewery has added extra heat to the building.

"We have no qualms with the city on this problem," Bergmann said. "We will stay in contact with city officials until all the problems are addressed."

The complaints are usual for a building built in the 1990s, said interim city manager Mike Spencer.

"The building is not neglected and we are responding to the request from the DDA," Spencer said. "The problems are what you would expect from a building that is 30 years old. Many of them are cosmetic in nature."

Throughout the years city staff has completed a number of maintenance projects on the building. Including replacement of ceiling tiles, repairing windowsills, caulking, and painting and wallpaper repairs in the section where the Beaver Island Boat Company resides.

City workers also have stripped and sealed the floor tile in common areas including the restroom facilities, painted the exterior of the building replaced restroom mirrors, fixed leaky windows and performed yearly maintenance on the heating and cooling system.

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

The Downtown Development Authority made a recommendation to Charlevoix City staff on Monday, to make fixing the public restrooms a "top priority." In the building where the Beaver Island Boat Company, Keweenaw Excursions and Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company are located.

Many of these items require attention again because they are on a list of building needs that department of public works superintendent Pat Elliott, supplied to the authority board, Barron said.

"We are looking at the list and getting our arms around this issue to fix it," Barron said. "We will make it a win-win for everyone because it's important to our tenants to have a building that is in good shape. We're there 100 percent to see that this is done."

Authority board members, city staff and building tenants met this week to address immediate problems that were mentioned at the DDA meeting.

"The restroom issue is the highest priority," Barron said. "We will get that taken care of just as soon as we can."

Spencer said the public works officials are getting quotes for restrooms.

"Immediate needs are the toilets and sensors in the bathrooms," Spencer said. "We will fix the problem, whether that requires making repairs on the existing bathroom fixtures or with new equipment. We will correct the problem."

The authority will create a committee and plans to work with all parties involved in the building to figure out some type reporting system, Doyle said.

"Maintenance is under a unique set of circumstances in that building because more than one city department is involved," Doyle said. "There is a need to establish a reporting process so our tenants do not feel neglected as they have in the past. The DDA is committed to making sure the building is up to a standard we expect in Charlevoix."

the time of use is extended to 1 a.m.

Doan said the ordinance was written in response to citizens concerns over smoke, fire and noise, and those low-impact fireworks like sparklers, snakes and fountains remain legal year round.

"The biggest thing is just be courteous of your neighbors and use some common sense," Doan said.

As for sky lanterns or "Chinese" lanterns, the city has put a complete ban on the use of them, no matter what time of year.

The possession, sale or use can result in a $500 civil infraction.

"We have state guidelines we can follow with fines up to $500, but also we have city ordinance fines," Doan said.

The balloons have been used in Asia for years, and people like using them at annual festivals throughout the world.

"They're unique," Doan said. "But given air currents, they can reach a high altitude and travel extremely long distances. As with anything uncontrolled in flight, the potential for tragedy is involved."

The lanterns have proved hazardous in some cases — there have been reports of the balloons landing on a house or a field and igniting fires. While no such fires have been reported in Charlevoix, Doan said, his department wanted to be proactive in preventing an unintended disaster.

Doan said he has seen situations in which sky lanterns have blown on boats and down the beaches after they were launched.

"If it makes contact with any dry vegetation or even somebody's trash goods out by the sidewalk for pickup, even next to their garage, the potential is there for an uncontrolled fire," Doan said.

When completed, the Charlevoix County Brownfield Redevelopment Authority estimates property taxes to total more than $1.7 million annually, with 38 percent of the revenue going toward local taxing jurisdictions. This is a sizable increase from the $497,000 generated per year in property taxes for the project area.

The addition of 10 permanent positions brings the total plant employment to 138 full-time employees, benefiting the 10.7 percent of unemployed residents in Charlevoix County, according to November 2014 U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics data.

The Charlevoix Brownfield Redevelopment Authority was approved for about $4.1 million in local and school tax capture to put toward redeveloping property owned by St. Mary's Cement Inc. earlier this year.

Fawn rescued from Lake Michigan

On June 14, Judy Fritz, rescued a fawn swimming in Lake Michigan near Norwood Township. The fawn began to drown while it was swimming to shore with its mother, Judy waded out waist deep in the water and pulled the fawn to shore after it went under. She helped the fawn to shore and performed CPR on the animal until neighbor Ron Moore came home. Moore went to where the young deer laid and noticed leg movement. He carried the fawn to the trees by his house and put a towhee over it. He contacted officials at the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, where they informed Moore to be quiet, stay clear and don't go near the fawn. After several hours the fawn stood up and went off into the woods. Moore said he hopes the young deer will be able to meet up with its mother again.

As one of the original members of Whiskey Creek Mike plays rhythm guitar, bass guitar and sings. Mike grew up in East Jordan and now lives in the Charlevoix area. Another of the founding members is Matt Argetsinger. Matt who was born and raised in East Jordan and still lives there today has been singing his whole life and Whiskey Creek is his first band.

THE PISTIL WHIPS are a new duo based out of Boyne City, MI. They combine the styles of funk, blues, and jazz to make a sound all their own. Eric Dane Jaqua plays the revolutionary Farmer Foot Drums (a drum set operated with the feet only), guitar and vocals simultaneously. With Will Love on sax, clarinet, keys & beatbox flute.

THE PETOSKEY STEEL DRUM BAND was formed in 1997 under the direction of Barry Bennett. With just a few drums and only 12 students, the band began to tour the state of Michigan during the summers. Today, there are 65 students playing steel drums in the high school and 75 in the middle school. Our Summer Performing Group currently has 38 members. The group performs between 20-25 concerts every summer and over 40 during the entire year. Our concerts are designed for the entire family and are extremely energetic and fun! The band has performed all over the state of Michigan at various Festivals and City Concerts, at Disney World, New Orleans-Mardi Gras (8 times), Hawaii, St. Thomas, Puerto Rico, and Tortola. The band has also produced 5 CD's and one DVD during the past 17 years. Martin shoots under par to win first Belvedere Hickory Open title

(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Near-perfect weather and a near-perfect course made the 10th annual Belvedere Hickory Open a delight for the 64 participants.

And eventual Open Champion Cliff Martin matched that near-perfection with an excellent run of his own to claim his first Hickory Major title over the weekend at Belvedere Golf Club.

Martin, a native of Los Angeles, Calif., tamed a difficult Belvedere course that gave the field its share of problems with back to back rounds of 70 and 73 to finish eight strokes ahead of the next best score of the weekend.

"I've been playing full-time Hickory for about two years, and this is the third or fourth major Society of Hickory Golf tournament I've been a part of," Martin said. "I've been close before, but it was nice to finally put together a couple of solid rounds and win one."

"I thought I had the ability to win one of these things if I could put it all together, and it was nice to have that happen, finally."

The Open is one of five majors in a series put on by the Society of Hickory Golfers. At each major, golfers are required to play with a set of pre-1935 hickory golf clubs or an approved reproduction, and period-appropriate attire is encouraged as well.

Although it was his first appearance in the Belvedere Hickory Open and just his second time playing the course, Martin shot a scorching round of 70 on Friday to take an eight stroke lead over the field after the opening day.

"I was doing everything I wanted to do, copying every video of (seven-time major winner and six-time amateur winner) Bobby Jones I've ever seen," Martin said. "Just trying to swing smooth, keep it easy and not complicate things. Everything was just in the zone."

After building a commanding lead on the first day, Martin got into trouble early in the final round on Saturday, bogeying or double-bogeying three of the first four holes to give four strokes back to the field.

But Martin regrouped and turned his round around on the par 5 fifth hole, chipping onto the green and sinking a birdie putt to regain momentum.

From there, Martin made six more birdies to finish the round one over and clinch the title, including three birdies on the final four holes.

"It was a rough start, and I was kind of kicking myself after the first few holes," Martin said. "I was really happy to find a way to rally and finish the round strong."

Ben Hollerbach of Chamblee, Ga. shot a 157 to finish runner-up in the open division, while Jerry Esselman and Paul Fiedorek each carded a 160 to finish tied for third.

Belvedere Pro and Charlevoix native Dennis "Marty" Joy II shot a 163 to take fifth overall.

Fiedorek claimed the net title with a handicap-adjusted score of 138, and Sean Curtis took second with a 139.

In the senior division, the title went to another Hickory player making his first appearance at the Belvedere.

Pinehurst, N.C. native Tony Smarrelli made the 16-hour trip by car to play in the Hickory Open and came home with the title, shooting 78 and 73 to finish with a two-day total of 151, second best overall behind Martin.

Smarrelli has won the senior title in his last seven Hickory Major appearances, and had titles at every other major stop on the tour, but had never played at the Belvedere before this year.

"It was important to me to come up here, both because this is an amazing hickory course that's right up there with anywhere in the world, and also because I had a chance to complete the career slam if I could win here," Smarrelli said. "I drove up here early to get an extra practice round in, and it really paid off."

Smarrelli had the lead after the first day, but put the tournament away with a one-over par round on the second day that allowed him to pull away from the competition.

"I felt very fortunate to be in the lead after the first day, because I didn't feel like I played that well," Smarrelli said. "I felt much better about my play (on Saturday); my irons were much better and that allowed me to keep it on the fairways as much as possible."

"I only hit six greens in regulation (on Friday), but I hit 13 or 14 greens (on Saturday) and that made a big difference."

Hugh Cameron shot a 159 to finish runner-up in the senior division, John Berggren carded a 162 to take third and Chuck McMullin carded a 163 to finish fourth.

McMullin and Berggren each shot a handicap-adjusted 141 to tie for the net title.

Petoskey's Swiss, Charlevoix's Certa take in Comerica Park experience

DREW KOCHANNY

DETROIT — At Comerica Park this season, New York Yankee's designated hitter Alex Rodriguez hitted .090 after a four game stretch in April.

Cincinnati Reds All-Star first baseman Joey Votto and Houston Astros outfielder Colby Rasmus, .166 and .083, respectively.

Petoskey senior shortstop Jordan Swiss?

A .500 clip from the plate, with a double and a run scored.

On Wednesday, Swiss earned the experience of a lifetime, playing in the 34th annual Michigan High School Baseball East-West All-Star game at Comerica Park in Detroit, where he dug his cleats into the same dirt, taking in the same view baseball legends and Detroit Tigers did before him.

"When I was out there for my very first inning, I was just thinking, 'This is right where (Derek) Jeter stood, and where (Jose) Iglesias stands every night,'" said Swiss. "Then the next play I got a ground ball right to me."

"It was one of the coolest nights of my life, to say the least."

Swiss, the first baseball player ever from Petoskey High School to play in the Comerica Park All-Star game, wasn't the only Northern Michigan representative on the night, though, as Charlevoix senior outfielder Noah Certa also laced up on the night, but was unavailable for comment.

The wide eyed presence many would naturally get in the game settled into a competitive drive as Swiss stepped to the field during the second half of the game.

Playing shortstop, the first inning he got in, Swiss turned two plays into outs, then later added another ground ball out.

In his first at-bat for his West squad, Swiss fought through a number of pitches, fouling off a number before an infield pop-out.

But down 3-1 in the eighth, his second at-bat of the game, Swiss stepped to the plate and crushed a double off the left field wall.

A single later scored Monroe St. Mary Catholic Central's Bryce Windham from first and advance

Five Charlevoix athletes take home all-state honors in baseball, girls soccer

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — A successful spring season that included a No. 1 ranking and two conference crowns gave the Charlevoix baseball and girls soccer teams something to be happy about heading into the summer.

And for a few members of those teams, the honors are rolling in still.

12 area athletes earned first team or honorable mention all-state honors from the respective coaches associations in baseball, softball, soccer and golf in recognition for their achievements this past season.

On the diamond, a Rayder standout who earned a spot in the Michigan High School Baseball Coaches Association All-Star game last week also picked up first team all-state honors from the coaches association.

Noah Certa of Charlevoix earned first-team honors in Division 3, his third time on an all-state team after two second-team finishes as a sophomore and a junior.

The leadoff hitter for the Rayders, Certa hit for a .360 average with 19 RBIs and 45 runs scored, while also stealing 29 bases and striking out just three times in 132 plate appearances.

In girls soccer, Charlevoix's strong season that included a long stretch at the top of the Division 4 polls led to four all-state honorees.

Rayder seniors Leah Davis and Gloria Greene picked up first-team all-state honors in Division 4 from the Michigan Interscholastic High School Soccer Coaches Association.

Davis tied for the team lead in goals with 17 and was second in assists with 12 to lead Charlevoix from her midfield position, while Greene made 177 saves and had a 91 percent save percentage as one of the state's top goalkeepers.

This marks the second set of all-state honors for both Davis and Greene, who also earned all-state honors last season.

Also earning honorable mention all-state for Charlevoix were senior striker Ellie Way, who finished the year with 16 goals and 10 assists, and junior midfielder Kylee Scholten, who scored seven goals and assisted on 14 more.

2014 VENETIAN BURGEE CLUB

The unique character of Venetian reflects the unique nature of our community which the Festival celebrates. Charlevoix emerged as one of the nation's foremost resort communities in the post Civil War era. From day one to the present, an engaging mix of locals and summer residents and a diverse interaction of small town values and big city perspectives, has prompted lively political debate and community initiatives beyond the normal pale of a small town.

Venetian likewise emerged as a community tradition, initially staged in 1930 by the Chicago and Belvedere Clubs as a candle lit parade of sailboats. Venetian was quickly embraced by locals, summer residents and visitors alike and has since evolved as the grand Charlevoix homecoming celebration.

The Venetian message transcends lively entertainment, laughter and camaraderie. Venetian provides a unique annual opportunity to bring family, friends, neighbors and visitors together to celebrate our blessings and small town values and to renew our spirit of community.

While Venetian celebrates its 85th birthday in 2015, the Festival continues to look to its future as a unifying force. A robust Venetian future may well rest with a community embrace of the "Main Street" initiative to enhance the economic vitality of Charlevoix, and the laudable commitment of numerous "Main Street" volunteers and emerging leaders.

Its time to celebrate, Charlevoix, Venetian is once again here. Celebrate blessings, memories, relationships and a promising future. Long live Venetian!

It takes a great coach to lead a team that won't take to the course until a month later than many downstate schools, and lead that team to a state finals berth. That's Petoskey coach Chad Loe. This season, Loe helped Petoskey to a best ever boys' golf team finish in the Division 2 state finals, where they ended the season with a 5th place finish. The Northmen shot rounds of 313 and a season low 305 for a 618 final. Petoskey took second place in their Division 2 regional with a 329, after winning their district match a week before with a 312, their second straight district championship. Loe would also be named the Division 2 Michigan Interscholastic Golf Coaches Association Coach of the Year.

Making school history:

Consistency guides Gaylord senior Cam Laug to Player of the Year

Brandon Folsom

(989) 732-1111 • bfolsom@gaylordheraldtimes.com

GAYLORD — According to Gaylord coach Tom Johnson, Cam Laug ended his high school career this spring as one of the top-three boys golfers in school history.

But because of what the senior did this season — namely, playing as one of the more consistent golfers in the Big North Conference — Northern Prep Review selected the Blue Devil as its All-Area Player of the Year.

"Cam's consistency is what he is all about," Johnson said. "When he averages 76.8 strokes and shot 14 rounds between 75 and 78 shots, that's pretty consistent. As a coach, I got to a point where I counted on him to be right there each time."

"I relate to basketball a lot. When you have a kid who averages 15 points per game after eight to 10 games, that's what you expect of him each time. Sometimes he'll score a little more, and sometimes he'll score a little under that, but that's what you expect from him."

Laug echoed Johnson's sentiment about the way he played this season.

"Consistency allowed me to keep the ball in play and regulation," he said. "Getting to know the yardage of specific clubs helps, but I also had the mindset that par was a good score."

"I made sure not to be aggressive on tight holes, and that can be a factor in high school golf."

With Johnson's top-three list, Laug joins a pair of decorated former Gaylord golfers in Adam Miller and Alex Dombrowski. Miller is the school's only individual state champion, as he won the Division 2 title in 2002. Dombrowski currently plays for Princeton University's men's golf team.

It took Laug an extraordinary year to fit in with that company.

He led the Blue Devils to their third consecutive appearance in the D2 state final. They placed sixth overall, the best finish for any Gaylord team playing for a state championship.

Individually, Laug's 77 stroke average was the second best in the Big North — only Traverse City West senior Alex Scott finished ahead of him. He was an individual medalist twice and placed in the top five in 13 of the 17 tournaments he competed in, and he shot in the 70s or better 14 times.

For his effort this season, the Big North named Laug First Team All-Conference while the Michigan Interscholastic Golf Coaches Association selected him to its D2 All-State team.

Johnson has recognized that it'll be tough finding another player like Laug who can take over the Blue Devils and lead them back to the state final.

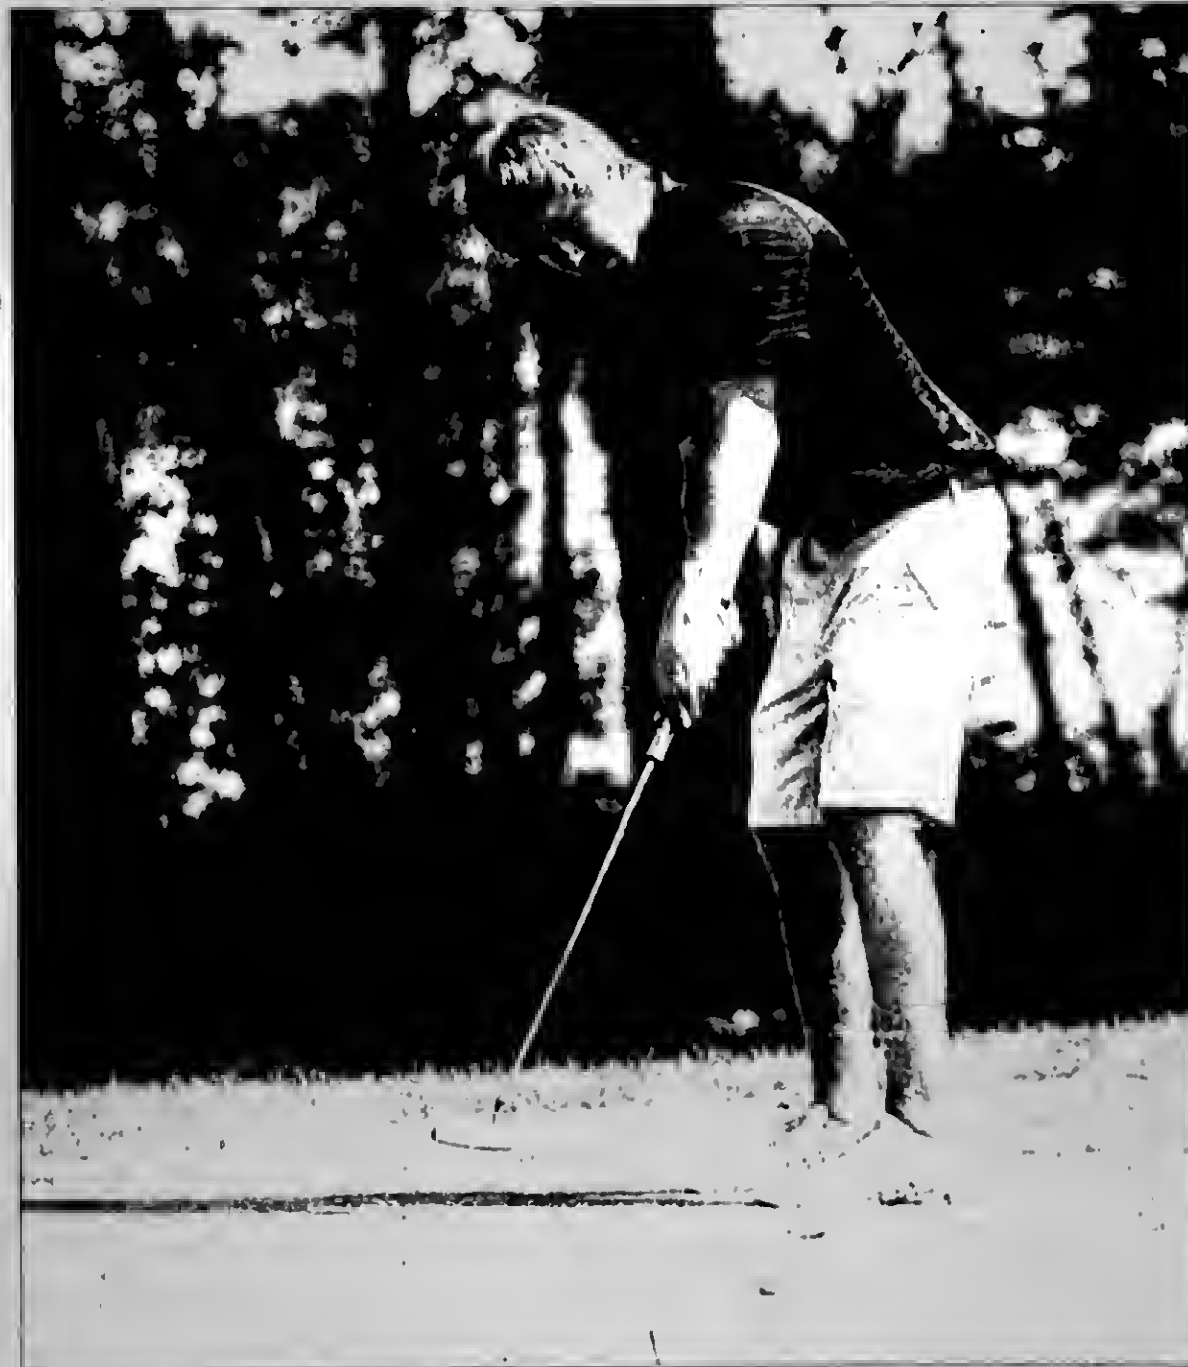

"We're losing one of our top-three golfers ever," Johnson said. "I've had a state champion in Adam Miller. I've had Alex Dombrowski, who is just a student of the game. I've had Cam Laug, and he is right there with them. You hope that you can replace him, but those are big shoes to fill."

With Laug graduated now, the Blue Devils also lose their biggest leader.

"What stands out for Cam is the way he led," Johnson said. "He made his teammates, Mike Misiak and Jimmy Robb, better golfers because he would take them along with him and play a lot in the summer. When someone is as consistent as Cam is, they all want to be like Cam Laug, and that made his teammates work harder at their game."

Going forward for Laug, he is forgoing his freshman year of college to work on his golf game, and hopefully land a scholarship from a Division II university located in either Florida or Georgia for the 2016 school year.

"Hopefully a school somewhere south recruits me because I want to be able to practice 12 months out of the year versus my four months here," Laug said. "Michigan golf isn't as cool as everyone thinks it is. The courses are awesome, but it's hard to practice in the winter, and you can't compete (well) when you play four months out of the year."

Gaylord senior Cam Laug taps in a putt during a Big North Conference jamboree hosted by the Blue Devils earlier this season at Gaylord County Club.

Laug's path to college golf is similar to what Dombrowski did following his senior season at Gaylord. But Johnson knows Laug is capable of achieving his goals at the next level, regardless of how the Blue Devil goes about making it onto a team.

"I believe his best golf is still ahead of him," Johnson said. "Last year he averaged 77.4 strokes per round and this year he averaged 76.8. In his last three years, he's averaged under 80 and has gotten better every year. That's what you expect from a kid like that, and he'll only get even better."

Added Laug: "I have the dedication to make it. I put in so much time into my game. I know it'll eventually pay off or at least help me get better."

Charlevoix Marathon taking place this weekend

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 699-0403 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix area is famous as a destination for tourists across the country, and even across the globe.

And few events draw more visitors across a single day to the small lakeside community than the Charlevoix Marathon, now entering its ninth consecutive year.

The marathon, which has steadily grown in size since its inception in 2006, is expected to attract a field of nearly 2,000 runners on Saturday, June 27, bringing competitors and their families to the area in droves.

The Charlevoix Marathon is an officially-designated qualifier for the Boston Marathon, as certified by the USA Track and Field Association.

This year, the Marathon has preregistered competitors from 39 states, including Alaska and Hawaii, as well as 36 Canadians and a runner from Turkey, making it a truly competitive and international field.

If a marathon is too daunting a distance, the organizers are also hosting a half-marathon, a 10K and a 5K on the same day to give runners and walkers options.

Cost for the marathon is $100, the half-marathon is $80, the 10K is $60 and the 5K is $40 and includes a race bib, Under Armour T-shirt and other goodies.

If you were unable to register online, competitors can register the day before, June 26, at Bridge Park from noon to 6 p.m., and day of from 5 a.m. to race time, for an additional $5 charge.

The race will have a rolling start, with marathon walkers and disabled competitors starting at 6 a.m. on Saturday, with marathon runners starting at 6:30 a.m., half-marathon competitors starting at 7 a.m., and 10K and 5K competitors starting at 7:30 a.m.

For more information on the race, check the website at charlevoixmarathon.com, or contact race director Ron Suffolk at ron@goodbyeevents.com or by phone (248) 446-1315.

In the super senior (70 plus) division, Michael Shiff carded rounds of 80 and 75 to shoot a 155 and take home the crown.

Rick Frank carded a 166 to finish second to Shiff, and James Max Hollon carded a 176 to finish third.

After the event, both Martin and Smarrelli praised the course and the hospitality of the Belvedere Club.

"I was told it was a rough winter and a late start here, but you couldn't tell that at all by the shape of the course, Martin said. "The greens were pretty consistent and the rough was in great shape.

"Everything from the course, to the hospitality, to the staff was first-rate, and it's definitely a tournament I want to come back to." Smarrelli echoed the sentiments.

"It's a great course, and a very challenging one," Smarrelli said. "You have to hit the ball on the fairway to give yourself an angle to the green, and I love that.

"I belong to Pinehurst, which is a great course, and I would put this right up there with that in terms of quality."

Swiss from second to third. Standing on third base, down a run, Swiss' turned his focus to crossing home plate.

"I was just thinking that I had to score on a base hit," he said.

A home crossing came for Swiss later in the inning, as he slid head-first in, scoring from third base on a throwing error after a bluff home from Swiss hurried an errant throw.

Certa played three innings in the outfield for the West, getting one at bat.

He wasted little time at the plate, swinging at the first pitch, popping it up for the first out of the inning.

The East would eventually take the lead and the game in the bottom of the eighth on an RBI single by Detroit Western International's Anthony Gutierrez, who earned MVP honors for the East.

Winning and losing wasn't as big of a factor on the night for most, though, not as much as taking in a moment they'll always remember.

"It was just an amazing experience," said Swiss. "I was just trying to take it all in."

He also got to share that experience with his family and some friends, with his parents in the stands, along with his brother, sister and girlfriend.

"They just wouldn't stop cheering," Swiss said with a laugh. "They're my biggest support system. I wouldn't have been able to be there if it wasn't for them. All that's happened in my baseball career goes to the help of my family."

Captured in his mind will always be the feeling, but the pictures and video taken of his hit he'll have to share for the rest of his life.

"Just having that as a memory is something I can always look back on," he said. "Then I was so pumped that my hit got recorded. It's one thing to tell people, it's another to have them watch."

Which showing some might really do better justice than telling, because what sounds like an unbelievable dream for some, came true for Swiss on Wednesday.

City: Tap room, brewery have past code violations

Other downtown businesses also have violations

LOHNE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — Interim City Manager Mike Spencer confirmed city code violations have occurred with the Bridge Street Tap Room and the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company.

In a previous story, Spencer told the Courier that no legitimate code violations have been found with the owners of the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company and The Bridge Street Tap Room. Spencer said that was in reference to the recent complaints made by Dr. Jeff Porter, whose office is located next to the businesses.

"Yes, there have only been two instances of sign violations and these were violations that I noted personally and took corrective action,"

Spencer said. "They were not complaints from Dr. Porter."

In an email dated June 19, Spencer tells Porter he noticed three sandwich board signs up. Spencer also said the Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company would be removing two of the signs and using the one allowed under the ordinance in that same email.

However, on June 27 and June 28, Lake Charlevoix Brewing Company was still using the signs in question. Round Lake Group owner Rich Bergmann said he has since removed one of the signs after speaking to Spencer again. The extra sign being used was a primary entrance sign for the brewing company because the county health inspection would not let them

NORTHERN MICHIGAN — There were no fireworks or celebrations when the Declaration of Independence was adopted on July 4, 1776, but on July 4, 1777 there were bells rung, guns fired, candles lit and firecrackers exploded.

Celebrations were modest throughout the War for Independence, and after the war July 4 was only celebrated in some locations until that day was declared a federal holiday in 1941.

There are celebratory fireworks all across Lower Northern Michigan for those who want to see the sky light up on this Fourth of July weekend. Here are a few locations that include:

Lake Charlevoix leaders, residents learn about lake ecology

CHARLEVOIX — With the blow of the ship's horn, local leaders and Lake Charlevoix shoreline residents set sail aboard the Inland Seas schooner to learn about about lake ecology and shoreline protection on June 30.

"It's our goal to help educate the people who live in the area or around the lake about the importance of protecting this natural resource," said Dean Solomon, Michigan State University Extension educator in Boyne City.

Michigan State University Extension, the Lake Charlevoix Association and Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council sponsored the event.

About 30 people were part of the Tuesday morning educational sailing trip. Other educational tours took place Monday evening and Tuesday afternoon.

Crew members and volunteers that sail with Inland Seas Education Association hope to stir passion with area residents for the health of Great Lakes waters, for phytoplankton, for the benthic zone, for fish large and small and to help them understand the importance of protecting the world's largest expanse of freshwater.

"We want everyone to participate in the science of this trip," said Tom Maynard, volunteer coordinator of the Inland Seas Education Association.

Sailing attendees also worked

The new five-panel mural in downtown Charlevoix is a chronological mural that starts at the turn of the century ending in the 1970s with an Earl Young house rendition.

New mural welcomes visitors downtown

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • allen@schurz.com

CHARLEVOIX — If you haven't noticed, a new, colorful mural in downtown welcomes travelers and residents with "Welcome to Charlevoix the Beautiful."

Ann Arbor artist Katherine Larson did the mural and said it was painted over a five-month period in her studio.

"It's a chronological mural that starts at the turn of the century," Larson said.

It starts about 1910, and progresses to the lighthouse around the year of 1925, followed by the bridge as it first appeared in 1949, and then Round Lake as it would have looked around the 1950s. The mural ends with a 1970s tribute to Earl Young's mushroom house.

"The final panel was perfect for showcasing a tiny structure inspired by the Mushroom house, and the wavy rock wall, which joins panel to panel, is a tribute to

Ann Arbor artist Katherine Larson paints the side entrance door of the Rexall Central Drug Store on Clinton Street to look like one of Earl Young's mushroom house doors in Charlevoix. Larson was the artist hired to make the live panel mural on the side of the building.

Earl Young's whimsical style," Larson said.

The Downtown Development Authority commissioned the mural after the city asked several artists to submit a three-panel rendering of their vision for the building. Larson said she took it upon herself to go the extra mile for her submission.

"I made the decision to drive to Charlevoix last Labor Day weekend and see the building in person," Larson said. "When I saw that there were actually five panels, I decided that I would submit a design incorporating all five."

As a complete scene spanning more than 60 feet, she needed common elements to bring the scene together.

Larson selected an orange as the carryover color throughout the mural starting with the Victorian orange dress and the sunrise and ending in the orange-toned tree and leaves on the final panels with touches of orange on each panel between. Water and rocks were the other two elements common to each panel. The sky also transitions from a spring dawn in the first panel to a winter dusk in the final panel. Each transition is done gradually so as to be subtle, she said.

Since the mural went up the response has been great, Larson said.

"The feedback is incredible," Larson said. "Age, background, tourist or resident, it didn't matter, the response is the same. I got a lot of 'Thank you's' and thumbs up, honking and smiles."

"One of my favorite compliments came from a man who said it made him happy," she added. "That's always my hope... that a mural of mine will make people smile."

Larson has done murals all over the country and it is a passion of hers, she said. Her work can be viewed at katherine@larson.com.

"It's an interactive mural," she said. "We hope people will stand in front of it and take pictures, and they have so far."

CMU students photograph daily life on Beaver Island

ALACIN BARNETT
(231) 439-9353 • barnett@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Beaver Island was the site of a week-long project for 15 Central Michigan University students in the honors program who documented the life of local residents for a summer a photography class.

The students stayed at the CMU Biological Station on Beaver Island, primarily used for Great Lakes and ecological research during the school year. Each summer the honors program takes a class to the station to teach non-science courses.

"We've been traveling to Beaver Island for 10 years or so and over the years I think we've come to appreciate the island as a source of beauty, and not just physically, but the people and culture of the island as well," said Honors Program Director, Phame Camarena.

Students spent the first two days of the week talking to residents and making connections while shaping a plan for a 24-hour photo shoot later in the week.

Overall, they captured 10,000 images of individuals in their natural daily life, including a baker, bartender, hairdresser, schoolteacher, toy store and museum shop owner, veterinarian, woodworker and the island's only 100-year-old resident.

CMU photography professor, Al Wildey taught the week-long class, Mobile Photography with your Smartphone, and came to Camarena with the idea for the course based on the familiarity students had come to create with residents. He said the course is based in the idea the history of photography is one of technological advances.

Using smartphones is the next progression that began since photographers started using wooden boxes and flashbulbs.

Wildey said the images captured of residents can be used to show the diversity of the island as well as make comparisons between life on Beaver Island and life on the mainland.

"The residents were surprisingly receptive, we notified some people that it wasn't a class of amateur paparazzi coming, we wanted to have a nice respectful approach and record a very wide range of things," Wildey said. "It was a really great experience. There were a lot of people we weren't able to connect with if we were to do it again, we would want to go even deeper and talk to more people."

The last two days of the class were spent editing photos and selecting 100 pictures to include in a slideshow of their work which Camarena said would be presented to residents.

"The laboratory had enough of a relationship with people on the island that it wouldn't be too unusual to photograph them," Camarena said. "We felt like we got to know residents in a way that would get us access to different aspects of island life."

Steve West, executive director of the Beaver Island Chamber of Commerce, echoed this sentiment. He said having a world-class Great Lakes research station on the island has been a "feather in our cap," for decades and the students who visit are welcomed by island residents. The original CMU research vessel is even owned by one of the island-dwellers.

"People here understand that their livelihood is related to tourism," West said. "The Institute of Great Lakes Research has made the island more prominent. Beaver Island has become an annual pilgrimage for us and I'm grateful that the island is hospitable to us," Camarena said.

Public affairs specialist for Social Security Administration

Eighty years ago, on Aug. 14, 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the Social Security Act into law. The new law guaranteed a basic income for retirees and, at the time, the unemployed.

Over the years, Social Security has expanded its safety net to provide benefits for retirees, people with disabilities, the chronically ill, spouses and children of deceased workers. The agency has evolved to serve the needs of a changing America. Now, we're celebrating this historic anniversary by looking at both our successful past, and the path to an even brighter future.

Social Security is there for you during all stages of life. Right from the beginning, we issue a unique Social Security number to most newborns when an application is taken at the hospital. This allows us to track your income over your working career and accurately calculate your retirement benefit. We provide disability benefits to injured and chronically ill workers and their families. We provide survivors benefits to widows, widowers and children of deceased workers. We also provide Supplemental Security Income (SSI) to those with low income and resources, and Extra Help with Medicare prescription drug costs for people who qualify.

Our safe and secure online services allow you to apply for retirement, spouse's, Medicare, and disability benefits from the comfort of your home. You can quickly complete an online retirement application at socialsecurity.gov/applyonline.

Looking to the future, we recently released our Vision 2025, a strategic plan to help us shape the future of Social Security service delivery and maintain clear communication with you. For more information about our vision for the next 10 years, visit socialsecurity.gov/vision2025.

We look to the next 80 years with a renewed commitment to proudly serving Social Security customers throughout their lifetime, when and where they need us. See how Social Security has evolved over the years at socialsecurity.gov/history.

LETTER to the editor

Fireworks safety tips

Editor:
While the fireworks-related, injury numbers are down approximately nine percent and use of consumer fireworks is up by more than 59 percent during the last 20 years, it is still vital that consumers use the utmost caution with the products. Consumer fireworks are truly safer today than ever before and today's smarter buying public uses the products carefully and with good common sense resulting in more use of consumer fireworks and fewer injuries.

Americans understand the importance of buying consumer fireworks only from licensed dealers and to avoid the pitfalls of buying overloaded, black-market illegal explosives that are dangerous and can be lethal.

When you factor in use to the injury statistics, the improvement in fireworks-related injuries is very impressive. Based on injuries measured per 100,000 pounds of imported fireworks, there has been a remarkable 42.9 percent reduction in injuries from 10.7 per 100,000 pounds in 1994 to 6.1 per 100,000 pounds in 2013.

If we work diligently on the safety message and are able to get people to follow the safety rules, we can improve the fireworks-related safety record and reduced injuries even further.

The cardinal safety rule is to "use common sense." Some of the primary fireworks safety tips include:

1. Never allow children to handle fireworks. Only sober adults should handle and ignite the fireworks. Have a designated shooter, like a designated driver, this person should be the one in charge of the fireworks.

2. Use in a clear, open space, free from debris and combustibles. Use on a hard, flat surface. Keep your audience a safe distance from your launch site and fallout zones. A minimum safe distance should be 30 feet for ground-based items and 150 feet for aerials.

3. Have a ready source of water close by. A connected hose is best, but a bucket of water or fire extinguisher will do. Someone should act as the fireman. This person should visually track the burning projectiles down to make sure nothing comes down hot.

4. Do not relight duds. Follow all laws. Use a long-neck butane lighter to light the fireworks. Never put any part of your body over a firework or in its travel path.

Let's continue the great American tradition envisioned by John Adams, of celebrating with fireworks when the future President of the United States wrote in a letter to his wife, Abigail, in 1776 that the Independence Day holiday "ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, bonfires and illuminations — fireworks — from one end of the continent to the other, from this day forward, forevermore."

Please enjoy the Independence Day holiday with your family and celebrate safely.

Very truly yours,
William A. Weimer

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

Before the Venetian Festival celebration took precedence during the summer, July 4 was celebrated in Charlevoix every year with a big parade.

This one, in 1904, began on the north side of town, and is shown coming down the Michigan Avenue hill toward the bridge. In the upper middle appears a large house with a wraparound porch at the West Dixon corner, which is still there.

To its left, behind the telephone pole, stands either a barn or a store with a high false façade on which tall lettering appears, too faint to be deciphered. To its left is a field on which many piles of cordwood are spread. Below these, the land was later developed into a gravel pit. Many years after that it became the Pointes North Inn.

The parade float signs are too faint and incomplete to find out what organizations these floats represent.

The one at tower left carries several trees among which the American flags are positioned. At right appears a wooden sidewalk.
